Northwest College and the Decade of Harvest

Northwest College has long been involved in the Harvest. This has been and is at the heart of the original mission of N.C. The eleventh graduating class celebrated its fortieth anniversary at the alumni banquet last Fall. The class had taken the name "Harvesters" for itself while still in school. Reports show they have been fulfilling their name.

Right now N.C. faculty, staff and students are involved in helping to launch a new church in Eastgate, a rapidly growing area east of Bellevue, Washington. Spearheading this effort in an elementary school is Mark Flattery, a 1983 N.C. grad.

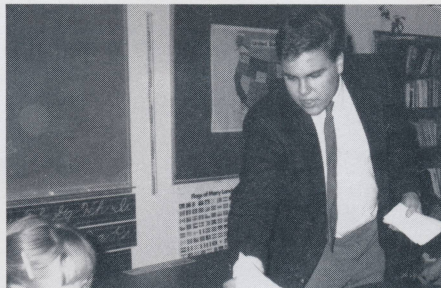

Rev. Mark Flattery, an alumnus of N.C. is pioneering Eastgate Assembly, east of Bellevue.

Two faculty families, three staff members, a student worship leading team and a number of students from the College are all involved, assisting in various ways.

Colleen Brown teaches Sunday School at Eastgate A/G. She is a staff member at N.C. along with her husband, coach John Brown.

N.C. student, Mike Wilcox, works with the youth of Eastgate A/G.

Other locations in the burgeoning metro area where the College is located, are targeted for future efforts. Graduates have felt the burden, have identified their targets and are beginning to lay ground work.

A coordinating committee for the College Decade of Harvest efforts has been appointed. It will: (1) Identify what the College is already doing to help plant churches and what it can do to enhance these efforts, (2) articulate the College philosophy of its involvement, (3) study and develop goals, (4) study and develop strategies. The Vice President for Academic Affairs chairs the committee.

The College sponsored an on-campus seminar on church planting with special guest Rev. Robert Schmidgall, Decade of Harvest chairman, as featured speaker. Also, a church planting and urban missions "hands on" course will be taught starting next year. In it the students will study it and do it.

Guiding principles for college involvement in Decade of Harvest will include these:

1. The College will work in close cooperation with its sponsoring districts and serve as a resource of training, ideas and personnel.
2. The College will offer special course work drawing on church planting strategies developed by many and using guest presenters with experience in church planting.
3. The College will involve itself in the Decade of Harvest in the immediate area, with distinct purpose: (1) To plant churches, (2) to develop strategies and train personnel in a "laboratory", (3) to provide a base of experience, training and model for N.C. and its students as the College serves elsewhere in the northwest region in helping to start churches.

Students are excited. The Spirit of Decade of Harvest is taking hold at N.C. One married couple, now seniors, spent a missionary internship during the summer in Point Hope, Alaska. Now they have applied for a two-year associateship in Alaska following graduation and have pledged themselves then to plant a church on Alaska's north slope.

Are these men digging to plant for a harvest? In a sense, yes they are! Dean of Students - Tex Rutledge, Married Student's Association advisor - Dr. Dan Pecota, MSA President - Brad Kline, and College President D.V. Hurst participated with the College Board of Directors in December, breaking ground for the new married student's two-bedroom apartments.

Impact Speakers Featured At N.C.

Every year at Northwest College a variety of guest speakers are invited to speak in our daily chapel services. These pastors, evangelists, missionaries, district leaders and other ministers of the Gospel have a tremendous impact on the lives of our students. We believe that this daily chapel service is a focal point for our academic day and an integral part of the spiritual growth process of our students.

Rev. Bob Schmidgall

On October 25-27 Rev. Bob Schmidgall of Naperville, Illinois, was here for our Pastoral Ministries Lecture Series. His ministry in chapel on the topic, "Let the Church Be the Church," and his workshop with pastoral ministries students and ministers from off-campus were very relevant and timely in our preparation for the Decade of Harvest.

We also had a very excellent chapel service with Joanne Shetler, who was here representing the Wycliffe Bible Translators.

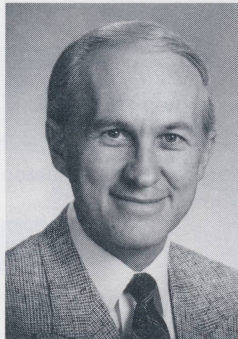

Her stirring story of the many years of missionary work among the Balangao people in Northern Luzon, in the Philippines, was a challenge to all of us. After twenty years of diligent translation work, Joanne had the joy of dedicating the Balangao New Testament in July of 1982.

Bible Translator Jo Shetler

We believe that this daily chapel service is a focal point for our academic day and an integral part of the spiritual growth process of our students.

We look forward to a tremendous Missions Convention February 6-10 with Rev. Bob Houlihan, the field director of the Far East field for the Division of Foreign Missions of the Assemblies of God. Bro. Houlihan and his wife, Carolyn, ministered in Japan for more than twenty years and have also served in Korea and Taiwan as the Far East Northern Area Representatives for the Division of Foreign Missions. His oversight of missionaries and missions strategies for Japan, China, Burma, the South Pacific Islands and the Asian rim of the Pacific should give him fresh insights to share with our students during this week of spiritual emphasis. A missions brunch, evening chapel services, as well as the lengthening of morning chapel services always open the door to opportunities for great renewal among our student body and faculty.

Another special week later in February will be our Heritage Series, beginning on February 27 and ending March 3. We will be following the special 75th Anniversary theme for the Assemblies of God, "Review, Rejoice, Renew." One of our very special guests for chapel that week will be the Rev. G. Raymond Carlson, our General Superintendent of the Assemblies of God, from Springfield, Missouri. Bro.

Carlson will speak in the Thursday chapel on renewing our commitment to the task of world evangelization and the fulfillment of the great commission to preach the gospel and disciple believers. We anticipate a tremendous week as we take a look at some of the history of our movement and the challenges that lie ahead.

We also are reserving four days on our spring calendar for the Staley Lecture Series on March 28-31. Dr. Robert E. Cooley will be our guest lecturer from Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary in South Hamilton, Massachusetts. Bro. Cooley will be sharing on the theme, "Christians in An Urban Society: Ancient and Modern." His topics will include: 1. The Social World of the First Urban Christians; 2. The Social Context of Jesus' Ministry; 3. Urban Social Forms and Paul's Ministry; 4. Ordinary Christians in a Pagan World: A

Dr. Robert E. Cooley

View of Seven Congregations. Bro. Cooley will be drawing upon recent historical and archaeological studies of the first century in order to gain a better understanding of early Christianity in the New Testament. Bro. Cooley states, "we should be able from this study to draw out guidelines which will be applicable to our contemporary world which has become so urbanized."

Many other guest speakers have been with us in chapel in the fall semester and others will be ministering throughout the spring. We are thankful for the many local pastors, missionaries, district officers and youth directors, and other ministers who have made themselves available to minister in our chapels. Their input has a profound effect on our students' spiritual growth and preparation for future ministry.

Students Active In Ministries While At N.C.

Every year hundreds of students attend Northwest College preparing for ministry for the Lord. But this does not mean they are not in ministry while they are here. Our students can be found actively working for the Lord in local churches as well as through the various ministry groups and outreaches provided by N.C.

The local churches of our area are blessed with numerous college students using their talents to assist in sanctuary choirs, worship teams, Sunday School teaching, helping in other Christian Education programs (i.e.: Royal Rangers, Missionettes, etc.), and other various ministries. Many of our upper-classmen are involved in internships in Youth Ministries, Christian Education, or Pastoral Ministries. Hundreds of other students find their avenue of service through our six active student ministry groups. The Associated Student Body Vice-President for Student Ministries oversees the entire program with a student leader and a faculty advisor at the helm of each group. Active groups this year include Youth Ministry, Community Service Ministry, Children's Ministry, Prison Ministry, Evangelism Ministry, and Gospel Teams.

Youth Ministry

Students in the Youth Ministry outreach may be involved in ministry and interaction with youth in the context of the church youth group, a juvenile detention center, a teen drop-in center or other Christian or non-Christian youth programs. Many have been involved this year working with organized Christian groups on high school campuses such as Youth For Christ and Young Life. Others were involved with "Contact 88", which was a nationwide attempt to have groups of Christians praying on every high school campus in the United States.

N.C. students participate in "Contact 88" by joining in prayer at Lake Washington High School in Kirkland.

Community Service

The Community Service Ministry provides involvement in various kinds of community service activities such as rest home visitation and social welfare projects. Each week services are held at the Kirkland Convalescent Home where students participate in songleading, special music, testifying and preaching.

Prison Ministry leader, Tim Buckley, poses with an inmate--brothers in the Lord.

Children's Ministry

The Children's Ministry Group is structured to work jointly with local churches and organizations, providing assistance or outreach in Sunday School, nursery service, children's programs, home Bible clubs and Children's Orthopedic Hospital. This year students have been conducting children's meetings every Saturday morning at a local housing project. There has been a positive response from the parents of many children who come to sing, hear Bible stories, watch the puppets and learn from the clown as Christian truths are presented.

These children are enjoying a Bible story, told by Dawn Tienhaara.

Look at all the energy, even in the two N.C. students, Brent Ashpole and Tommy Pratt.

Prison Ministry

The very active Prison Ministry Group provides an opportunity for N.C. students to share Christ with Christian and non-Christian prisoners in the local prisons, jails, and work release centers. This is done through personal visitation and a prison pen-pal program. Much spiritual growth has been seen in some of the inmates who attend the weekly discipleship meeting and one of these men has been released and is now attending N.C. in preparation for full-time ministry.

Gospel Teams

Gospel Teams, usually consisting of three to five members, were selected early in the fall and have ministered in numerous churches and youth group services during the first semester. Our teams minister through music, drama and preaching, which provides great opportunity for experience in these areas of service. It seems we always have more requests for our Gospel Teams than we are able to fill. We are thankful for the interest of our pastors and youth workers in involving Gospel Teams in ministry to their people.

Gospel Teams, like "New Hope," often get an opportunity to minister in a N.C. chapel service as well as in local churches.

Over fifty students are involved in our two travelling choirs, King's Choralons and Northwest Sounds. One of these groups travels nearly every weekend from the middle of January to the beginning of May. As well as the weekend travel to local churches, these choirs each take an eleven day tour during Spring Break in March and an eight day tour after school is out in May. Their itinerary takes them to fifty-six churches in Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho.

These areas of ministry involvement are important times of spiritual growth for our students and provide ministry experience while they are here training for some further ministry later in life. We thank God for every life that has been touched through the efforts of our students in ministry.

Evangelism Ministry

The Evangelism Ministry encourages student participation in personal evangelism at various outreaches such as witnessing at the University District, Seattle Center, on the Washington State Ferries, or other areas. This year special interest has developed in reaching the street people in downtown Seattle. Every Friday night and Saturday afternoon two vans loaded with students "hit the streets" to share Christ with needy people. Efforts are also underway to provide blankets and warm clothing for the homeless.

Anna Pederson witnesses to a man in downtown Seattle.

Our students get many opportunities to share the Gospel to the needy people on the streets of Seattle.
