PROGRESS ON ACCREDITATION

Northwest College has taken a very significant step forward. In its last annual meeting, the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools recognized Northwest College as a candidate for accreditation. According to Executive Secretary of the Association, Dr. James F. Bemis, such candidacy indicates clearly that an institution is making steady progress towards accreditation.

In according this recognition, the Association recommends that credits be transferred from Northwest to any accredited institution. This is a distinct practical value of candidacy status.

In achieving this place of recognition in the higher education community, Northwest has accomplished much. The guidance and encouragement which resulted from self-study by the College, together with evaluation by outside educators, have greatly aided our institution along the path toward excellence. It is good to have objective evaluation, the citing of strengths and weaknesses and the pointing up of areas where progress can be made. Goals can be established and procedures set in motion towards their achievement. Thus the college develops strength and quality.

Northwest has long been accredited professionally by the Accrediting Association of Bible Colleges. This recognition has made possible a free flow of credits among Bible Colleges and it has afforded other practical values. In working towards this additional accreditation, the College is seeking an even broader base of academic acceptance and recognition.

As Northwest continues this pursuit of excellence, it will need the help of all of its alumni friends. It will need new friends too! Excellence has a price tag! Let all who believe in Northwest share in its development. Let all who dream of what it can be, contribute to its needs and promote it at every opportunity.

SUPERINTENDENT'S WEEK — JANUARY 26-30

Reverend R. J. Carlson, Northwest District Superintendent, will keynote the third annual Superintendent's Week on NC's campus. He will be speaking at the January 26 chapel. Reverend B. P. Wilson, Alaska superintendent, will be guest speaker on Tuesday; Reverend Earl Goodman, Montana superintendent, will be guest chapel speaker on Wednesday; Reverend Homer Walkup, superintendent of Southern Idaho, will be speaking in chapel on Thursday; and Reverend N. D. Davidson, Oregon District superintendent will be the guest chapel speaker on Friday. Interviews with prospective ministerial students from among the junior and senior classes will be conducted throughout the week. Luncheons will be scheduled with the various district superintendents and interested students.

Superintendent's Week is a significant activity that brings the Church and the college together, providing an important bridge into the ministry for those students who feel the call of God upon their lives.

NORTHWEST COLLEGE CAMPUS DAY —APRIL 3—

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN?

. . . in 1953

MISSIONS LEADER TO SPEAK

“Training leaders for the Pénecostal revival in Europe is not an option: it is a must! The key to the heart of Europe is college-trained preachers bearing the message of Pentecostal faith and experience,” states the Reverend Charles R. Greenaway, noted missions speaker for the General Council of the Assemblies of God. The field secretary for Europe, the Middle East, and Southern Asia, Mr. Greenaway will be guest speaker January 19-23, 9:15 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. daily at the Northwest College chapel.

Mr. Greenaway is one of four international field secretaries of the Assemblies of God

Foreign Missions Department who direct the work of the denomination's 1,000 missionaries in 82 foreign countries. He is a member of the church's Foreign Missions Administrative Committee and is responsible for all of the denomination's missionary activities in Europe, the Middle East, and Southern Asia. He often refers to his area of responsibility as “the history-packed nations from Portugal to Pakistan.”

Included in Mr. Greenaway's administrative direction are 143 missionaries involved in a wide range of missions activities such as direct evangelism, church planning, Bible schools and colleges, orphanages, printing, etc. Mr. Greenaway is president of the newly-founded Continental Bible College at Brussels, Belgium, and also is president of the Centurion Foundation Fund—a program of U.S. servicemen stationed in Europe who help support Assemblies of God missionary projects.

As founder and president of Europe's Continental Bible College, Mr. Greenaway has put a great amount of effort and time into supplying adequate leadership training for European ministers. Speaking for the European missionary staff, he said, “After many years of foreign ministry, we missionaries to the continent of Europe are facing the greatest challenge and cause to which we have ever committed ourselves.” Continental Bible College is a leadership school with a four-year terminal program.

One of the best-known of the Assemblies of God missionaries, Mr. Greenaway worked for many years in French-speaking countries before accepting his present position. His overseas ministry began in 1944 in Upper Volta, where he and his wife, Mary, worked among the Mossi tribe. In 1949 they went to Togo-Dahomey, where he served as field superintendent and principal of the Bible school.

For many years the country of Senegal with its four million largely unevangelized people was a special concern to Mr. Greenaway. In 1956 he obtained permission from the High Commissioner of French West Africa for the Assemblies of God to enter the country on a trial basis. The Greenaways were thus the first Assemblies of God missionaries to Senegal, where there is a thriving work today.

Beginning in 1960, Mr. Greenaway served in a special missions assignment as field representative for Global Conquest (now called Good News Crusades), and in 1962 he was appointed resident secretary of the Assemblies of God in Europe. His missionary experience in West Africa, and especially his proficiency in the French language, made him well suited for this position. In 1966 his responsibilities were broadened to include the Middle East and Southern Asia.

NEW RESIDENCE COMPLETION DATE — JANUARY 30

The new men's residence hall is scheduled to be completed on January 30. At that time the men students presently living in the Annex, and several who are now three to a room in Beatty Hall, will move into the new facility. The residence hall is designed to house 101 men attendants in studio-type rooms. The three story structure has a brick and stucco facing that blends with the existing men's residence. It is the final unit of the residence hall and dining complex originally planned for the campus. The new unit was constructed by Vaux Construction Company of Kirkland. Architects are Beckwith, Spangler, and Davis of Bellevue.

FACULTY MEMBERS WORK TOWARD ADVANCED DEGREES

Three Northwest College faculty members have recently completed academic work toward advanced degrees while five others are working in programs leading to the Ph. D. and/or the Master's degree.

Francis Thee, assistant professor of Bible, has been granted admission to candidacy for the Ph. D. degree at the University of Chicago. Professor Thee completed his residency requirements in Chicago while on sabbatical leave last year. He is being promoted to Associate Professor at the college as a result of receiving candidacy status. He indicates that his dissertation topic will be "Julius Africanus and the Kestoi." This study will deal with a work known as the Kestoi written by Africanus, a contemporary of Origen, one of the church fathers who lived about the third century.

Dean Jack Rozell is completing residence requirements for his Master's degree in education and counselling at Seattle University.

Miss Margaret Garman, college librarian, is completing work for the Master's degree in Library Science at the University of Washington.

Three other faculty members are pursuing Ph. D. programs at the University of Washington. These are Mr. Donald Tarno, instructor in speech; Mr. Robert Swaffield, special instructor in music; and Mrs. Doris Olson, special instructor in English. Miss Esther Dine is nearing completion of her Master's degree in business education at Seattle Pacific College.

CAMPUS ARTPIECE COMPLETED

Designer Kenton Pies' "Reaching Arms" fountain was recently set in place near the Learning Center. The fountain rises to a height of almost nine feet with water flowing from a flower-bud center. It depicts the "arms of man" reaching to God to receive His "living water."

The new campus artpiece will be illuminated at night. It is surrounded by a recessed patio that is intersected by the primary walkway connecting the lower and upper campus. Patio benches are anchored in cement and the entire setting will be framed by a yet-to-be-completed landscaped perimeter.

The fountain, a gift purchased by the Northwest College Lay Council, will be dedicated in special ceremonies next April. The area is sure to be a favorite gathering place of the students.

THE KING'S CHORALONS CHOIR WILL PRESENT CONCERTS THROUGHOUT WESTERN WASHINGTON AND OREGON THIS SPRING

The 1970 edition of the King's Choralons begin their concert ministry next month. The thirty-one voice organization is under the direction of Miss Dorothy Amundsen. Choir members hail from the states of Washington, Oregon, Alaska, California, Idaho, and Montana. In the group are two ASB officers, the Associated Women's Students vice-president, sophomore class secretary, three basketball team members, editor of the student newspaper, and the pep club president.

Their program includes a wide variety of music. The group will be heard in numerous concerts beginning February 13 and continuing until the conclusion of the academic year. March 20-29 the King's Choralons will be ministering in a concert tour through the state of Oregon. They will also be featured at Homecoming, the Lay Council, and other on-campus functions.

ATHENS INCLUDED IN SEMINAR ITINERARY

Athens has been called "School mistress" of Europe. Named for Athena, goddess of wisdom, the city symbolized the Greeks' quest for wisdom — a wisdom which the Apostle Paul characterized as non-receptive to the claims of the Gospel of Christ (I. Cor. 1:18).

Three locations within the walls of the ancient city stand today as monuments of fallen splendor. The Acropolis is the citadel, rising up abruptly 512 feet like a huge plateau-rock. Atop it are the strewn ruins of temples—no doubt those toward which the Apostle Paul gestered as he proclaimed on near-by Mars Hill, "God dwelleth not in temples made with hands." (Acts 17:24). Acclaimed by some as the ancient world's most beautiful and architecturally perfect building is the Parthenon—dedicated to the worship of Athena, whose flesh-colored statue once stood inside the "holy place" of this stately building.

The second precinct of the ancient city is that referred to in Acts as the "market-place" where the Apostle Paul "reasoned" with his hearers concerning the claims of the Gospel. As our Flying Seminarians stand atop Mars Hill, just below the Acropolis, they will gain an excellent view of the configuration of ancient streets, stoas, temples, and squares which provided the setting in which the Apostle gave witness.

It was from here that he was hailed into the third precinct—the Hill of Ares (Greek) or Mar's Hill (Roman name). Here were the chambers of the Areopagus—a council which heard and licensed religious teachers. On this windy, low-lying hill, the Apostle gave forth one of the most masterful orations to be recorded in the New Testament. Today beside the stone carved steps at the base of this famous hill, there is engraved in the Greek language, Paul's address given on that memorable day. It seems to suggest that throughout the ages of time, the only thing that abides is the Word of God.

CAMPUS PAPER MAKES DEBUT

The first publication of CAMPUS VISTA made its appearance recently. A four-page printed tabloid, the CAMPUS VISTA is said to be the most sophisticated publication of its kind ever to be published by NC students. Co-editors of the paper are Mr. Doug Shaw of Calcutta, India, and Mr. Vern Peterson, whose parents are missionaries in the Dominican Republic.

The paper is the third such series to be published by students during the college's 35-year history. The COURIER was published approximately twenty years ago. The second time a campus paper was published was approximately ten years ago. It was known as the STAR.

Faculty sponsor for the CAMPUS VISTA is Mr. Jack Dorwart, a member of the English department faculty.

NORTHWEST YOUTH CHOIR RECENTLY HOSTED ON CAMPUS

Approximately 140 young persons coming from throughout the Northwest District were recent guests on NC's campus. The Northwest District CA Department conducted its annual choir recording session December 29-31. Reverend Al Baunsgard coordinated the activities and spearheaded this significant youth outreach ministry. The students were billeted on campus and were provided their meals in the college cafeteria.

ALUMNI HOMECOMING

Naming of Faculty Building — 1969

The annual Alumni Homecoming activities will include a number of interesting events for all the returning former students and graduates of Northwest College.

A special chapel service begins at 10:00 a.m. The guest speaker will be the Reverend Elwood Irby (Class of '52), pastor of the First Assembly of God in Milwaukie, Oregon. This service will also include the crowning of the 1970 homecoming queen.

A "Meet Your Friends" luncheon is slated for the noon hour. It will provide opportunity for fellowship with former friends and members of the faculty. Afternoon entertainment will consist of recreation activities in the Pavilion and/or campus area.

Highlighting the day will be the Alumni Banquet at 7:15 p.m. The program includes music from the King's Choralons; music featuring a "resurrected" singing group of former years; and the presentation of the homecoming queen and her court. Alumnus of the Year awards will be made as well as the presentation of Alumni scholarship awards to two deserving junior students. A special feature of the program will be the showing of some "yester-year" movies of classes taken by the late Eugene V. Bronson.

1969 Homecoming Queen and her Court

Following the banquet, the alumni will join students at the homecoming basketball game between the Northwest College Eagles and the Bible Standard College of Eugene.
