NORTHWEST COLLEGE

CALVARY . . .

Where Flying Seminar will visit in March 1973

From The President

Here Is A Choice Investment With Double Returns

There is a great opportunity available to you at Northwest College. You can now invest your savings with the College and earn a fine interest return—6%—and at the same time know that your investment is helping to train young Christian men and women for the ministry and other careers in Christian service.

Too good to be true?

No!

Here's how: Arrange to invest an amount of your savings—$500, $1,000, $5,000—with the College Endowment Fund. You will receive a certificate from the College bearing 6% interest payable annually. Your investment will be backed by all the reserves and net assets of the College.

Your investment will be included with all funds which the College has like yours and re-invested. Through continuing investments in large amounts and following wise investment counsel, the College will be able to realize a gain in its returns above the interest paid. This gain will become a part of the endowment earnings of the College and go to subsidize the education of the youth at Northwest.

Thus, you gain in your investment over the normal interest rate paid in savings accounts and the young people at Northwest gain through an increased endowment of their education. And you share in the privilege of assisting them in their education!

Experience shows that this kind of endowment program can be most significant over a period of time.

I invite you—friend of Northwest College—to investigate this opportunity now. For further helpful information, contact my office or the office of H. W. Crowder, Development Director, P. O. Box 579, Kirkland, Wash. 98033.

NC PROF AWARDED PH.D.

Dr. Robert Swaffield, Associate Professor of Music at Northwest College, was awarded the Ph.D. degree in Systematic Musicology by the University of Washington on October 27, College President, Dr. D. V. Hurst announced.

Dr. Swaffield is the first of seven Northwest College professors in doctoral candidacy to complete his work and receive his degree. It was noted.

Dr. Swaffield's dissertation was completed in a technical area of research and carried the official title, "The Effects of Certain Melodic Parameters upon the Ability to make fine tuning responses in Context." In layman's terms, Dr. Swaffield explained that the study concerns the problems involved in singing or playing in tune. In order to test the idea, he conducted an experiment at Northwest College using 25 students as subjects. He reported that the experiment was "very successful" and that the results were not only conclusive but highly practical."

At the College, Dr. Swaffield teaches Music Theory and directs two choral groups, one mixed choral traveling group, and the College Choir. Mr. Swaffield received the B.A. degree from the University of Alberta; the Master of Music from the University of Montana and the Associate in Music from the University of Saskatchewan. He has served on the Northwest College faculty since 1969.

DR. HURST AUTHORS NEW BOOKLET

Northwest College president, Dr. D. V. Hurst is the author of a newly published book, published by the Gospel Publishing House, entitled, Spiritual Life—God's Gift. The book is one of what is called a Christian mini-book series authored by leaders and scholars in the Assemblies of God denomination. The series encompasses nine books in all selected from "outstanding previously published articles and small books covering a variety of subjects related to the Holy Spirit, according to a headquarters news release from General Council offices in Springfield, Missouri.

GORDON'S CALVARY

Just north of the Damascus Gate in the Old City of Jerusalem is a hillock with a precipitous facing that bears a striking resemblance to a skull.

One evening General Charles Gordon sat in the Jerusalem home of the famous missionary family of Mrs. Bertha Spafford Vester (whose father wrote the words of the well-known hymn "It is well with my Soul" after several members of the family were lost in the sinking of the Titanic. As he studied the landscape from over the wall, suddenly he was struck with the realization that the little hillock bore a striking resemblance to the appearance of the skull. As he studied the Scriptures, he was again struck by the statement describing the crucifixion of Jesus in John 19:16, 17—"Then delivered he Him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led Him away. And He bearing His cross went forth into a place called the Place of the Skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha." (Latin: Cranium of skull).

General Gordon reasoned that if this be Calvary, then there must be a tomb nearby. He organized an excavation, and turned up what is today called, The Garden Tomb, a rock-hewn tomb in a garden at the base of the knoll and about 50 paces to the west. Since then the place has been called Gordon's Calvary, and is considered by many to be a viable alternative to the traditional site of Golgotha marked by the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, though the preponderance of archaeological opinion favors the latter.

The visitor to Gordon's Calvary will be impressed by the natural simplicity and beauty that it communicates. The warm evangelical message that emanates in this place cannot but be impressive. Wherever Calvary might have been, when our Lord was crucified, nearly two thousand years ago, this place will illustrate the kind of setting it must have been, and it echoes the message of the Gospels most assuredly, "He is not here; He is risen!" Luke 24:6.

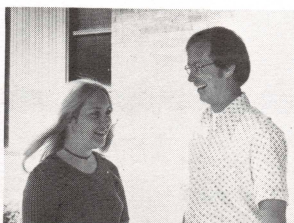

It will be of special interest to Assemblies of God people to know that this famous lady, the late Mrs. Vester (who founded the American Colony Hospital, Hotel, and Orphanage in Jerusalem) was a cousin to a gentleman who, together with his family, is a member of one of our Assemblies of God Churches in the Northwest District. She was featured in the National Geographic Magazine several years ago. It was from the roof of her home within the walls of the Old City that General Gordon made his discovery.

Flying seminarians will visit Gordon's Calvary as well as the famous Church of the Holy Sepulchre, now within the walls of Jerusalem, when they visit Israel March 12-29. For information, write or contact President D. V. Hurst (P. O. Box 579, Kirkland, Wa. 98033 or telephone 822-8266).

Dr. Fischer (center) greets Daniel C. Anderson, Jr. C. A., from North Dakota, and Mary Luice, Miss C. A. from Bridgeport, Washington. Both were awarded $150 scholarships.

DR. C.M. BISHOP PASSES

Dr. Crawford M. Bishop, former faculty member at Northwest College passed away on October 5 in Seattle. He served on the college faculty between 1953 and 1959, teaching in the fields of missions, languages, and Sociology. He is the father of former Academic Dean at the College, the Reverend Dr. M. Bishop, now pastoring in Lansing, Michigan.

Pursuant to his retirement in 1959, Dr. Bishop became a member of the Northwest College Lay Council, and it was only within recent weeks that he donated a substantial part of his library to the College. He survived the loss of his wife on October 10th—one year ago, and on October 5th joined her in eternal reward.

Oregon Pastor Alumnus Comes Home

Salem, Oregon pastor-evangelist, the Reverend Denny Davis, a graduate of Northwest College in the Class of 1956, came back to the campus as guest of the college for the Fall Quarter Spiritual Emphasis Week speaker, October 2-6. "This has been one of the happiest weeks of my life," Pastor Davis told a filled chapel of students and faculty on the concluding night of the series. After 16 years of absence from the campus, he commented several times during the week on the spirit of unity and spiritual quality he found on the campus.

Commenting on Pastor Davis' ministry at the college, College President, Dr. D. V. Hurst, cited that faculty and students' comments on the sharp focus of "relevancy" in his preaching directed to the needs of young people today. The response of the students and faculty to the week's series was attested by their high level of voluntary attendance at the evening services, as well as to the overt response in the services themselves.

One of the high points of the week will be remembered as the evening when fourteen of the students received the infilling of the Holy Spirit and when an even greater number received a refilling of the Spirit. Equally important to this high point were evidences of commitment and alignment with the principles of the Word of God pertaining to the great issues of life and to personal decisions relating to them.

Summer PR Teams Hold Inspirational Rally

An A.S.B. Inspirational Rally was held early in the fall term featuring those Public Relations Teams which travelled during the summer. Gospel singing was interspersed with testimonies of praise to God. The three teams carried their musical ministry to 119 churches and 1 summer camps, reaching nearly 14,000 persons in attendance.

Students Hear Speakers Tell of World Scene

A former All-American College basketball star from Missouri, an insurance executive and hamburger king from Texas, an Assemblies of God District Superintendent from Montana, a University campus minister from Michigan State University, and a missionary from Tanzania, Africa, all were pulpit guests at Northwest College recently.

Students heard the Reverend Forest Arnold, former basketball star at Memphis State University and now Athletic Director at Central Bible College tell the moving account of how he became a minister of the Gospel.

Traveling in the Northwest District under the auspices of the Men's Fellowship of the Assemblies of God, was Insurance Executive from Texas, Mr. Sam Jordan. Students heard him give his observations of what is transpiring spiritually among the youth of the country today. Mr. Jordan, who flies his own plane, is a popular lay speaker and travels nationally to speak at conferences and rallies. Assemblies of God Superintendent Robert Brandt, of Billings, Montana, was a familiar pulpit guest to Northwest students. He presently serves as chairman of the College Board of Directors. The Reverend J. Seregow told students about the scene of a nation's public college and university campuses—a scene which he has found to be one of the most challenging fields of ministry in the present day. He told students that he views the present time as the "lull before the storm," and that the opportunity for evangelism is great.

ism among university students has never been greater.

Another current-scene report came from the Reverend Delmar Kingswriter, 17-year missionary from Tanzania, Africa. Missionary Kingswriter told students of the fast pace of change on the mission field. He said that a missionary on the field five years ago would be out of touch with current missionary methods. He sees the development of communications technology as offering one of the greatest tools for evangelism and training that Christian missions have ever seen—he cited the coming development of the video tape cassette. He sees missions fields as becoming something more than indigenous "holding patterns" but aggressive outreach enterprises staffed by nationals, who will evangelize not only their own countries but other countries throughout the world.

24 UNITS FOR MARRIED STUDENTS

The Board of Directors approved the purchase of ten acres adjacent to the present campus, near the Butterfield Chapel. Soon after the acquisition of the property, which enlarges the campus by nearly 30%, the NC Planning Commission voted to build housing for married students on the southeast section of the new site. Completion is tentatively scheduled for September 1, 1973.

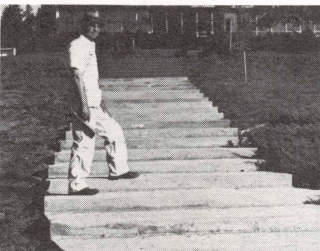

ALUMNI SEE FILMS OF YESTERYEARS

Several NC alumni met for some very pleasant fellowship following the PRS-ing-spiration Rally September 29. Alumni President Richard Strum threaded films of 1942, 1952, and 1962. He announced Homecoming Days were being planned for May 24-25 and that donations are needed for the Scholarship Fund. Two scholarships of $250 each are awarded annually by the alumni.

The Annual All-School Bonfire was the setting for sharing personal testimonies. Lights from the city of Seattle across Lake Washington are clearly visible.
