THE FUTURE OF OUR CHURCH

During the past several weeks it has been my privilege to have had contact with many of the student leaders on campus. It has reinforced for me the importance and value of Christian higher education.

What a delight it is to watch these young people mature and take on new responsibilities. These leadership qualities will be used for the glory of God out in our churches in the near future.

An important question comes to mind as I rejoice in what God is doing in these lives—who would be training these young people if N.C. didn't exist? Where would our church be here in the Northwest if N.C. were not here?

The question is hard to answer, but the importance of Christian Education makes emphatic impressions on one when I consider the continued secular trends in society and the materialistic and humanistic preconceptions in education in general. Pressures towards the mere humanization of man are everywhere.

Today's young people are ready to accept challenges and opportunities in all areas of Christian service. We try to add to this the fine Christian principles and values that will help them grow in their Christian experience and lay foundations for a fruitful life of service, should Jesus tarry. It's one thing to rush into some form of ministry for a few years in youthful enthusiasm, but quite another to train in a disciplined setting for a whole life of service. The latter is not so glamorous, perhaps, but it does offer the results and rewards of a whole life given to God with a maximum development of one's talents and gifts. It seems to me this is what Jesus emphasized repeatedly as He taught.

These facts continue to move me to do what I can to assist young people as they seek for God's will in their lives. Jake Hershman, a fine Assemblies of God layman and chief of the Institutional Eligibility unit in the Office of Education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said, "The future of our church is in the hands of our Bible Colleges." I believe he's right. That's why I'm here at N.C!

Professors Promoted

Dr. D.V. Hurst has announced that the college's Board of Directors, have confirmed the status of Full Professor on two N.C. teachers. They are Dr. Daniel B. Pecota, teacher of Theology and Bible, and part of the N.C. faculty since 1958 and Dr. Robert Swaffield, teacher of music since 1969. The status of full professor is the highest position that an instructor can earn and is considered a singular honor in the academic field.

Placement

Many pastors are coming on campus to interview seniors for positions in their churches. The college provides a conference room and handles the scheduling for the pastors. Areas of special interest seem to be youth, Christian Education, and music.

Northwest College, with the able help of Dean of Admissions Amos Millard, has developed a fine program for placement. Above, Northwest District Superintendent, Rev. Frank McAllister and Northwest District Secretary-Treasurer, Rev. Clifford Hobson interview some interested students.

New Music Major

The Board of Directors of Northwest has authorized the administration to add to our offering the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Sacred Music. Dr. Swaffield, head of our music department, has now completed the necessary planning and development of the requirements for the major. The music requirements total 73 quarter credits in addition to the general studies and religion requirements.

It is our feeling that this new offering will meet a growing need among our churches. A student graduating with this major will be able to step into any church situation and feel competent.

The program begins officially in the fall.

Church Receives $120,000 Gift

One of our Assemblies of God churches recently received a gift of $120,000. Within the past few years, many gifts of various sizes have been made to our Assemblies.

Many church members have become aware of their opportunity to make an important gift to their church, the College, foreign missions and Home missions, through proper estate planning.

Northwest College, through its Department of Stewardship, has made available to local churches and members, the services of H.W. Crowder, Director of Development, for seminars to educate their members in the preparation of wills, trusts, guardianship, probate, estate tax and estate distribution.

The seminar also deals with tithes, cash gifts, giving through insurance, budgeting and the handling of one's finances.

Many churches and members have already utilized the services of Mr. Crowder to plan their estate, to protect their families and to save estate taxes at decease and make charitable gifts. You may have a seminar in your church upon request.

Winter Spiritual Emphasis Speaker

Reverend Otis Keener ministering at our Winter Spiritual Emphasis Week. This is our annual missions convention in which a prominent figure in the field of missions is invited to minister. The response to Reverend Keener's ministry was excellent and his challenging messages will long be remembered.

The panel shown above concluded a faculty sponsored series on "Christian Ministry". Dr. Pecota was the coordinator for the series in which Dr. Hurst, Dr. Rozell, Dean Millard, and Professor Thee each ministered.

Superintendents' Week A Success

Superintendents' Week brought Reverend Robert Brandt, superintendent of Montana,

Dr. N.D. Davidson, superintendent of Oregon, and Reverend W.R. Leisy of Alaska.

Hospital Workshop

The Counseling Department of Northwest College in Kirkland, Washington and the Chaplain's Service of the Veterans Administration Hospital in Seattle recently co-sponsored a Pastor's Workshop in "Professional Preparation for Ministry to the Terminally Ill and Their Families". This is the second workshop the College and the Hospital have sponsored.

Milton Whitaker, Protestant Chaplain at the V.A. Hospital, was the workshop leader. The program included both theoretical and practical training in the hospital setting. Topics for the three-day workshop included, "Come Walk With Me", "Three Faces of Death", "The Therapeutic Use of Scripture" and others. Participants were able to take the work on a credit or non-credit status.

Jack Rozell, D.Min., the Director of the College Counseling Program, indicated that pastors and wives from the immediate area and some from distances as far away as Montana were enrolled. He stated that the workshop is an expression of the interest of the College to use its resources to assist the minister in continuing his education and developing his skills. Information about future workshops is available by calling the College.

The next one is scheduled for April 12. The topic is "Alcoholism" and the speaker is Roger Butz, M.D.

Whole Man Seminar

The Counseling Department under the direction of Dr. Jack Rozell is sponsoring a Whole Man seminar June 7-9. Dr. Roger Butz will give a complete physical examination, Reverend Fulton Buntain, will minister to the spiritual side of man, and Dr. Rozell will administer psychological testing. At this point, it appears that the enrollment is full. If you are interested, you should contact Dr. Rozell about possible cancellations.

Teacher Reports

Jack Dorwart, Christian Classics teacher, reports on the evening class, "As this winter quarter draws to a close, the first quarter the Christian Classics course was offered at Northwest College, I find the students' interest continuing to grow in their study of St. Augustine and Dante. Although meeting once a week makes heavy demands on students and teacher alike, I think we all found an area of concentration which encouraged us in our reading. The class was small enough to share our thoughts and our interests. Augustine seemed to be favored over Dante, but anyone who knows The Divine Comedy can understand that.

Augustine's Confessions is a more direct book since it is unabashedly autobiographical, whereas in Dante's work, the reader must have a comparable historical and literary background. I look forward to next year when two other Christian scholars and artists will be studied. For any who might be interested they are Erasmus and Pascal."

Alcohol Seminar

Dr. Jack Rozell, director of the Counseling Department, is sponsoring a very meaningful and needed workshop April 13. The workshop will deal with the subject of alcoholism and will feature Dr. Roger Butz, head of the medical staff of the Safeco Insurance Company. The workshop is open to all who are interested, but pre-registration will be required.

E.C.E. Conference

"Teaching the Lollipop Generation" is the theme of the upcoming ECE conference to be held at NC on May 1, 1976. The registration fee is $10 for the entire day, which includes lunch in the college cafeteria and a registration packet with workshop handouts.

Northwest Basketball

The Northwest basketball team wrapped up their season with a fourth place finish in the Northwest Regional of the National Little College Athletic Association February 26, 27, and 28 in Portland. The Eagles won their Thursday night game to advance to the semi-finals of the tournament, only to lose Friday and again Saturday in the consolation game.

Thursday, the Eagles revenged three earlier losses to Puget Sound College of the Bible by thumping them 94-71.

Friday, the Northwest quint played about as poorly as they had played brilliantly the night before. Concordia College of Portland blasted the Eagles 90-62, although the game was within reach until early in the second half. The Northwest team shot a frigid 30% from the field and Randy Billings' twelve points were the team high.

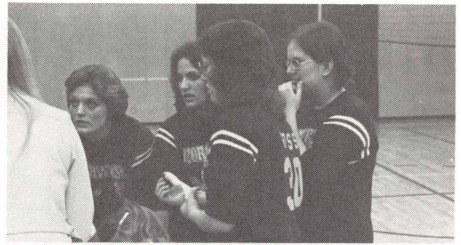

In Saturday's contest, Northwest battled Multnomah School of the Bible right to the wire, only to lose 77-75. This was a practically perfectly even game statistically—with Multnomah making one more field goal than Northwest, as both teams committed 24 fouls and both teams converted 15 free throws. Northwest was led by senior forward Steve Hunt with 18 points and 14 rebounds.

Particularly gratifying to Coach Carl Kinney was the selection of Steve Hunt to the first five of the all tournament squad, despite the Eagles' fourth place finish.

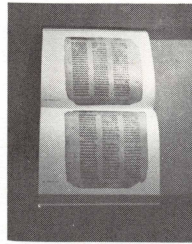

The season record for the Northwest five finished at 12 wins and 19 losses, with the loss of 6 players from this year's squad through graduation or transfer to other schools.

WHAT KIND OF STUDENT GOES TO NORTHWEST COLLEGE?

Many kinds, of course, but basically serious-minded, goal-oriented Christian students. Future leaders in our denominational affairs, business, government, law, education, etc. Those concerned with the great issues of our day; issues that go beyond the secular to the spiritual. Those who know that Christ is the only answer to the needs of mankind. Those with ability and the will to invest the work needed to prepare for a life of high achievement for Christ in a very complex society.

Students attend who are only interested in receiving their A.A. degree and then move on for study in other fields. Others are here to receive their B.A. in Bible Literature, Christian Education, Religion & Philosophy, Missions or Sacred Music. All of these help prepare one for some type of meaningful Christian Service.

The student who attends Northwest discovers that the learning environment is highly personal with professors who are genuinely interested in them. He will find a Christian atmosphere.

The painter as he puts on the finishing touches at the library. Dedication has been set for April 10 in conjunction with the annual Lay Council meetings. The building will be put into use for the fall quarter thus giving the staff the summer in which to make the big move.

This is the new board room which is part of the Library. There are places in the building that makes one ask if it will be ready for the April 10 dedication. I doubt if we need to worry.
