INAUGURATION OF NEW PRESIDENT OCTOBER 6th

The Reverend D. V. Hurst will be inaugurated as Northwest College's third president at special inaugural ceremonies set for 10 a.m., Thursday, Oct. 6, in the College Chapel, the College Inaugural Committee announced.

Bringing the inaugural address will be Dr. Thomas F. Zimmerman, General Superintendent of the Assemblies of God, Springfield, Mo. Dr. Zimmerman's participation as inaugural speaker is seen to have significance not only in that he is the denomination's top official but in the fact that President Hurst was closely associated with him as assistant in two of the three posts in which he served while working at the denominational headquarters in Springfield during the last 15 years.

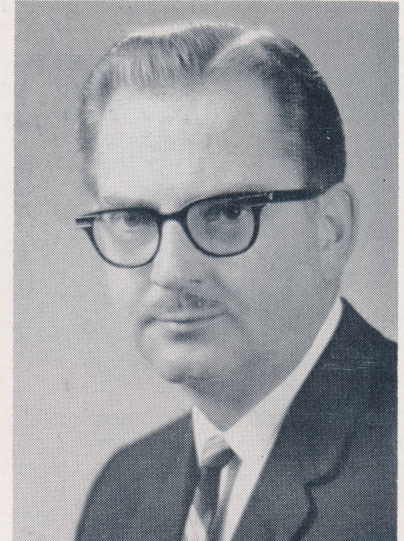

According to advanced information on the theme of his inaugural address, Dr. Zimmerman is expected to touch on the changing world scene as it relates to the missionary and educational outreach of the Assemblies of God denomination with its over one-half million U. S. members and its extensive constituency abroad. The theme is seen to be particularly relevant to the college in the light of its record of having trained over 200 missionaries and several hundred pastors and laymen during its 32-year history.

The inauguration, which is being planned and sponsored by the college's board of directors, will be held in conjunction with a special meeting of the board on the campus. Special guests for the occasion will be the college's two former presidents—Dr. Henry H. Ness of Hayward, Calif., founder of the college, and Dr. Charles E. Butterfield, who served as the college's president from 1949 until his recent retirement in June of this year. The inaugural committee reports that the guest list also will include District and General Council denominational officials, ministers, lay representatives, representatives from other institutions of higher learning and learned societies, as well as alumni, the church constituency, and the general public.

Plans call for the investment of office to be administered by the Reverend N. D. Davidson, chairman of the board of directors of the college. Reverend Davidson is also executive presbyter of the General Council of the As-semblies of God from the Northwest Region and is district superintendent of the Oregon District of the Assemblies of God.

An inaugural luncheon is being planned for special guests of the college following the inauguration.

Coming to the college as its third president at the commencement of the college's thirty-third year of history, President Hurst brings with him a religious, educational, and administrative background, which is seen to be significant in relation to the historical character and educational purposes of the College.

A native of Annandale, Minn., the Reverend Mr. Hurst was reared in the manse of a pioneer Assemblies of God minister, the Reverend Wesley R. Hurst, Sr. His brother, the Reverend Wesley R. Hurst, Jr., is a well-known missionary executive in the Foreign Missions Department of the Assemblies of God.

President Hurst received his theological training at North Central Bible College in Minneapolis, where he was graduated in 1944. He thereupon enrolled in Sioux Falls College (South Dakota) where he earned his bachelors degree (cum laude) in 1947. His most recent academic work was completed at Drury College in Springfield, Mo., where he earned his Master of Education degree. During his academic career, Mr. Hurst received several honors including being

SEPTEMBER 26 SIGNALS 33rd YEAR AT COLLEGE

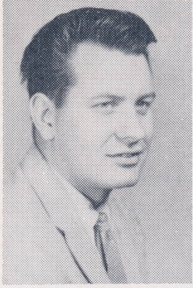

September 26 will mark the beginning of the thirty-third year at Northwest College of the Assemblies of God. The new school year will commence with two days of orientation, get-acquainted activities, and registration for new students during which time upper-classmen will also be registering for fall quarter classes. Initial social event of the new school year is expected to be what has become a tradition on the campus—a fireside singspiration, sponsored by the Associated Student Body. Purpose of the singspiration is to welcome new students and to provide an initial occasion for them to get acquainted with their classmates who will be returning to the campus.

School bells will resound over the campus for the first time calling classes together on Wednesday, Sept. 28. When Friday of the first week arrives, the faculty will host new students on the campus at a reception—another campus tradition.

The registrar's office announced that a new registration and class card system will be inaugurated starting this fall. It will utilize a single registration form made up into a carbon multiple and provides for a punched data processing system. The system is common-

NEW FACULTY BRING SPIRITUAL BACKGROUNDS

J. Philip Gustafson

Jack Dorwart

Lewis Wilson

Esther Dine

The four new faculty members who will be joining the Northwest College faculty this year will bring to the campus not only professional training, but some significant spiritual backgrounds as well, College President D. V. Hurst observed recently.

Coming to the college as an assistant professor in English is Jack Dorwart. It was while a student at Central Bible College in Springfield, Mo., that Brother Dorwart testifies he received a call from God to prepare himself to teach English in the interest of contributing communicative skills to young men and women preparing themselves for the ministry. Pursuant to his graduation from CBC, Brother Dorwart enrolled in Bradley University of Peoria, Ill., where he has recently completed his work for his Master's degree in English. He was a teaching assistant while enrolled at the University.

Bringing to the campus a significant missionary background will be Associate Professor Lewis Wilson. He will be professor of history and missions at the college when he joins the staff in January of next year. Brother Wilson directed a mission school in South Africa from 1959 to 1963. He taught at Bethany College from 1954-57. His family background is well-rooted in the Pentecostal movement. Brother Wilson's father is assistant district superintendent of the Northern California District of the Assemblies of God. Two members of his family relationship are currently on the faculty of Bethany Bible College in Santa Cruz, and his uncle, the Reverend B. P. Wilson, formerly a pastor in the Northwest District is now superintendent of the Alaska District of the Assemblies of God and is well known to many in the Northwest District. Professor Wilson is currently completing

Dorm Completion Near

The new wing to the Mollie J. Perks Residence Hall will be completed by a target date of Sept. 15, it was indicated today at the College. The new structure, which will house an additional 100 women students, is being readied for occupancy for the fall quarter, which will commence on Sept. 26. Basically the new structure is of the same design as the existing wing, but will include some additional space for group gatherings and new apartment facilities for the dorm hostess. It will be carpeted throughout. The new facility will increase the on-campus facilities for single students to approximately 300 students.

Some remodeling will be done in the cafeteria to add a second serving lane as a means of stepping up the service capacity under anticipated increased student enrollments.

his doctoral studies at the University of California in Berkeley.

Another new member of the Northwest faculty whose spiritual background is rooted in Pentecost is Assistant Professor Philip Gustafson, who will teach chemistry and math at the college next year. Brother Gustafson's father is the Reverend Carl Gustafson, a well-known pastor of the Northwest District who ministered in the area for a considerable time. Brother Gustafson received his training at Oregon State University and has been engaged in high school education in Oregon for the past nine years.

The fourth new member of the Northwest faculty will be Miss Esther Dine who comes to the Northwest from near Denver, Colo. Miss Dine indicates that her dedication to the cause of Christian education was born of a conviction which the Lord gave her while she was a student at Evangel College. Reared in an Assemblies of God home, Sister Dine was attracted to Evangel College because of its Christian character as well as its academic offerings. She completed her Bachelor of Business Administration there in 1963 and then gave initial fulfillment to her call to teach business within the framework of Christian education at Canyonville Bible Academy in Oregon where she has been for the past three years.

Faculty procurement is recognized by educators as one of the problematic areas in educational administration today. At Northwest College the requirements for faculty personnel involve not only professional and academic competence, but also spiritual qualities and Christian dedication thus giving distinction to the training offered at Northwest College.

Bullock Appointed

Warren Bullock of Salem, Oregon, has been appointed as new general public relations representative for the college.

Mr. Bullock has served as field representative for the college in Oregon since September of last year. In his new assignment he will move to the campus to carry out an expanded portfolio of public relations work. Among the various duties which he will assume will be general publicity for the college, student recruitment, field itinerary development including traveling choral groups from the college, and publicity literature production.

Mr. Bullock is an alumnus of the college. He graduated from the college with honors (Magna Cum Laude) earning his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1964 and subsequently his Bachelor of Theology degree in 1965. He was accorded membership in the Delta Epsilon Chi Honor Society at the time of his graduation. The Society is the honor society among accredited Bible Colleges in the United States and Canada.

During his student days, the Reverend Mr. Bullock served as Christian service coordinator at the college. He was student body president for the school year 1962-63, and served as assistant pastor of the Brighton Tabernacle Assemblies of God Church in Seattle. The son of Pastor and Mrs. R. A. Bullock of Sheridan, Ore., Mr. Bullock is married to the former Judy Versolenko who was raised in the manse of another well-known Oregon pastor—the late Reverend Fred Versolenko of Salem. Since their marriage in February of 1966 the Bullocks have resided in Salem, Ore., from which point he carried on his field work for the college. He also did evangelistic work in the Oregon District during the past year. The Reverend Mr. Bullock is a licensed minister with the Oregon District of the Assemblies of God.

President Hurst Cited For Service at Headquarters

Northwest College President Reverend D. V. Hurst recently revealed a citation given him by the Executive Presbytery of the General Council of the Assemblies of God for his 15 years of service to the denomination in its headquarters. President Hurst served in three departments of the denominational headquarters during his 15-year tenure there. Going to Springfield in 1951 he worked initially in the National Sunday School Department; then in the Radio Department; and most recently he served as coordinator of the Spiritual Life and Evangelism Commission, in which capacity he worked directly out of the office of Gen. Supt. Dr. T. F. Zimmerman.

The certificate of appreciation expresses the denomination's "deepest gratitude for his contribution to the world-wide ministry of the Assemblies of God."

NORTHWEST COLLEGE

and the Bible

"If it's the Bible you want, then it's 'X' school you want." This slogan has sometimes been adopted by certain schools to call attention to their Bible emphasis. But could this be said of Northwest College? The facts answer with a resounding, "Yes"

Surveys have been made at the school to determine if the Bible is a prominent part of the curriculum as it was during what is often referred to as our "Bible Institute" days. The "gist" of these studies show that students at Northwest today receive the most concentrated studies in Bible, Theology, and "skill" courses relating to communication of the Gospel that the College has ever offered. The Registrar's office indicates that invariably students who previously attended the College during its Bible Institute days will be required to take additional Bible in order to meet today's stepped up requirements in this most important field.

Moreover the number of hours of study available in these fields has significantly increased over what they were when Northwest College was known singularly as a Bible Institute. The addage that statistics "speak for themselves" can be demonstrated at this point. Our first catalog published by the College when it was known as Northwest Bible Institute shows an equivalent total of 34 quarter hours of Bible offered for the three-year Bible Institute program. It also shows that students took 54 hours of general education as part of their curriculum. Today the College offers 116 hours of Bible, representing an increase of 341%. In 1946—when the school had reached its most developed stage as a Bible Institute and just before the introduction of the four-year degree programs—the total hours of Bible had increased to 96. Today the College's offerings in Bible exceed this figure by 20%.

Not only has the number of courses and total hours of Bible courses increased during the several decades of the school's history, but the intensity of the instructional program has significantly increased. Whereas, in the earlier days, courses were conducted on largely a lecture basis with little outside reading and research by the students, today courses in Bible are taught with the same academic rigidity as other college level courses. Also the class periods themselves are 50 minutes in length instead of the 40 minutes as they formerly were. Today our students are not only schooled in the content of the Bible, but are "tooled" with the requisite skills and materials for continuing Biblical scholarship and communication once they get out of school. Hence we can confidently say that our Bible College students today receive more extensive and more intensive training in the Bible than at any time in the school's history.

The number of different curricula (or courses) for the training of ministers, missionaries, Christian education workers, and other special ministries has increased from a single program in the early days of the school to a total of seven such curricula in the Bible College and one in the Junior College. Hence more programs of specialization in which Bible and related courses form the core curriculum are available in the College today than at any time in its history.

But what about the initial three-year Bible Institute program, which so characterized the Bible Institute movement? The same subject-matter is being offered in the four-year curricula on a "stepped-up" scale. Also it may be pointed out that a major share of the three-year Bible Institute program was effectively retained in our two-year Bible program offered in the Junior College. It preserves the main features of the Bible Institute program, except that as an organized curriculum it is built on a two-year time scale instead of the traditional three-year scale. A student could duplicate with considerable exactness the three-year program of the past by pursuing this two-year program and adding to it an additional year of selected studies.

Most Bible schools throughout the country have shifted from the three-year pattern to the four-year pattern. Some of our leading Bible Colleges in the country have gone considerably beyond this, and have added dual majors, combining Bible with programs in liberal arts, or professional fields such as teaching, nursing, etc. In each case the distinguishing feature of the Bible school program is its 30 semester hour concentration in Bible as the basis of the curricular approach.

Here at Northwest College, we have sought not only to strengthen the Biblical content of Bible school education, but to broaden the base in general education. This concept has been justified by a number of factors growing out of our experience during the years as well as out of our observations of today's needs:

(1) The escalation of educational standards throughout the country and the world demand not only more efficient instruction in primary areas of learning, but a broader scope of education for the minister. This means that general education must cross the horizon of the ministerial trainee's educational preparation. The educational level of our laity is rising rapidly. The minister today should have an educational level of training equal to his congregation in general education, and most certainly in advance of his congregation in his professional and theological education.

(2) The College has discovered over the years that a good foundation in general education contributes to efficiency in the acquisition of the ministerial student's theological education. Hence a study of God's general revelation, which includes the world in which we live, its social history and structure, prepares the student for effective study of God's special revelation—the Word of God. The two are compatible and complementary of each other—each contributing to our understanding of God's great plan of redemption and our part in making it known. These two areas of revelation are studied side by side at Northwest with the concentration of study in Bible coming in the upper division (final two years).

(3) The College has observed during the years of its experience in education that many young people have come to Bible school, not knowing exactly what direction they will go, educationally and vocationally. Hence, not only were Junior College programs introduced at the College to prepare these young people for several educational alternatives, but our Bible College pattern seeks to preserve the interest of the student by giving him or her transferrable subject matter during the initial period of enrollment which might more readily accommodate changes in educational objectives.

Though fourteen curricula are available at Northwest College, one-half of which are within the framework of our Junior College, it has been noteworthy that the Bible College atmosphere prevails on the campus. It has put into focus the objectives of Christian education as they relate to the call of God and the purpose of life. Moreover, not only can this fact be sensed by anyone visiting the campus but it has produced some practical results in terms of decisions and courses of action on the part of Northwest students. The transfer flow between Junior College programs and Bible College programs has been in the direction of the Bible College consistently. We have observed many a young person come to the College to enroll in Junior College programs, but while here the atmosphere of the campus, the moving of the Holy Spirit and the bringing into focus of eternal values as they relate to the purpose of life have caused many a Junior College student to "switch" to the Bible College to prepare for full-time Christian service. Many others have gone on to their professional studies or other pursuits but with the imprint of eternal values etched upon their lives. Thus, the transforming effect of the Bible quickened by the Holy Spirit is having a powerful and practical effect upon the lives of young people at Northwest — whether enrolled in the Bible College or Junior College.

Alumni Homecoming October 6th

The 1966 annual Alumni Homecoming has been set for October 6 and will "tie in" with the presidential inauguration at the College. Inaugural ceremonies will be at 10 a.m. in the college chapel. Following the inauguration alumni will join in the dedication of the new wing on the Mollie J. Perks Residence Hall.

The afternoon will provide free time for fellowship, touring of the campus and for recreation. Many alumni will want to inspect the new facilities which have recently been developed on the campus, including the chapel-library building, the new music hall, and the new residence wing and other buildings.

The big event of the day for the alumni will be the alumni banquet slated for 7:30 p.m. in the college dining hall. The featured theme will be "Meet the new President," at which time President Hurst will bring special greetings to the alumni.

Our alumni will also be interested to know that the two former presidents, Dr. Henry H. Ness and Dr. C. E. Butterfield will be special campus guests for the day, affording opportunity for them to renew fellowship with them.

Alumni are urged to make plans and preparations to be on hand for the day now, Alumni President E. A. Born said. Those planning to be at the banquet in the evening are asked to mail in the reservations card or to telephone in their reservations by calling VA 2-8266.

Anticipation

Within just a few weeks the campus of Northwest College will again echo and re-echo with youthful activity. Anticipation fills the air. There is anticipation as to how many of the undergraduates will return, anticipation as to what the total student enrollment will be, anticipation in meeting the new president of the College. Correlated with this anticipation is also the opening of the new wing of the women's dorm, which is a great improvement on the campus. All of these are material, physical and natural. Is it not also congruous that we should anticipate what God may do? We know that we have His promise and assurance that He will "do exceedingly abundantly above all that we could ask or even think." May there be also anticipation of a spiritual refreshing throughout the entire year, problems settled, and destinies of young people brought into happy harmony with the will of God.

Throughout the districts who are a part of the family of Northwest College may there be anticipation for even a larger student enrollment, new facilities as needed. Briefly summed up, may our anticipation be based on faith in an all-powerful and an all-sufficient God. Do you have this kind of faith?

Eugene A. Born, President
Alumni Association

College Approved For Examination

Northwest College President D. V. Hurst announced today that the college was given approval by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools to proceed with a self-study in preparation for examination for regional accreditation. This step was taken by the association upon approval of the college's preliminary report submitted last spring. It was also indicated that committee evaluation of the college has been scheduled by the association. An evaluating committee has been appointed and examination dates have been established during the fall of 1967.

The Bible College Division has had professional accreditation with the Accrediting Association of Bible Colleges since 1953. College officials point out that regional accreditation of the Junior College Division would not only give significant recognition to the academic stature of the institution as a whole but would be particularly useful in effecting wider and more direct negotiability of transfer credits earned in that division. Applicable credits earned at the College are currently transferrable to a widening number of regionally accredited higher institutions on a provisional basis.

Regional accreditation, in distinction from professional or specialized accreditation, is the accreditation normally held by liberal arts colleges and universities throughout the country.

SPIRITUAL EMPHASIS PLANS REVEALED

Northwest College President D. V. Hurst announced plans for the Spiritual Emphasis weeks for the 1966-67 school year. Regarded as highlight occasions in the spiritual life on the campus of the College, the Spiritual Emphasis weeks are conducted one week in each of the three quarters of the school year.

President Hurst indicated that the fall quarter series, which is scheduled for Oct. 17-21, will feature speakers from among the College faculty in the morning services. President Hurst will speak in the evening services. It was indicated that the selection of faculty speak in the evening services. It was indicated that the selection of faculty speakers was made by the Spiritual Life Committee in response to an expressed desire from the student body to have members of the faculty speak more often in the chapel service.

Projected plans for the Winter Quarter call for a series during the week of Jan. 16-20 with Reverend Wesley R. Hurst, Jr., as speaker. Reverend Hurst is home secretary for the Foreign Missions Department of the Assemblies of God. He is brother of President D. V. Hurst of the College.

The Spring Quarter series will be held during the week of April 10-14 at which time the well-known Revivaltime radio speaker Reverend C. M. Ward together with the Revivaltime team will be on campus.

CHAPEL DRIVE LAUNCHED

"A cup of cold water given in a prophet's name shall receive a prophet's reward." Translated into terms of practical opportunity, there is a need on our campus to which we should like to call the attention of our friends for their prayerful consideration.

No physical facility on our campus is more directly related to the distinctive spiritual purpose of the College than our chapel. Many a student has already found it to be a place of spiritual nourishment as he has waited on God in worship and ministry of the Word and the Holy Spirit.

When the new college chapel was completed last December the Campus Planning Commission felt that pews were most suited to its architectural design. Now a project to liquidate the indebtedness on the pews in the new college chapel is being launched by the College Board.

named to Phi Kappa, Delta, national speech fraternity, and Phi Delta Kappa, educational fraternity. He was student body president at both Sioux Falls College and Drury College, and was listed in Who's Who Among Students.

Reverend Hurst began his ministry in 1944 and was ordained in 1946 by the South Dakota District of the Assemblies of God. He served as assistant pastor of the Sioux Falls Assemblies of God Church before returning to his alma mater, North Central Bible College in 1947 to serve on the faculty for three years.

Prior to going to Springfield, Reverend Hurst served in yet another ministerial post at the Central Assembly of God Church of Tulsa, Okla., where he was interim pastor and director of Christian education until 1951.

The entire cost of the pews was $10,500 with a single pew costing approximately $240. For every gift that covers the cost of one pew or more, a plaque designating the donor's name will be engraved and placed on the pew purchased.

A target date of Oct. 6 has been set for completion of this project. We are presenting the need with the prayer that God will lay it upon the hearts of our friends to assist us in this project. Church offerings and individual gifts are needed to reach the goal.

Specially, our churches are being asked to take an offering designated to help us meet this need by our target date. The cooperation of all of our churches will be most appreciated to help us reach this goal. One church has already given a gift of $180 from its general fund towards this worthwhile project.

President Hurst's work at the international headquarters of the Assemblies of God denomination in Springfield was in three departments. Initially he held posts in the church's national Sunday School Department, including training supervisor, national representative, and assistant national secretary. Leaving the Sunday School Department he went to the Radio Department where he served as national radio secretary and producer-narrator of the denomination's international radio broadcast, "Revivaltime," heard weekly on ABC radio. After six years in the Radio Department he was named to his most recent post—coordinator of the recently formed Spiritual Life and Evangelism Commission of the Assemblies of God. In this capacity he worked directly out of the general superintendent's office.

Scholarship Winners To Attend Northwest

Among the new students to enroll this fall eight have been awarded scholarships by various organizations, college records indicate.

Several awards are sponsored by the College scholarship program; several others are jointly sponsored by the College and other organizations, and two have been awarded by outside organizations.

Winning college-sponsored freshman scholarships are: Miss Dylene Jameson of Cathlamet, Wash., $200; Miss Margaret Goodwin of Hermiston, Ore., $400; and Miss Susan Green of Copalis Crossing, Wash., $200. Freshman scholarships are awarded for scholastic achievement in high school to graduates ranking in the upper 12 percent of their graduating classes.

Winning awards jointly sponsored by the College and other organizations are: Miss Alta Knopp of Coulee City, Wash., who was named Miss C.A. for the Northwest District. Miss Knopp was awarded a $150 scholarship by the college. Her selection as Miss C.A. was made through the national Christ Ambassadors' office in Springfield, Mo. Miss Cheryl Holt of Seattle was awarded a $150 scholarship by the college and was selected on the basis of a musical talent contest by Youth For Christ International Organization. A Church-College matching award of $100 has been awarded to Robert Fox of Bellingham, Wash. The scholarship is co-sponsored by Calvary Temple of Bellingham.

Independent awards have been made to Miss Peggy Smith of Marshall, Wash., for $500 from the Grange Insurance Association and for $100 from the Spokane Council of Home Makers' Clubs; and to Kenneth Conn of Coos Bay, Ore., from the Bunker Hill P.T.A.

Springfield, the Reverend Mr. Hurst was also active in literary work. He authored three books written primarily in the interest of education and evangelism in the church. "Ye Shall Be Witnesses" was written in 1952, and "And He Gave Teachers," in 1955. Both books have been published by the Gospel Publishing House, Springfield, Mo. He is co-author of a third book, "The Church Begins," written in 1959. These books have been used extensively in church leadership training and have gained circulations of 50,000 to 70,000 each. He was contributor-author in two other training texts, writing chapters for each and has published many articles in practically all periodicals of the church.

Among his first comments after arriving at the college President Hurst said,

We have been welcomed to the Great Pacific Northwest warmly. We know we will like it here. . . I have found it easy to commit myself to the goals of Northwest College and to pledge myself to seeking them. . . I look forward to an extremely rewarding service with the faculty and staff of Northwest College and in the Northwest region of the Assemblies of God.

Mrs. Hurst is the daughter of pioneer Assemblies of God pastors, the Reverend and Mrs. Arthur F. Berg, who now reside in Springfield, Mo. She was born in the Belgian Congo of Swedish missionary parentage. Her mother died shortly after she was born, and she was brought to the U. S. and adopted by the Arthur Bergs. She was the subject of one of the early missionary volumes entitled "Jungle Trails," otherwise known as the "Little Girl Without a Country."

President and Mrs. Hurst together with their two children, Jayne Renee, 17, and Richard Michael, 12, have been in residence on the campus of the College since July.

Hurst's fourth visit as its speaker at the retreat.

The retreat will be held at the famous School of Fine Arts Extension of the University of Alberta, located in the Canadian Rockies resort town of Banff.

Campus Visitors

A considerable number of persons visit the campus throughout the year. The college always welcomes visitors and is pleased to have friends and colleagues "drop in" to see what God has done for us. Among recent visitors are: The Reverend Raymond Lavang of North Central Bible College, Minneapolis; the Reverend Richard Ruff, of Switzerland; Professor Leland Despain of Evangel College, Springfield, Mo., and the Reverend and Mrs. Willard Cantelon of Pasadena, Calif.

Plans are to have a guest book in some suitable place on the campus for visitors to sign when they visit the college.

STUDENTS WORK AT RAINIER SCHOOL

Five Northwest College students have been working during the summer at the Rainier State School in Buckley, Wash., under a program jointly sponsored by the United States Department of Education and by participating colleges in the state. Rainier State School is operated by the State Department of Institutions for the care and rehabilitation of mentally retarded and handicapped children. Participation by college students at the school under the National Educational Opportunities Act affords both training experience in working with handicapped children and an employment opportunity for the students. Two of the students are working as psychiatric aids and three in recreation at Rainier State School.

33rd Year Begins . . .

ly used in colleges with enrollments up to 2000 students.

The admissions office reports that it expects another record enrollment on the campus this fall. While precise enrollment figures will not be tabulated until the close of the first week of instruction (October 4) present indications are that the college will have an enrollment increase of approximately 10% over last year. The fall quarter enrollment last year was an all-time institutional record for any one term.
