Open wide: Lisa McKenney drools over her bowl of cereal in the cafeteria.

Paul Terry worships with local high school students during "See You at the Pole." NC students encouraged several high schools at this year's gathering.

Dan Oxford and Adam James race for the finish. Steve Cave, John Shorb, Darren Janzen, Cecelia Paul, and Johnathan Hayes watch in anticipation.

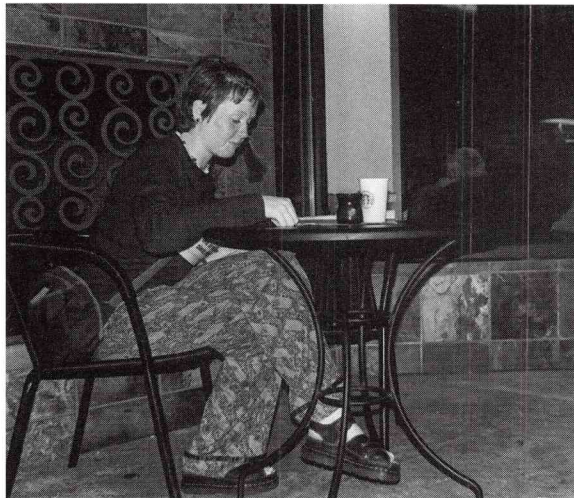

Junior Mike Bishop kicks it around, enjoying an Indian Summer afternoon in the Ultimate Frisbee field.

Nine times: Pamela Robert, Cynthia DeWitt, and Allison Tawny drag their luggage load to their cabin at this year's new student orientation.

Acting out stories hasn't ended for elementary education students Jed Rusyniak, Stephanie Boyd, and Mindy Alden.

Jeff Paulus, Jacob Woolman, and Nate Oliver jump out of the stands while watching an NC game.

Toivo Kotilainen blocks the exit on Beatty 300 floor while they mock the WTO riots during Christmas Open Dorms.

Guy 300 meets with their brother floor, Beatty 300, for a Christmas party prior to finals.

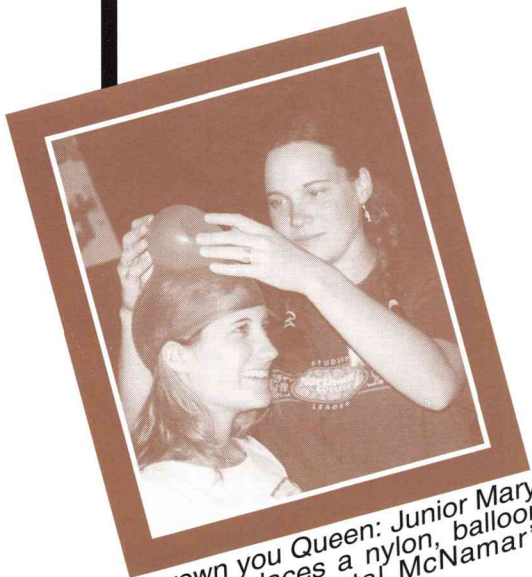

Forming...

Aloha: Darel Handley hulas his way into the Floor Olympics.

Swingin': Ben Langhans, Nate Myrvang, and Justin Lawlis enjoy their free time before the orientation competition.

I crown you Queen: Junior Mary Walker places a nylon, balloon crown on Crystal McNamar's brow.

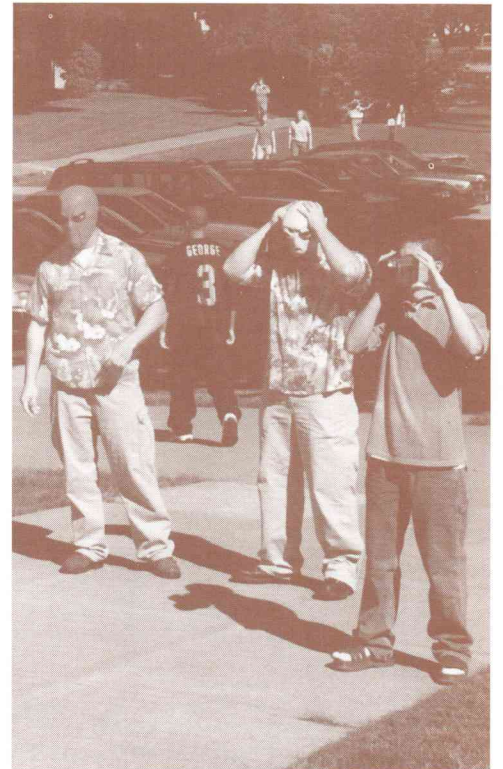

Soakin' it in: After a long day of tubing at Lake Sammamish, Charlie Valnes, Kristen Schmidt, Jeff Paschal, Tyler Sollie, Cortney Smith, and Justin Keeler enjoy a moment in the tub.

Ben Fuiten, Dan Dormaier, and Cecelia Paul help themselves to grilled grub at the All-School Picnic.

Alien-Spider: Paul McArthur and Josh Gifford lend their expertise to cameraman Nick Caalim, who's filming ASB-Hollywood's future.

Krista Sharp contemplates a much needed study break.

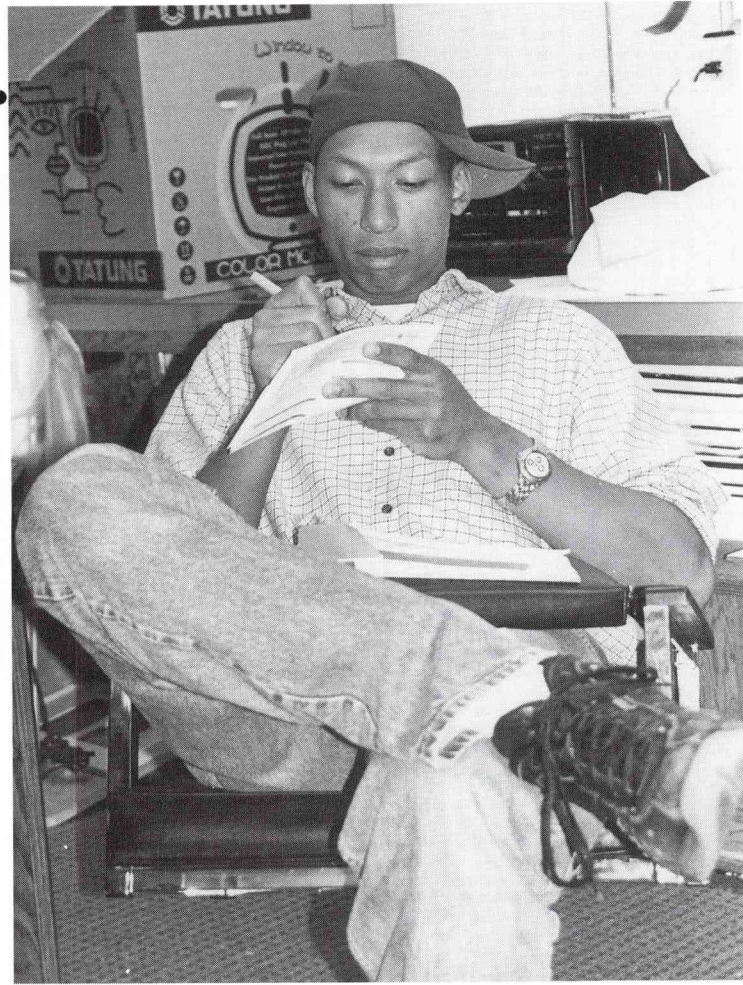

An under the table deal: Dan Schneider begged us to put his picture in the book. So, we exchanged his services for the deed.

Molding...

Michelle Raimo parts her "Red Sea" of hair.

Levi Rautio, just sittin' there.

"S-T-O-M-P": Aaron Crawford leads Master Chorale in a Kirk Franklin rap.

Ty Redinger attempts a Tina Turner style at an Eagle's basketball game.

Floor Olympics

The annual Floor Olympics are an awesome opportunity for building and expressing floor unity. Brother and sister floors team-up and sport their spirit through themes ranging from "Hawaiian Crazy Hair" to "The 80's."

Each floor chooses a male and female athlete to represent them in an obstacle course consisting of the crazy bat spin, super-skiing, and lifesaver stick.

Judges for this year's event included Erik Steinkamp, Jennifer Feters, Sharon Jessup, and Darren Janzen. These judges awarded points based on the obstacle course and team spirit.

The 500 floor "Nerds" won the competition, breaking the 600 Floor's two year winning streak.

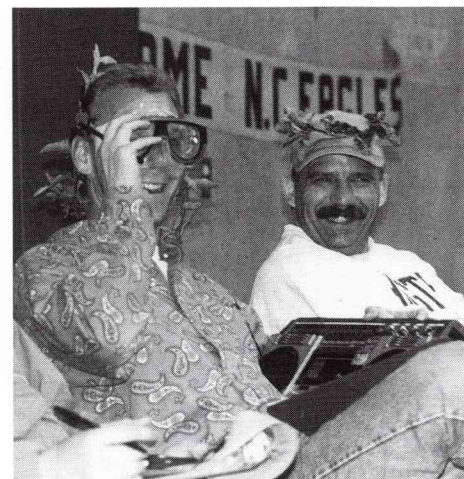

Laughing it up: Jordan Jochim and Katie Stone display their enthusiasm while supporting the 100 floor, Birds of the Heir.

"Nerds" Linsay Masiack and Scott Langhans cheer on their floor representatives at the annual Floor Olympics.

SUMMER MINISTRY TEAMS

PBJ

The Y2K Summer Ministry Teams are ready to go . . . and plenty busy. Each team travels for approximately ten weeks throughout the summer months to camps in six districts, as well as churches along the way. The districts our SMTs are involved with include: Northwest District, Oregon, Southern Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Rocky Mountain District (Colorado and Utah), and Alaska.

The teams are chosen on the basis of academic ability, recommendations from the Student Development Office, RA recommendations, and much more. These teams represent Jesus Christ to those who have never heard of Him. They both reach out to the lost and help bridge the gap for those who have known Christ, but have fallen away from Him for a while. The teams are also charged with the responsibility of representing Northwest College everywhere they go.

This year's Summer Ministry Teams are: H2O (Hope to Others)—Lisa McKenney, Kelly Davies, Cathie Bender; Force 84—Monica Tuesta, Cortney Smith, Kyle Reynolds; Pocket Change—Paul McArthur, Paul Terry, Tyler Sollie, Kyle Hopkins; and PBJ (Peanut Butter and Jesus)—Nick Caalim, Anne Jones, and Jared Cooksey.

Harvest Social

A mysterious evening mist dwindled near the pavilion. Costumed creatures emerged through a twinkling tunnel, awestruck by the animated atmosphere of vibrant colors, pulsating music, and invigorating activity. Billows of fog and cascading bubbles created the supporting atmosphere for the full-blown, life-sized, inflatable . . . yes, that's right . . . LASER TAG.

The theme for this year's Harvest Social was "Galactic." The Harvest Social Committee rallied together armed with tinfoil, cardboard stars, black lights, colored saran wrap, and heaps of candy. Interstellar band 5-Star and KCNC provided the musical entertainment for the evening.

In keeping with tradition, the finale and highlight of the evening was the All-School Talent Show, in which Northwest College witnessed musical talent, lightning-speed flossing, amazing orifice ability, renditions of pop-culture youth sensations, and a Broadway review of Matchmaker, Matchmaker--a salute to Northwest's Bridal College.

A name change in order, Harvest Social stepped outside the bounds of tradition. So, the event to be formally known as Harvest Social went through name deliberations: Sarvest Hocial, Hamster, or Midterms Squirm. However, our own beloved Harvest Social kept its name and lived up to it.

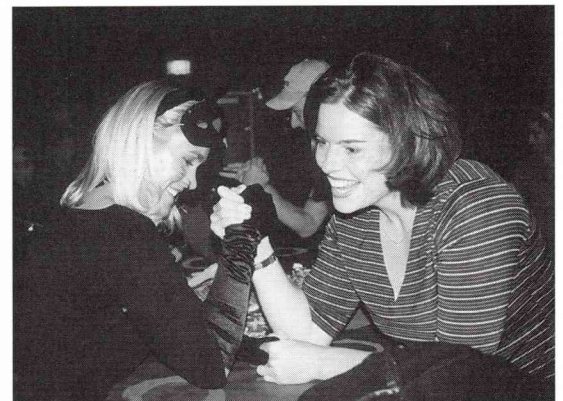

NC Band "5 Star" provides Harvest Social's live entertainment. Band members are Roy Rowland, Gabe Bray, Tim Lucas, and Jeremy Inman.

Rebekah Vicknair and Kyle Hopkins "rap" up Harvest Social's Talent Show.

HOMECOMING

Along the Road

Homecoming 2000 proved to be an incredible event. In the chapel, Pastor David and his wife Jana Baker introduced the Homecoming Court to the students, faculty, and parents. Accompanying each prince and princess were pictures, personal stories, and also a little tribute from friends and roommates. These friends created stories and songs about sleeping habits and gave tributes of appreciation.

At the homecoming game on Friday night, Northwest College played against Northwest Christian College. Although our women fell short, our men found the scoreboard and victory.

At halftime, Alicia Duchemin and Peter Blue, 1999 royalty, passed the titles of King and Queen on to Dan Oxford and Lisha Clark.

Chapel is the largest regular corporate expression of worship at Northwest College. This Fall launched a new chapel format devoting three hours a week for the community to step back from their tasks and join together in public worship of God.

Fall '99 chapels brought some NC "firsts." Predators of the Heart displayed a live alligator. DYD Days brought a sermon by the first Northwest female DYD—Alaska's Jen Mickelson, who kept on preaching when the power went out. New faculty, Professor Steven Ware, used the words "bat poop" in a personal illustration. The new Dean of Chapel, David Baker, launched the series "Moses, the Mount and the Millennium." NC also heard from A/G Supt. of Cuba, Hector Hernandez, on the first open air revivals in his country since Castro came to power.

In addition, Pastor Tony Morris of Seattle's New Covenant Christian Church delivered a powerful series during Spiritual Emphasis Week on our potential as God's unique prototypes. Missionaries Lewis McCown, Dave Oleson, Bill Prevette, and Larry Malcolm combined with outreach leaders Mary Walker and Adam James to bring a Missions Emphasis Week that raised nearly $6,000.

Another added plus is new music faculty Bill Owen and Bob Engle, whose choirs regularly enhanced worship with an occasional "Stomp."

These servants, along with many other guests and members of the NC community, lent their talents to the exalting of God's Name and His Word in Butterfield Chapel.

Ministry through Music Master Chorale

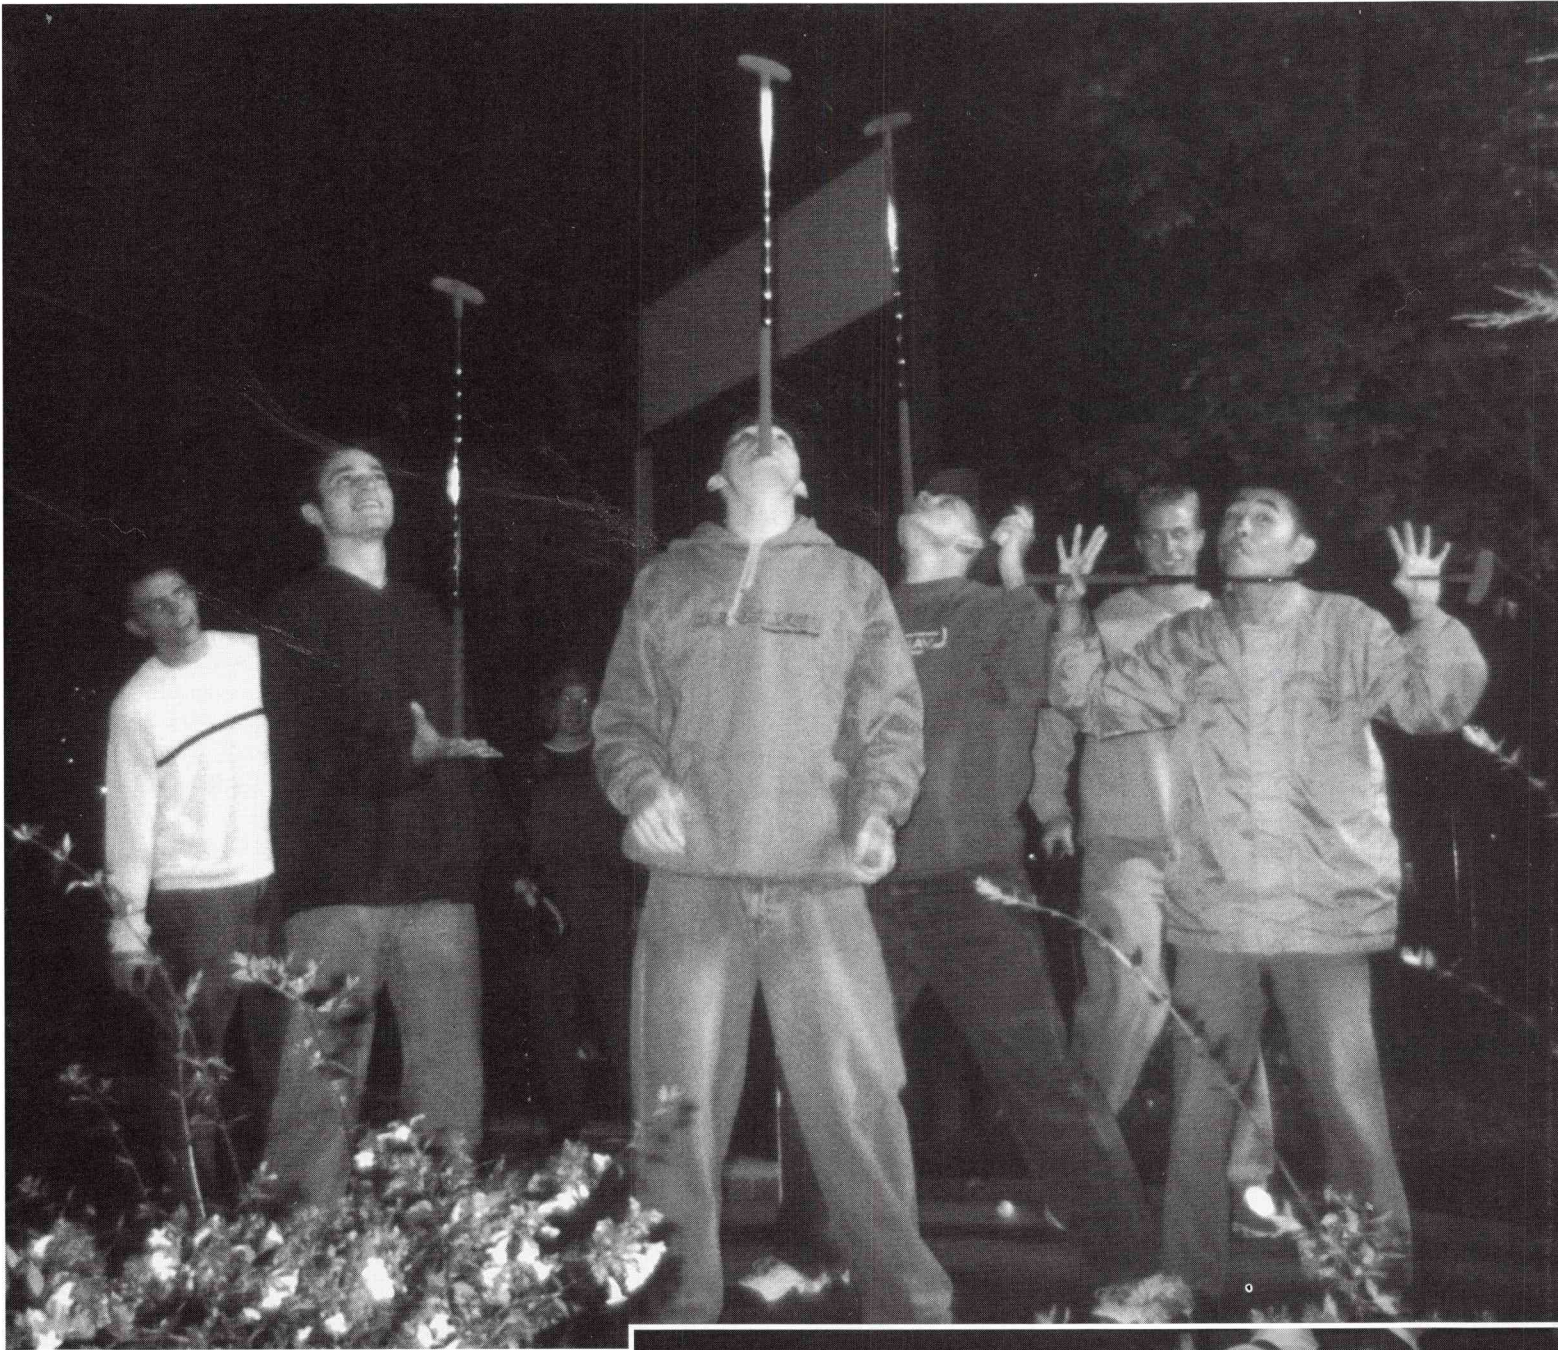

"He lifts me high, up to the sky . . ." cries Eric Westbrook during a chapel performance.

The Master Chorale assumed a number of new roles this past year. In chapel they sang not only to inspire the student body, but also to lead them in worship. They sang on and off campus in locations both formal and informal. The Christmas concert was expanded to three evenings and the inclusion of four guest groups. In February they traveled to Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma to represent the college in the first annual college and university choral festival for western Washington. Both the Christmas and Spring concerts included the presentation of choral masterworks with instrumental accompaniment. Great emphasis was placed on keeping the focus that Jesus is the reason we sing.

N Ministry through Music Northwest Singers

The male members of Northwest Singers display their amazing talent while playing a little putt-putt.

One of the major goals of the Northwest Singers this year was to expand their church visitations to local ethnic churches. They visited Japanese, Samoan, Black, and Hispanic churches, working hard to find ways of making each visit unique. They sang and introduced themselves in the language of the church, rehearsed, and sang with the church's choir in the Sunday service while constantly seeking a connection that would increase the effectiveness of their visit. They also visited a UW campus ministry and arranged for an exchange visit of that group to our campus. In May, they took their first tour to Hawaii, singing in the island's churches and Christian schools to familiarize the islands with the college.

H P Ministry through Music His Praise

His Praise is a vocal ensemble comprised of 10-12 voices accompanied by a band of 6-8 instrumentalists which travels during the school year for the College. Throughout the spring semester, His Praise traveled at least two weekends per month, ministering in churches throughout the Northwest region. For a week at the conclusion of the year, they ministered in churches and Christian schools.

The group's main focus has been to pay less attention to musical style, and focus on worshipping God. His Praise has included in their repertoire many styles of music ranging from traditional/classical music to contemporary, avoiding the extremes at either end of the stylistic spectrum.

A common objective of touring groups like His Praise is that of college public relations. His Praise gladly accepts that responsibility and seeks to fulfill that objective by serving and being a blessing to the local church. -Prof. William Owen

How effective is Northwest College in training students to think, communicate and apply knowledge to the crucial issues of our day? One way to judge is by looking at the results of debate competitions. At weekend debates held throughout the nation, our students are matched against the best and brightest from dozens of major colleges and universities.

From September to March of the 1998-1999 season, Northwest College made final rounds at 12 of the 13 tournaments attended. NC ranked in the nation's top six percent, placing 14th out of 225 schools for total winning points throughout the year. Last year the Eagles brought home six first place awards, including the Willamette University national championship. The team won 14 other awards.

The 1999-2000 year continued the winning tradition. Eagle debaters won three first place awards fall semester: University of British Columbia, Oregon State University, and Linfield College. The first place win at Linfield was the sixth year in a row that NC placed in the top three.

On November 4 in Millard Hall, team captain Josh Brittingham and national all-star debater James Stewart challenged the British National Debate Team on campus. It was the only time in the Briton's ten week US tour that they faced off against a member of the United States Debate Team. Last year Stewart was chosen to represent our nation by the same organization that brought the British to Kirkland. He was one of only two Americans chosen for this honor. Stewart traveled to Europe in March of 1999 for six weeks of debates in England, Ireland, and Scotland.

The year 2000 began on January 2 with James Stewart and Paul Nystrom traveling to Sydney, Australia for the World Universities Debating Championships. To see how the team did Spring semester, visit the Eagle Debate Home Page at <http://www.nwcollege.edu/debate>.

Psi Chi

In April 1999, the Northwest College chapter of Psi Chi was inducted. Psi Chi is a member of the Association of College Honor Societies, and is the first Honor Society at Northwest!

Although Psi Chi is new to Northwest, it has been around since 1929 when it was founded at Yale University. The goal of Psi Chi is to promote research and study in the field of Psychology and to give students recognition for academic excellence. Psi Chi is also affiliated with the American Psychological Association and the American Psychological Society.

So what do we do? We meet once a month to discuss current psychological issues and to organize community outreach events.

Psi Chi gives Psychology students at Northwest a way to glorify God with their minds and serve others with their gifts.

SIFE

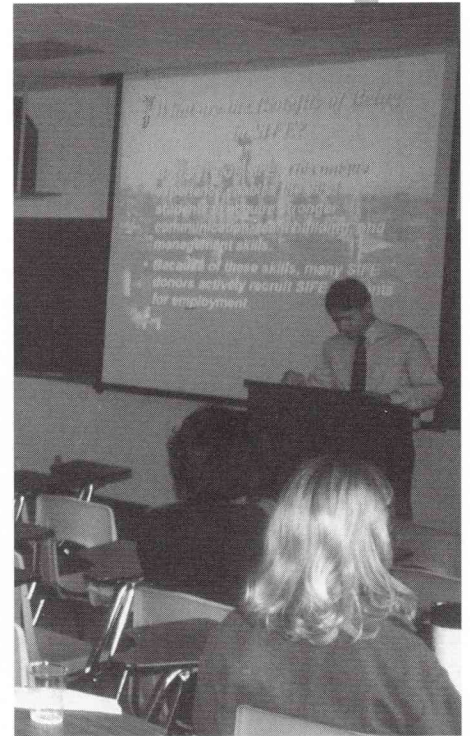

Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) has been helping others achieve their dreams through free enterprise for twenty-five years. SIFE provides college students with the best opportunity to make a difference and to develop leadership, teamwork, and communication skills through learning, practicing, and teaching the principles of free enterprise. Through SIFE, students work as a team to create innovative ways to make a valuable contribution to the community. We motivate our members by creating competition among rival colleges to see who is the best at teaching others how the world works and how to achieve their dreams. SIFE's teaching philosophy has been "Tell me and I will forget, show me and I might remember, involve me and I will learn." By teaching others, we teach ourselves. SIFE benefits the students just as much as the students benefit the community.

The Northwest College chapter of SIFE started a number of new projects this year, including endeavors such as starting a campus newspaper, organizing a faculty appreciation night, teaching elementary students about economics and free trade, among other things. This year was a landmark year for SIFE at Northwest College, as we undertook many new and exciting projects that have not been attempted in the past.

Off Stage at the Globe

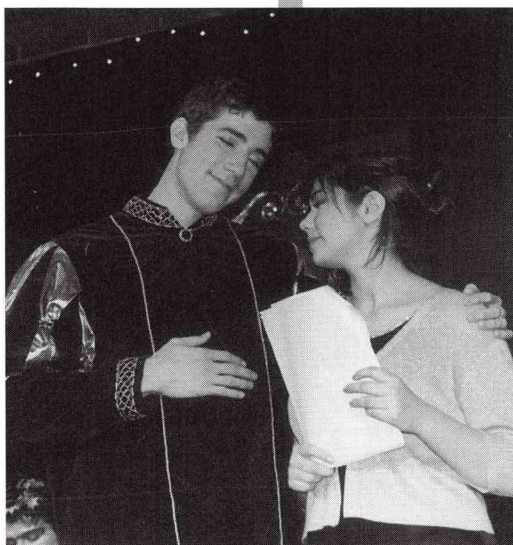

For three glowing nights in November, students from the fall NC Shakespeare class performed Offstage at the Globe, a play by NC English Professor Julia Young. The general format of the play centers around two hosts interviewing three Shakespearean characters: King Richard III, played by Josh Johnson; Feste, played by Jake Young; and Titania, played by Annette Holmquist. Puck, played by Josh Holden, also made a special, unexpected appearance. The play takes place in an "offstage" room at the Globe Theater, and in its introduction, it gives some historical accounts of that theater.

The two hosts are Guy Jones, a lowbrow American played by Doug Lloyd, and Roz Robinson, an elegant Englishwoman played by Julianna Skaff. Guy falls immediately for Roz and continually tries to impress her, but in the wrong way to capture her attention or heart. The Shakespearean characters appear for interview in the order listed above; they move in and out of "character." Meanwhile, the interview turns into all but the expected: Feste also falls for Roz; Richard falls for Titania; and Puck loves Titania as well. There are two verbal and pushing fights, several "freezes" of characters by the non-mortals, plays within plays, juggling, singing, dancing, an interweaving of short lines from over twenty Shakespearean plays, three famous soliloquies, and typical Shakespearean comic formulas, themes, and characterizations. As with all Shakespearean plays, there's something for everyone.

The NC actors took the new play from the page to the stage, breathing into it life and vitality.

Yearbook

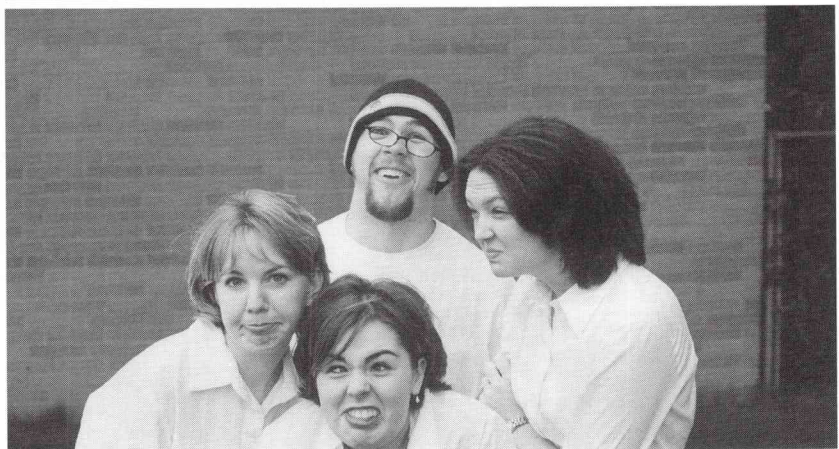

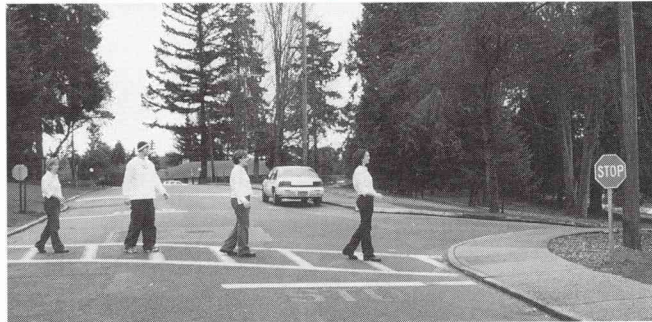

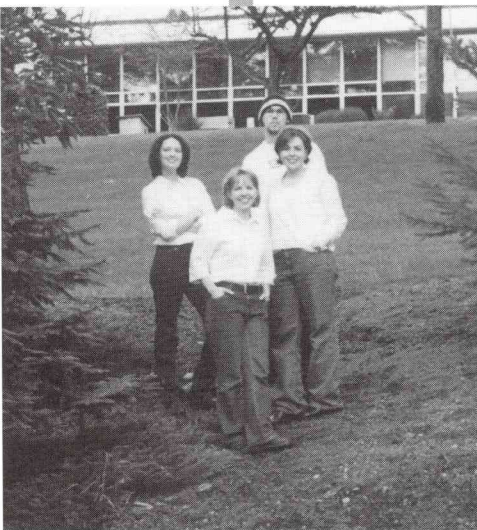

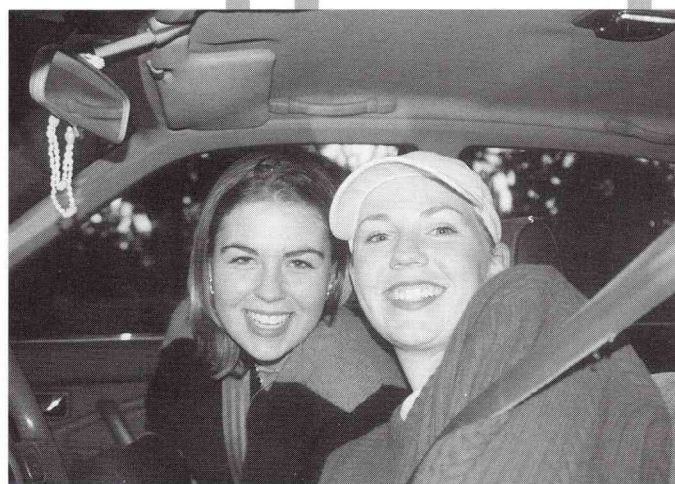

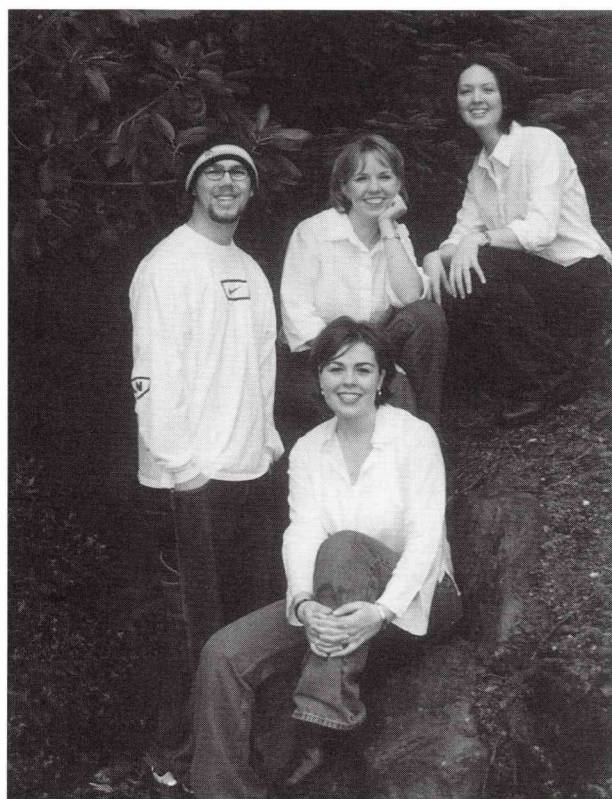

The job's main characteristic centers entirely around irregularity. As editors, we typically meet for a few hours on a weekly basis. However, during a deadline weekend we do all but pack our bags and move in to the yearbook room, which neighbors ASB's office. The late nights and constant aroma of printing fumes easily explain our altered state of mind on these nights.

This year's staff consists of Katrina Croutworst--Executive Editor; Becky Ouldhouse--Assistant Editor; Mike Bishop--Business Editor; Jessica Dux--Photographer Editor; Mike Archer--Sales Representative; and Jennifer Fetters--Advisor. We all worked hard to produce a book that accurately reflects the entire community at Northwest College.

Our prayer through each deadline is not only to finish our pages, but to glorify God through our talents. We constantly strive to place ourselves in the Potter's hands, hands that test, shape, and perfect.

Associated Student Body

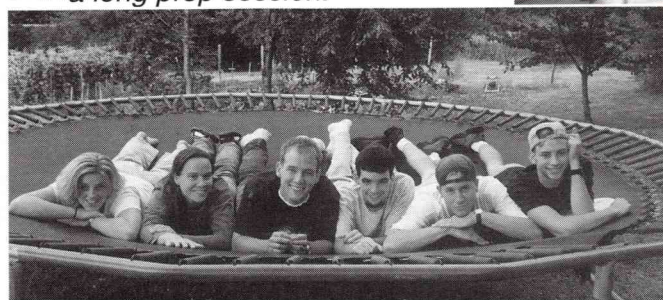

The 1999-2000 school year has finally drawn to a close. As your ASB officers this year, we hope that we have made your experience here at Northwest a memorable one. Debbi Foster was your amazing secretary; Jonathan Hayes served as the most astounding V.P. of Student Activities ever; John Shorb was your esteemed Treasurer; Mary Walker was your Secretary of Outreach; Adam James was our V.P. of Outreach; and I, Jeremy Seaward was your ASB President.

As I look back on this school year, my heart and vision for this campus can be summed up with these verses: "You are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hidden. Nor do they light a lamp and put it under a basket, but on a lamp stand, and it gives light to all who are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven" (Matt 5:14-16). We have had so much fun serving this campus and facilitating activities such as the Ice Cream Social, Harvest Social, Missions Emphasis Week, Blood Drives, Waterfront Worship, and Spring Banquet. As we leave this school year at the beginning of a new millennium, I challenge every one of us to take hold of Paul's charge: to forget those things that are behind and reach toward those things that are ahead, pressing on toward the prize. I'm overwhelmed by the open heart that this campus has toward God. I know that as each one of us continue, we will see His Kingdom extended on this earth. May we reach higher, run faster, and pray harder than we ever have before.

Resident Life Staff

Resident life staff is all about community. Resident Assistants, Directors, and the Director of Student Life never stop working to ensure that community is not only maintained, but fostered.

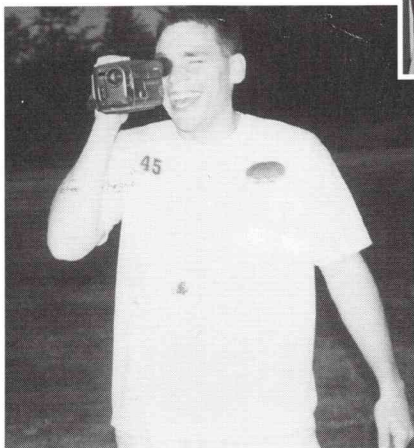

The RA's job can take him or her anywhere from a floor camping trip (rain, sun or more rain, RLS is there!) to shuttling injured students to the emergency room at any insane hour of the night. Dealing with confrontation and discipline issues is the worst part of the job. However, this aspect gets balanced out with the chance to have personal contact, the chance to reach out, and the chance to make a difference in someone's life while having fun in the process. RA's can't stop working because their home is their office. Even with crazy student schedules they manage to keep themselves available for floor needs. Many people don't realize how much they do, but without these guys and girls Northwest College would be sunk!

The Resident Directors and the Director of Student Life follow right along on the same foot, but on a bigger stage. Many think that being a Resident Director is the best job around-and it is! But not because its cushy. Robin Vendelin, Angie Gillaspie, and Steve Cave pour their whole lives into the community life of the residence halls, making sure students get what they need. With over 400 students on campus, it's a crazy job, but these people are here because they care.

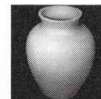

The whole team cares, and that's what keeps Resident Life Staff doing its job.

Eagle Soccer

After a dismal 1998 season where we accumulated 2 wins and 15 losses, the 1999 soccer season was a welcome change. With a talented incoming recruiting class added to a core group of returning lettermen, the prospects for this season were very optimistic. After a grueling two week training camp before school started, the team was ready for regular season play. Halfway through the regular season we had a phenomenal record of 7 wins, 3 losses, and 1 tie while also sitting atop the NAIA Cascade Conference with a record of 4 wins and 1 loss. We also had a 5 and 1 record in the National Christian College Conference for us to finish first in the Northwest Region. Although we struggled through the latter part of the season, we managed to hold on and place third in the Cascade Conference.

The NAIA playoffs sent us off to Caldwell, ID to play Albertson College. After an intense and heated battle, the score stood at a 3-3 tie, sending the two teams into a Sudden Death, Golden Goal situation. Five minutes into the overtime period, Dave Pierce found the back of the net to send us to Portland, OR to face Concordia University in the Cascade Conference Championship match. We fought hard but our travel weary bodies could not keep up; we ended our NAIA season as the Cascade Conference runner-ups. Although the season did not turn out the way we would have liked, next year promises to be even more exciting with top regional and international recruits strengthening the most successful Northwest team to compete in the NAIA.

Eagle Volleyball

The Northwest College Eagles came together as a team for the first time on August 16, 1999. The excitement and anticipation for the upcoming season filled Perks Lounge. With the fresh new talent of five freshman and one transfer, combined with the six returners, the Eagles were well on their way to making Northwest College volleyball a successful program.

The NC women peaked at the middle of their season when they played two of the top ranked teams in the Cascade Conference. In a five game battle against Southern Oregon University, the Eagles suffered defeat. However, the women came out victorious the next night while playing Oregon Institute of Technology. The win gave the team a new found enthusiasm and passion for the game.

One of the goals the team set at the beginning of the season was to beat their nemesis, Central Washington University. Their goal was not met at either the Whitworth tournament or in Ellensburg, but they didn't give up. When Central came to visit the Pavilion, the Eagles pounded them in four games and accomplished their team goal along the way. The win helped keep the Eagles alive for a trip to the conference playoffs. Unfortunately, they fell short on the road and ended their season without making it to the playoffs.

Although the season didn't end the way the Eagles would have liked it to, they focused on the positive strides they had made throughout the season. By reaching some of their spiritual and physical goals, the women's volleyball team will come into next season with a lot more confidence.

Eagle Cross Country

Steve Prefontaine said, "To give anything less than your best is to sacrifice the gift." Cross Country has to be the hardest, most intensified form of pain a person could be asked to endure (my mom told me that after watching me race). Frosty weather, beating rain, physical agony hold no bearing on how fast we run; the battle begins and is fought in the mind. We always push the limits; we are, after all, the only ones who can judge if we have pushed through the excruciating pain and truly given our best. The greatest degree of success comes through our faith in God, the one for whom we run every race life.

Men's Basketball

The men's basketball team played an off the record season filled with awesome results. Last year, the Eagle's boasted a school record of 24 wins, a semi-conference playoff, and were in the NAIA top 25 ranking.

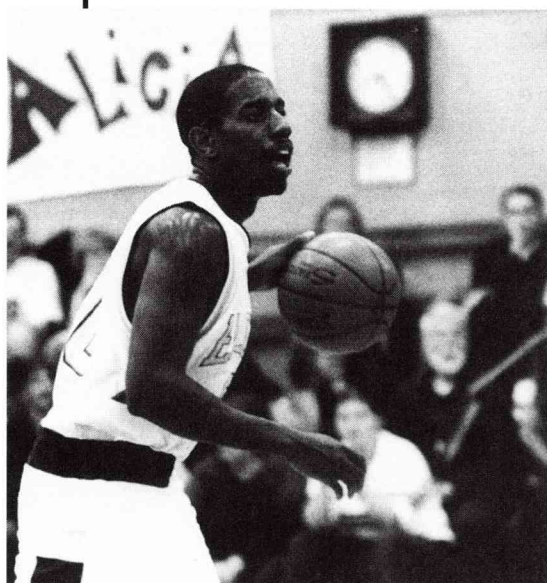

Though this year's team is young and lost three All Conference players, All Conference player Brian Swisher returned to the Eagle's. Last year Swisher was also selected NCCAA first team All American and Cascade Conference scholar athlete. He is this year's leading scorer at 20 points a game.

The Eagles also return two potent players: 5'10" Nate Speer, this years leading assist man, and Jimmy Potts, a versatile 6'6" wing that plays all positions on the floor. Two dynamic junior college transfers from Lower Columbia JC add additional strength to this year's roster. Colby Wright, 6'5" power forward, is one of the top rebounders on the team and brings incredible bulk on the inside. Shannon Kelley is the team's top marksman from the 3-point arch. At 6'5" Kelley not only has great range, but also has the ability to post smaller players up. The Eagles also acquired two excellent freshmen in 6'6" Drew Langstraat and 6'0", 3-point shooter, Shawn Skogstadt.

This year's team is rebuilding and attempting to become a cohesive unit. They play an exciting brand of basketball with an intensity that is fun to watch.

Women's Basketball

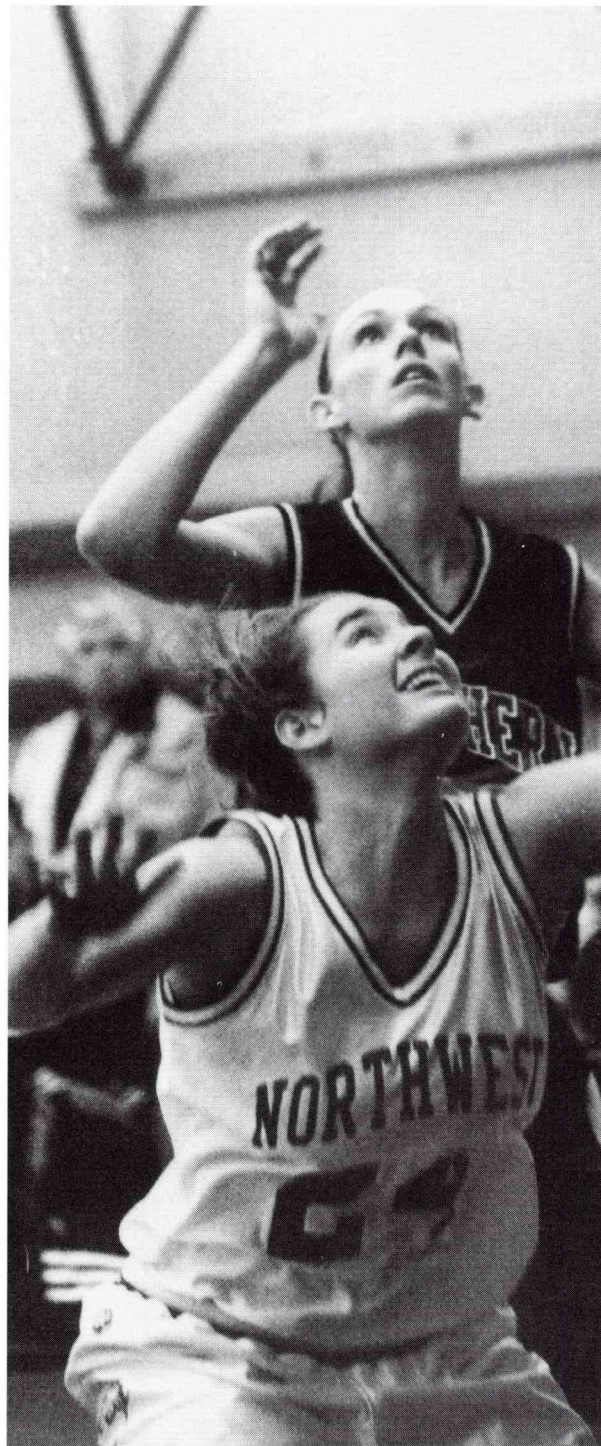

The women's basketball team was a tale of two seasons last year. They posted several big wins and finished seventh in the nation at the NCCAA tournament.

The most important addition to the team is new coach, Kathy Langston, who took over the program after coaching high school basketball for thirty years.

Much of the nucleus of the team returns this year. Cascade Conference newcomer of the year, Katy Lockard, heads the list of returning players. Lockard, an outstanding guard, is both deadly from beyond the 3-point line and a tenacious defender. Senior Marla Johnson just trailed Lockard in scoring on the team last season, and will look to step up as the team's main inside threat. Also returning is junior LeAnn Swedberg, a solid rebounder and post player. Wendi Miller, Ashley Hansen, and Deborah Siers add to the quality of the returning group. Each has been a starter in their career and will be relied on to provide the same kind of production this year.

New to the team this year are guards Chrissy Reade and Holly Seymour. Reade, a junior transfer from Columbia Basin College, garnered several awards in her high school and junior college career, including all-state mentions in high school and being named to the NWAAC all-star team last season. Seymour is another transfer who will provide depth and scoring punch at the guard position.

The combination of experienced returners and talented newcomers created an exciting 1999-2000 season for the lady Eagles.

Eagle Track

Northwest College has built a small, but strong track and field program in its five short years of existence. It may be "pound for pound" the best track team in the nation.

The 2000 men's team is highlighted by senior Sean Wilkerson (conference champion 400m, 4x400m, and NAIA national qualifier); senior Jake Woolman (conference champion 4x400m); sophomore Jake Young (conference champion 4x400m); senior Jesse Lee (conference champion triple jump); and freshman stand-out Phil Olson (cross country All-American). New to the team is freshmen Dylan Morss (hurdles), Arthur VanDyke (hurdles), and Sean Kelly.

The 2000 women's team is highlighted by distance talent. Junior Katie Park, the only returner from 1999, leads talented freshmen Kim Stone, Korinda Godwin, Melanie Hevel, Gretchen Barber, and transfer Alice Woolman in the distance events. Sophomore volleyballer Heidi Grilley joins the program in 2000 to compete in the long jump and triple jump.

This combination of talented athletes should produce a season full of excitement and success.

Intramural Football

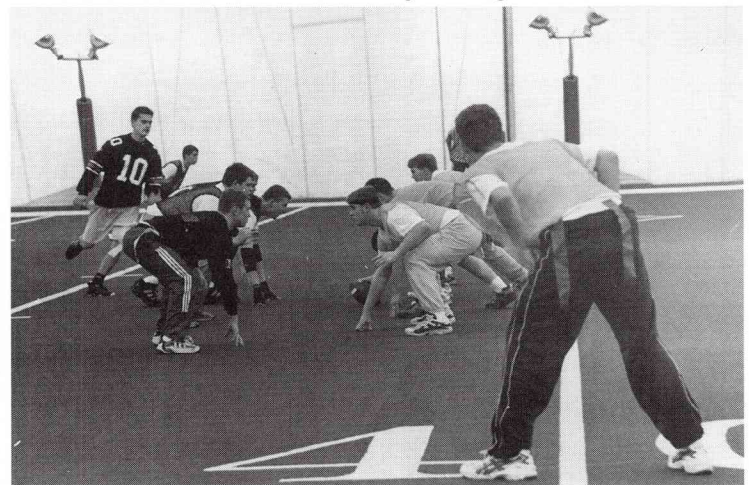

Men's intramural flag football has a long term relationship with Northwest College. At the beginning of the season Myles Corrigan, the new Executive Director for Enrollment Management, looked into changing the competition by developing random teams rather than teams representing the individual floors and off-campus crew. However, tradition withstood and the floors and off campus teams are racing for the championships again.

Intramural football is a two month competition beginning in the Fall. This activity continues to hold excitement and spirit for the students who gather in the Seahawk's "Bubble."

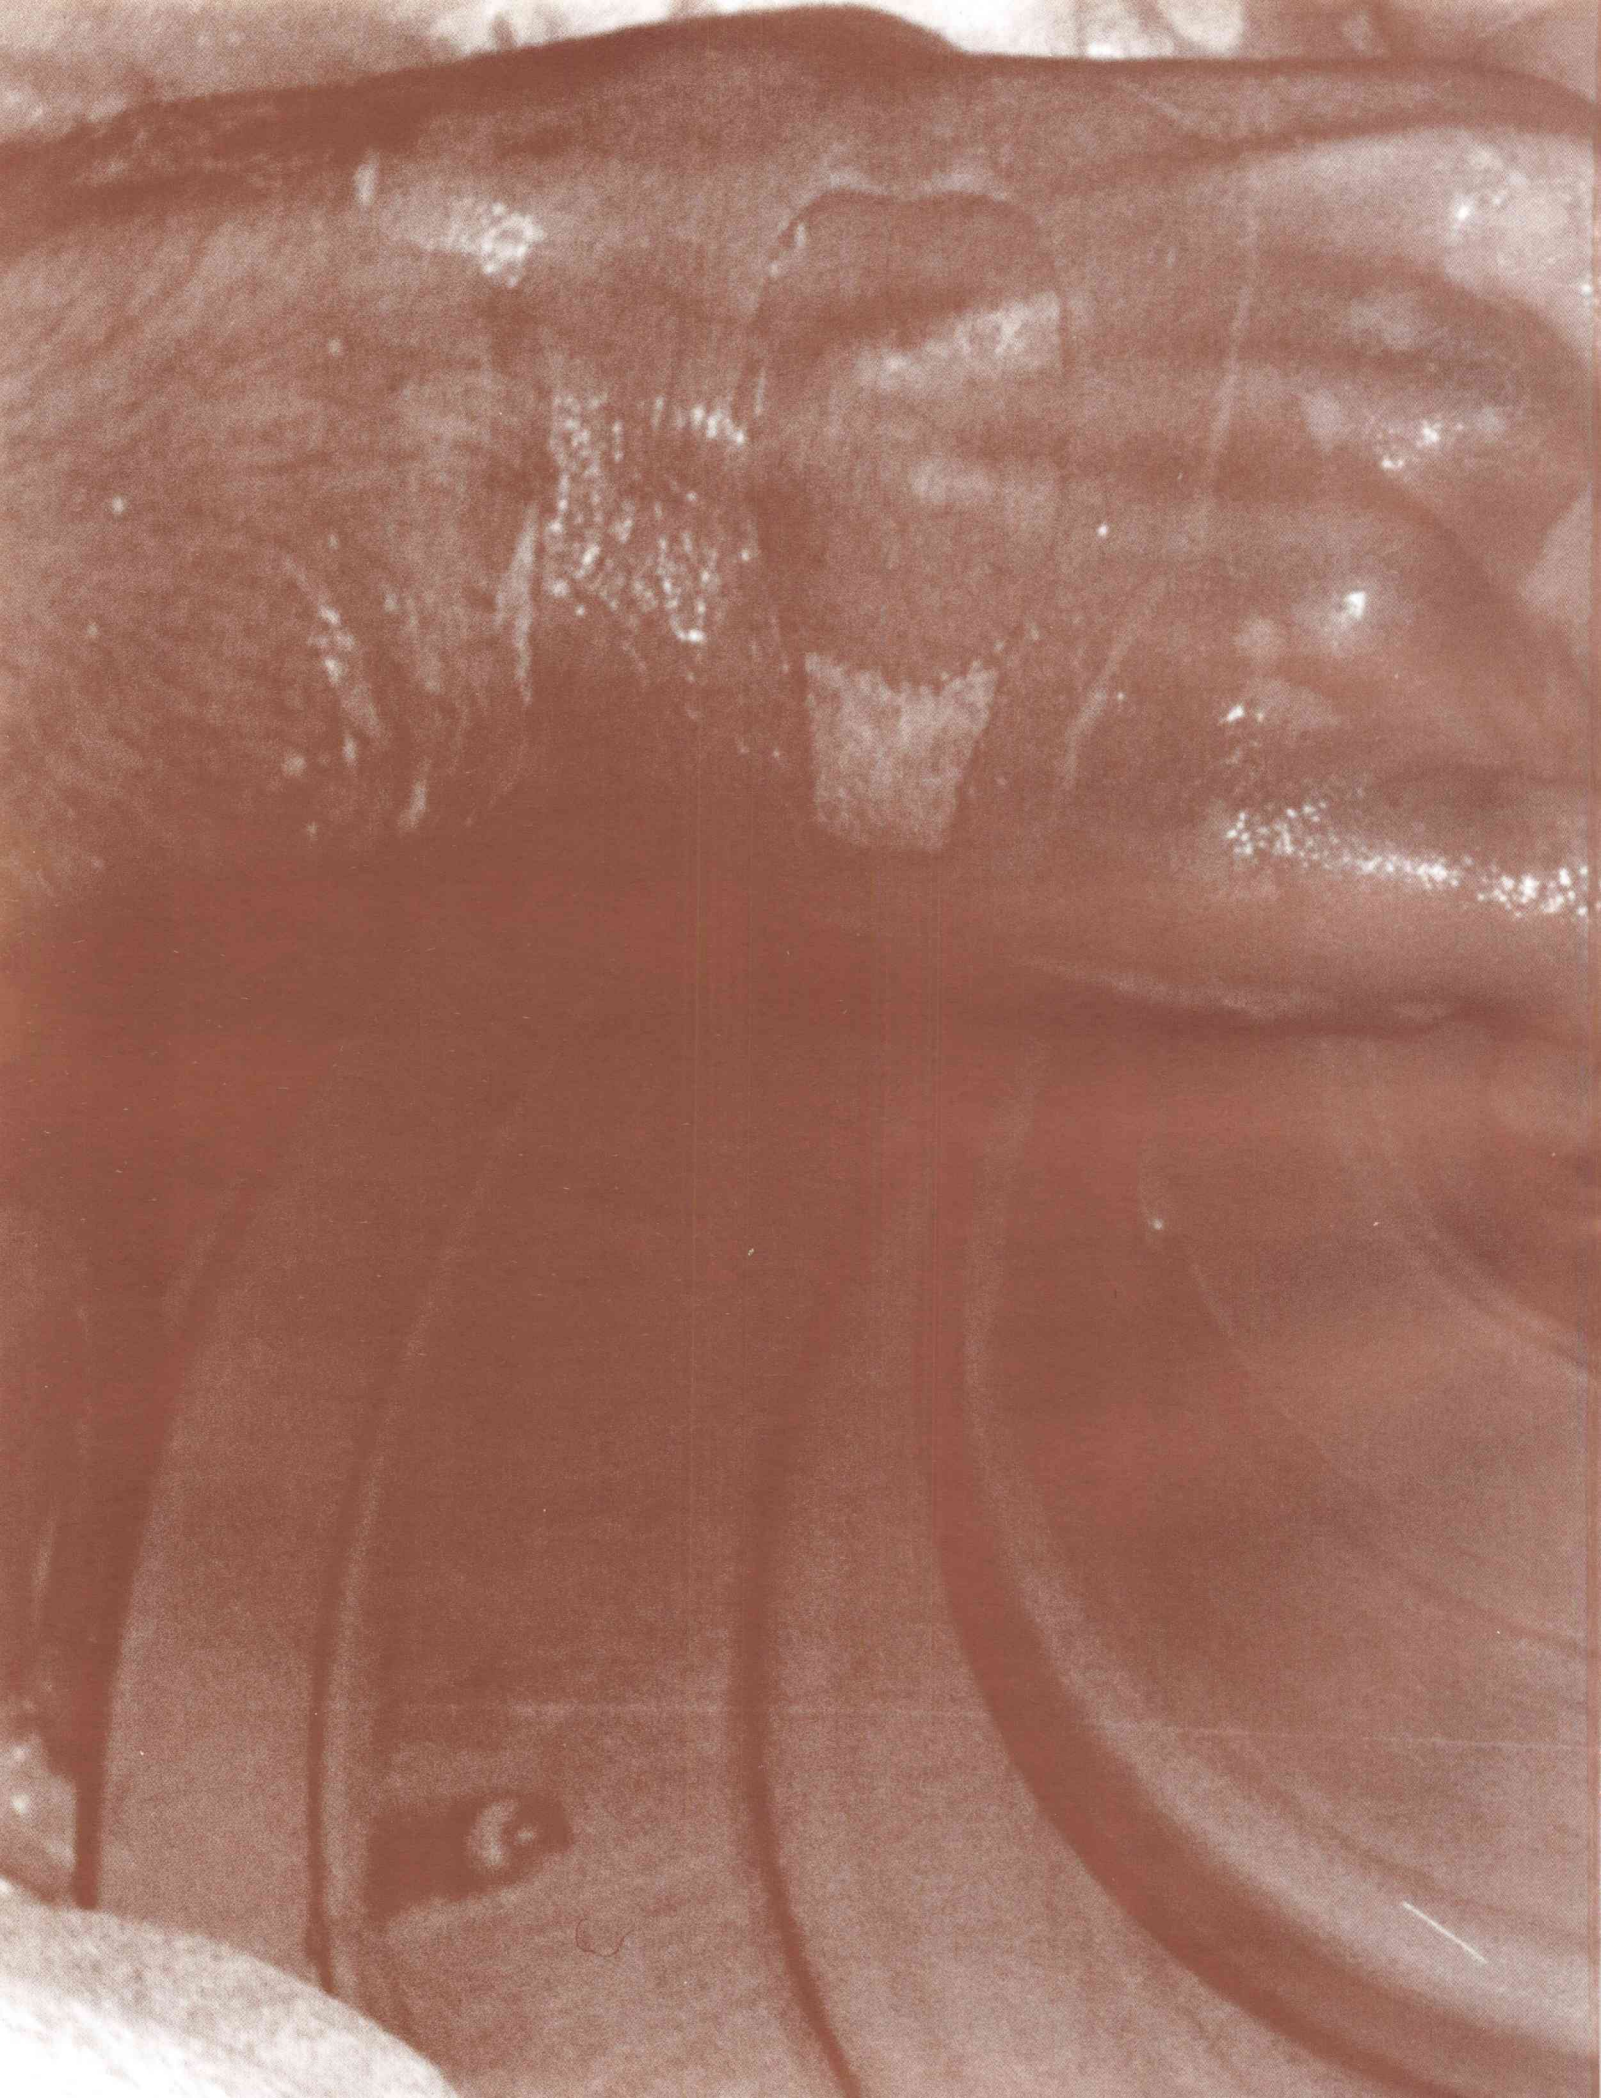

Ultimate Frisbee

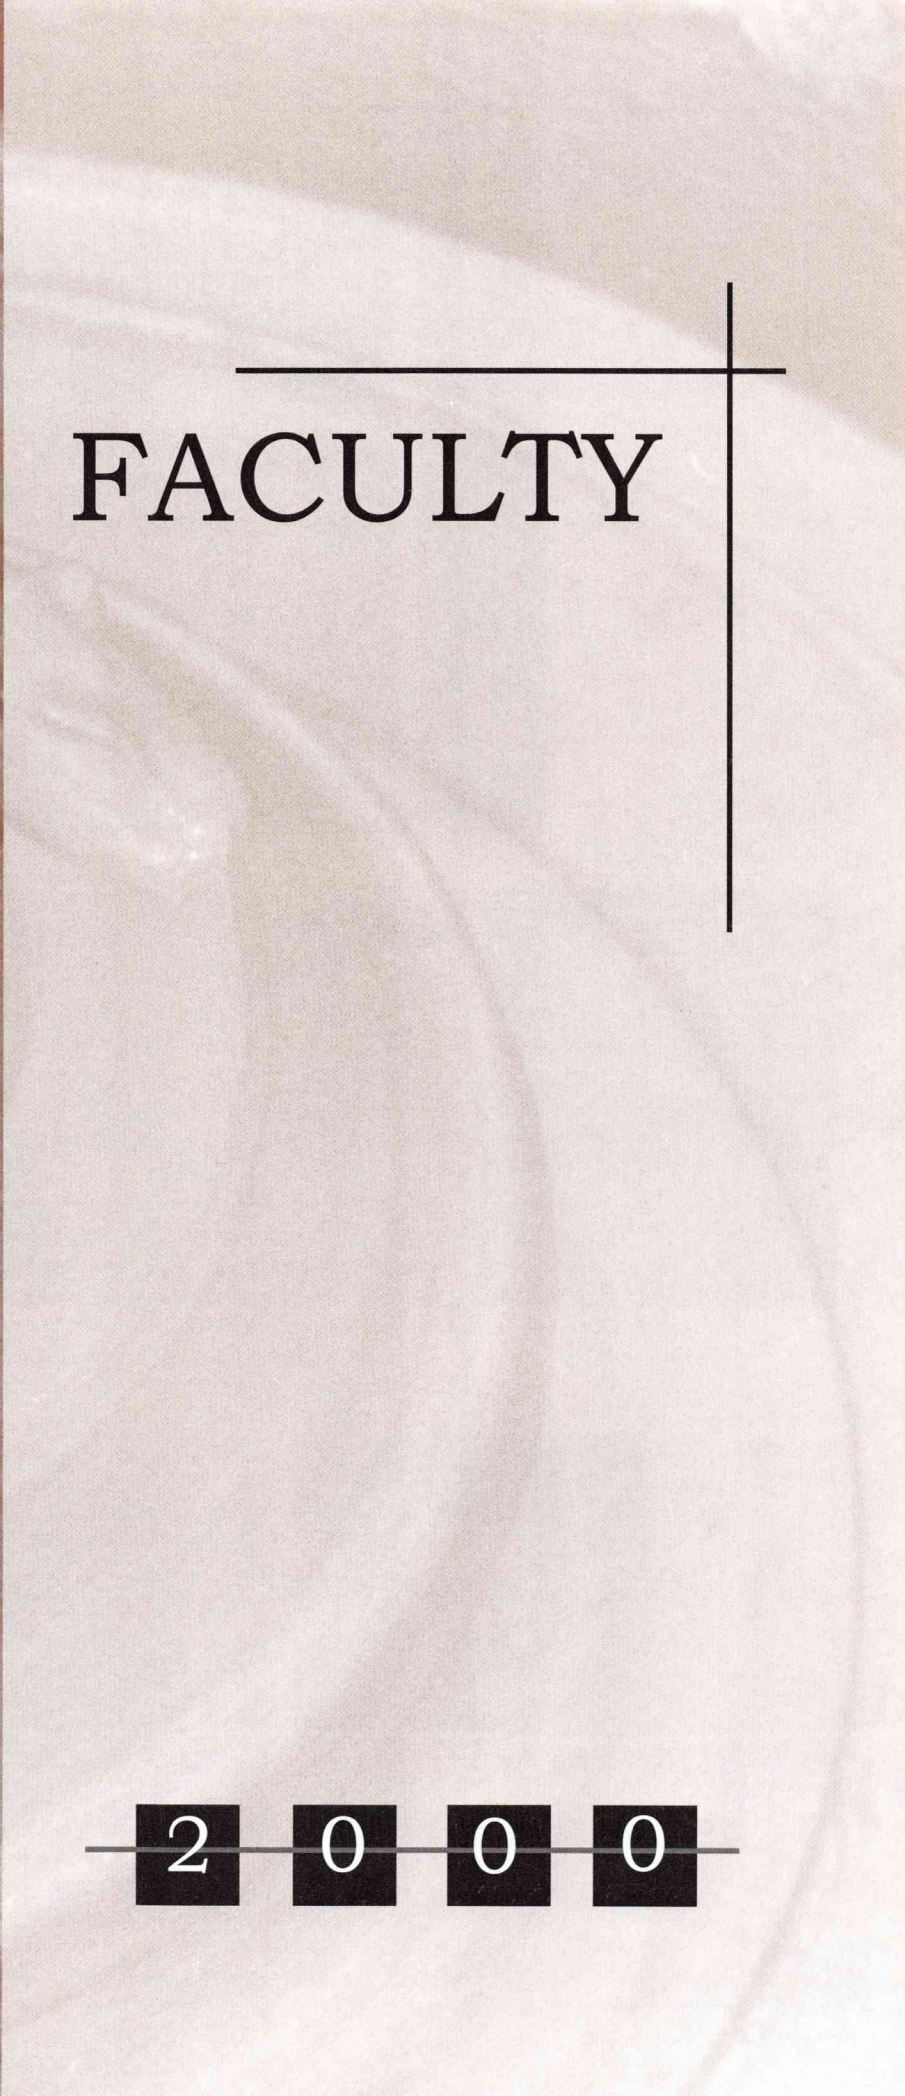

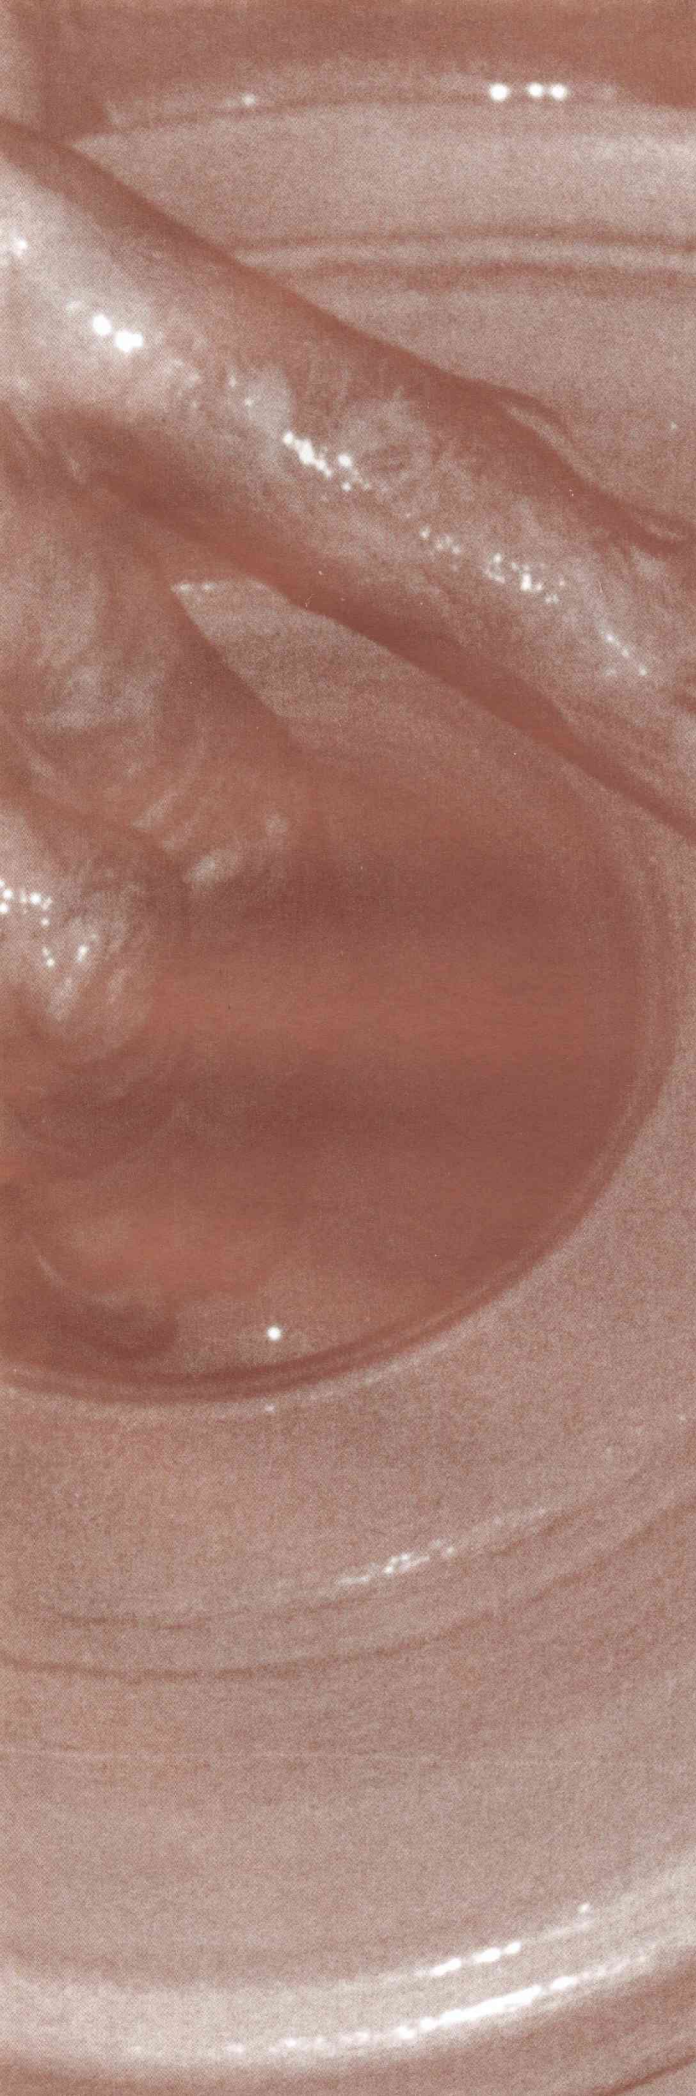

Intramurals: the sporting events created for those students who enjoy casual competition in the sports they love.

Although ultimate frisbee is technically not an "intramural event," dedicated athletes can be seen on the Northwest lawn every Friday afternoon. Neither rain nor sleet will keep these students from their game.

Professor Wally Kowalski

When I first joined the Northwest College staff, I realized Wally Kowalski was a valuable resource. He is self-taught in his electronic and technological skills: computer, electricity, acoustics, and music. He reads a technical book like I read a Dick and Jane first grade primer, and remembers everything he reads. When the Information Technology department was formed, it was obvious to me that no one could manage it better than Wally.

In addition to his leadership in IS, he is also a Bible professor. From all the evidence I have observed, the students greatly appreciate Kowalski. He is tough, but when students leave his class, they have learned something.

Kowalski has prioritized his missions in life: he wants to keep abreast of technology, but has no interest in prioritizing technology above Biblical teaching.

Best of all, Wally is a great friend. He has a genuine interest in who people are and how they are doing. Students and peers often seek him out for wisdom in some area of their lives. It gives me pleasure to call him friend and be a part of Northwest College with him.

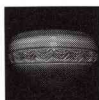

-Dan Schimelpfenig

The old man walked unsteadily across the rickety bridge. The sound of his cane beating against the decayed wood echoed in the hills to the west. As he crept above the stream below, a gust of wind crawled up the valley, swaying a pine tree in the distance. The chill of the wind seeped into the man's bones, forcing him to stop, forcing his body against the wooden railing. The seconds soon turned to minutes while the old man gazed on in retrospect. The tree had grown since his younger days of exploring the creek. He and his younger brother, who had long since passed away, built forts in the clearing just beyond the trees. And when they wanted to fight the pirates across the treacherous river, they marched boldly across the scattered rocks, shaking their sticks at their enemies.

One summer of fighting the pirates stood out the most: the summer the bridge was built. That was the last summer the brothers built their forts in the clearing. The coming of the bridge brought the boys' entry into adulthood. The bridge brought a convenience the man couldn't part with. The man married and left home but returned each year to the bridge. As years passed, the wooden structure changed. The bridge creaked and sagged but still held the weight of those who used it. The bridge survived the many storms that rolled over the distant hills. The bridge still held use, even if its sole purpose meant providing rest for an old man.

IN process

Pottery is thought to be one of the first man-made synthetics. Potters create the clay through heating and dehydrating the water found naturally within the clay. The product of the irreversible, dehydration process is ceramics.

To enhance the quality of pottery, most potters temper their clay, meaning they add a number of different materials that reduces cracking in the final stages.

One important contribution to ceramics is the potter's wheel, though no one knows when it was introduced. The wheel frees both hands to symmetrically shape and mold the clay. Another aspect includes decoration, which increases the pottery's value. One of the earliest methods of decorating was through impressions of fingerprints and rope.

But now, O LORD, thou art our father, we are the clay, and thou our potter, and we are all the work of thy hands. Isaiah 64:8

After forming the pot's shape, they must be dried and smoothed in a process called turning. The pottery is then fired in a kiln where the atmosphere contributes greatly to its coloring.

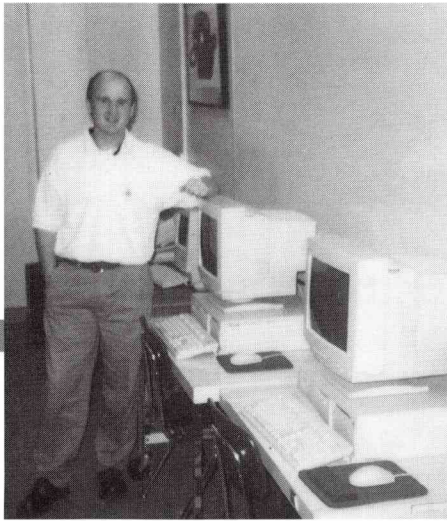

The scripture has much to say about the ceramic process. Isaiah 64:8 states: "But now, O LORD, thou art our father, we are the clay, and thou our potter, and we are all the work of thy hands." We believe our Father forms us and has a plan for our lives that began prior to our birth. We are His clay; He molds and forms us after His likeness.

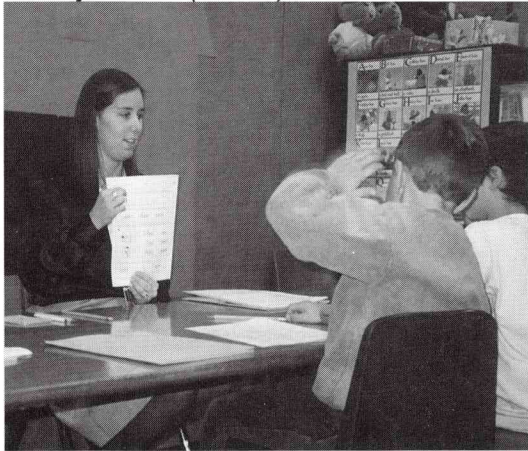

Perhaps the processes of turning and firing are most difficult. God, our Potter, smooths our imperfections with His hands. He scrapes away the scars and sins that cover so many areas of our lives. He places us in the fire to create a firmness and strength that only comes through knowing Him. He molds, forms, and shapes while leaving His imprints in our lives. The process never ends.

5ive STAR

The purpose of our ministry is twofold: to advance the kingdom of God and to give Him glory by means of the talents He has given us.

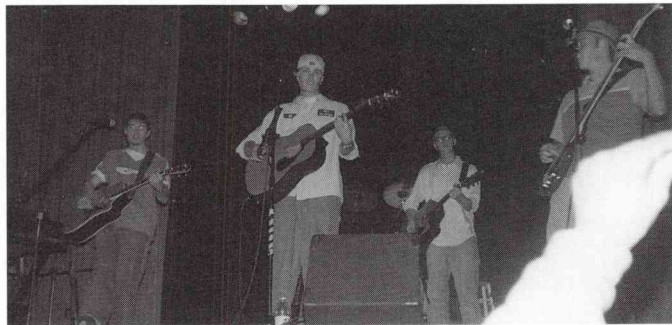

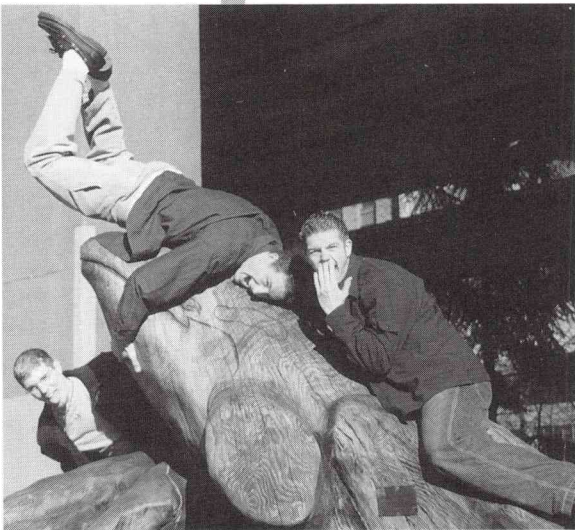

Our band verse is Ephesians 3:20-21 "Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever! Amen."

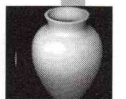

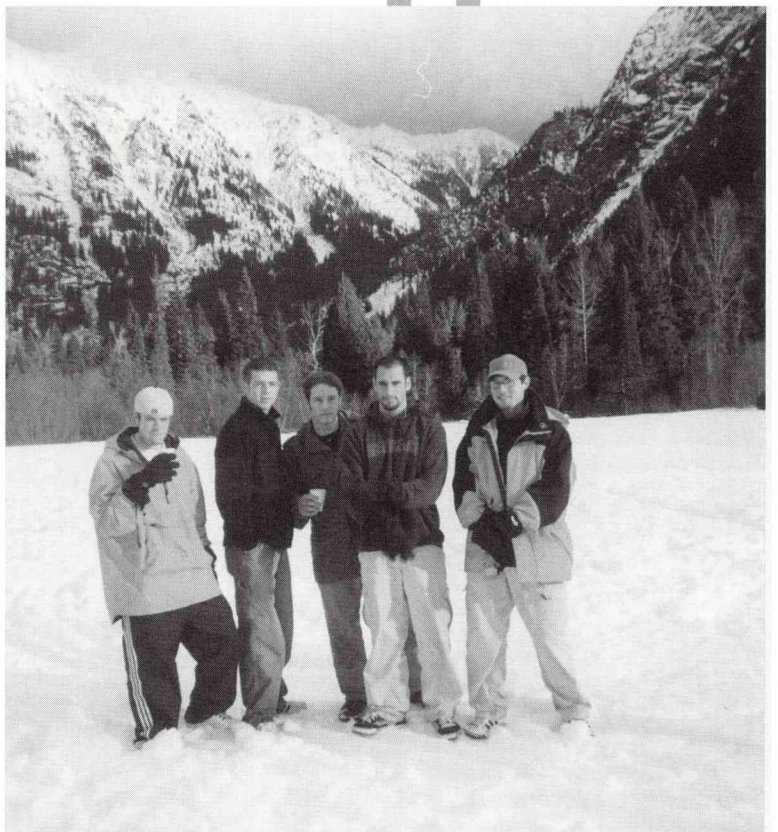

Every individual in this ministry is an answer to prayer. What's amazing is to look back and see how God prepared each of us with the purpose of bringing this group together. Our common ground is the Lord, first and foremost. Secondly, we are all doing something that we love to do: play music. We don't know what lies ahead of us, but we are placing our trust in God and His perfect plan for our lives.

Band Members:

Roy Rowland, Tim Lucas, Gabe Bray, Jeremy Inman, and Vince.

Good-bye Angie Gillaspie

Angela Marie Gillaspie. She's also fondly known as RD Angie. Maybe you met her when you got called down for a discipline meeting for breaking quiet hours, streaking the halls, or roller blading in the dorms. Maybe you were having a hard day and just needed a friend. Whatever your contact with Angie has been, I'm confident that you'll never forget it.

Angie came to Northwest the fall of 1995 to fill the position of Resident Director. As the RD Angie takes care of maintenance, housing, check-ins and checkouts, spill kit incidents, write ups, fire drills, power outages, and the noise level. However, the part of the job she loves is working with people.

As a student you may have spent time with Angie going to the ER in the middle of the night, taking a walk on a nice day, or talking and praying with her as you shared about a difficult time.

As a RA you see another side of Angie. True, she delivers the business part of the job, yet she also encourages and points you in the right direction as you struggle as an RA. She also loves to have fun with the RAs. You should see how calm our Reverend Zena remains when the RAs get lost on outings. Also, as a RA you experience the many strange and fun activities that she plans such as . . . oh, I can't say, it's confidential. Without her constant support, many RAs would not have made it.

As a faculty or staff member, you've been able to share in Angie's fun and business side. Rose Kim-Smith, Angie's friend and colleague, expresses it this way: "I've worked with Angie for five wonderful years. Angie is one of the most selfless people I know. She has a welcoming personality that sets everyone at ease and always puts others before herself. She's a team player, who is thoughtful and progressive in her thinking. She is dependable and conscientious. We've spent some late nights working on Campus days and other events, and she was never one to complain. I've always admired her professionalism, but I've loved her friendship. We've had a lot of great times together and I will really miss her."

Angie entered Northwest knowing she would be the RD. However, I believe I speak for how she feels when I say that I know she's experienced far more than she expected and wouldn't trade a moment. To many others and myself, Angie became more than just the women's RD--she's a dependable friend. She's etched on my memory bank as the person who writes many songs, loves to have fun, and loves a home cooked meal. What I really admire in Angie is her love for God and her desire to know Him more. Whenever someone shares their hurting heart, she takes the request to God and leaves it in His hands. I will remember Angie as a woman running towards God, the person I had my first discipline meeting with, and a friend who's helped me become the person I am today.

Angie, as you head on towards your next adventure, know that you've left footprints on our hearts.

Editor's Notes

The 1999-2000 year brought both excitement and challenge for the Karisma Yearbook Staff. Jessica Dux, photographer editor, joined the returning staff of Katrina Croutworst as Executive Editor, Becky Ouldhouse as Assistant Editor, and Mike Bishop as Business Editor. From the beginning of the academic year we strived to mold our talents around the vision of our Creator.

As a staff we would like to thank all of those who contributed to creating this book. Thanks to our advisor Jennifer Fetters and the yearbook class. Thank you, Mike Archer, for another great year and for always sharing what the Spirit has placed on your heart. Thank you to Dr. Nelson and the ASB for purchasing a new computer and camera equipment for us. The new equipment saved us countless hours. Again, Julia Young, you always pull through for us. Thank you for your continual willingness to help, even with minimal notice. We would also like to extend our gratitude to all of those who contributed their photography skills: Phil Gustafson, Jed Rusyniak, Mary Walker, Gordon Sherman, Ronica Bishop, and all of you who graciously donated your personal pictures. We would also like to thank Stephanie Kenney, who offered her artistic skills in drawing an image for our theme In the Potter's Hands.

Mostly, we would like to thank our heavenly Father. He saw us through the many long hours and frustration that every deadline brings. Thanks be to the Creator, who continually molds and shapes our lives.
