"The illimitable, silent, never-resting thing called Time, rolling, rushing on, swift, silent, like and all-embracing ocean-tide, on which we and all the universe swim like exhaltations, like apparation which are, and then are not: this is forever very litterally a miracle; a thing to strike us dumb, for we have no word to speak about it."

*Thomas Carlyle (1795-1881)
Scottish historian*

Time seems to stand still until you enter the life of a college student. Where we were once struggling to find something to do, we now find there's not enough time to do all that our hearts desire.
Where we once found entertainment in riding our bikes, going over to Billy's and building a treehouse, we now find ourselves spending time in the library, attending group project meetings and putting in our time at work .

The one hour nap we once found so difficult to sit still for, we crave

these days.

What happened? Well,

one day you walk onto a quaint

60 acre park-like college campus.

You're young, excited, anxious, even naive. You leave all the things that were once familiar to you to experience change. Your fresh mind embraces the newness of it all- the dorm life, chapel, classes.

Somehow you forget in the first few months that this is supposed to be school. But then, as you accumulate in years, you anticipate the proverbial, end of the tunnel. You eagerly anticipate graduation. The challenges of life ahead hide behind your anticipation of moving into the "real world." You look back and see that you're not the same eager person you were when you first started. But then you feel that diploma in your hand and you realize that you've evolved. A rush of accomplishment overwhelms you.

A TIME OF CHANGE

Suddenly, a flash of fear inundates you and you see a vision of that 60 acre campus again. You make a profound link between your present fear and the one that once accompanied you to college. It will now accompany you into the world. You realize you've been through a time of change.

JACQUALYN RANDOLPH

She has played many diverse roles in twenty eight years of service at Northwest College. Starting out in the library, she moved to the bookstore and then began teaching and acting as registrar. Today, it's plain to see her passion for the scriptures as she so actively teaches classes like Historical Books, Methods of Bible Study and Exploring the Bible. Students agree that her heartfelt emotion in class and one on one adds an personal element that most campuses lack today. Her gentle spirit is refreshing and is a subtle reminder of home.

But as much time as she puts into the campus, her life does extend off the NC campus. Bill and Jaquie were married on June 29, 1962, and have two children, one daughter, one son. In her spare time, Jaquie loves to study, which might explain her passion for teaching. She likes hand work such as crocheting and knitting. Together, the couple enjoy travelling and relish stamps in their passports from Israel, Egypt, Italy, Romania, Austria, Singapore and Fiji.

Despite her love for the Bible, one thing Jaquie contests (in good fun of course) is a passage in the old testament. She maintains there will be no milk and honey flowing in heaven. If God made us in His likeness, it'll be Diet Coke and pizza.

Thank you Jaquelyn Randolph for your efforts toward improving the lives that have crossed your path.

COLLEGE SERVICES

Marsha Goosens brightens the library with her dazzling smile (above). Gayle Turner and Nola Braddy dedicate time and care to the bookstore (right).

SERVING TIME

Whether they are serving us in the cafeteria, bookstore, library or as security, our college services staff seems to be made up of a special group of people. After all, they have a tough job, working early mornings in the cafeteria, 24 hour days ensuring our campus safety, and long hours in the bookstore and SUB, all to make our time here at NC a little easier. Truly they have devoted much time and energy, and we are grateful. Thank you college services!

SPIRITUAL EMPHASIS

Farina ON Fire

Sam Farina, this year's Spiritual Emphasis week speaker, started out on fire, challenging the student body throughout the week and went out with a bang. From the very beginning of the week, it was evident to see Pastor Farina's energy, his enthusiasm for the Word of God and his heart for young people.

Sam encouraged young people to be sensitive to the voice of God and the leading of the Holy Spirit, especially concerning their purposes in life. He also spoke of having a romance with God, saying that worship and prayer would bring us also into this romance. Using visual illustrations made Mr. Farina's examples and ideas take hold in each student's memory. Overall, it was a powerful week. Lives were changed, and it set the year into an exciting direction.

Sam Farina, the Spiritual Emphasis speaker for the fall, brought Bible based teaching to apply to today's world (above). Mr. Farina takes the time to advise Corey Smith one on one (top).

SENIOR SPEAKERS

After four years of listening, FINALLY
The Seniors Speak

Clammy palms and dry throats. Inundated with pages and pages of sermon notes they stood, looking out on their peers. Searching for their friends from the podium, they silently recited quick prayers of "Please God, just get me through these next 45 minutes." And those of us who had the privilege of hearing them received a real treat. Each speaker showed their uniqueness and individuality through their messages they had to share. The time devoted to the day was well spent. After all, it was the seniors who were speaking, sharing a wealth of experience and knowledge with us. For the some, it was a small glimpse of that which was yet to come. For others, it was a time of reflection and encouragement. All in all, the senior speakers did a wonderful job.

Eli Loera brings his message as the first senior speaker of the year (above left). Kyle Riley executes the final touches for his day in chapel (above). Mel Allerdings and Curt Anderson discuss the pressures of having to speak for the student body (left).

Take 15 new improved voices, a band consisting of a drummer, a pianist, and a bass player, students that have hearts for God, a fresh director, and you come out with a terrific musical group. The 1995-1996 His Praise graced the ears of Northwest students and people in the community as well. Under the direction of Brenda Rasmussen, His Praise was a new experience for everyone involved. There were freshmen, sophomore, junior and seniors. Despite the differences, the group bonded and became good friends.

Brad Murphy a freshman in the group said that his main goal was to better his musical skills as well as have the chance to minister. The group wanted to be a unit, not a group of individuals trying to minister to the community, and they also wanted to be responsible to one another. Together they ministered to the community in song.

Amy Griffith, a His Praise junior and returning singer of three years, said the hardest part about working together as a group came in getting to know one another at the beginning of the year. She wanted the students at Northwest to know that the "people in the group were real people with stress, homework and bills to pay." Amy also said she felt very lucky to be able to work with such talented students; she hoped that the glory was all going to the one who deserved it, God.

Experiencing the Music

When David W. Yoder was asked just what he liked most about Concert Choir, he thought for a minute, then smiled and replied, "The great talented young people." In nearly 40 years of teaching, Yoder has had all sorts of experience with young people and music programs all over the United States. He has worked with students in Concert Choir, giving them the chance to experience all types of music as well as the chance to minister through song.

With 33 students in the choir, David Yoder had the chance to do some things that many larger choirs couldn't do. In the Spring semester the choir ministered in churches every other weekend. They performed pieces from various composers like Bach and Mozart. They also had the chance to do a 10 day tour, after school was over, in Washington, Oregon, and in northern California.

Yoder believes there is always somewhere that you can minister to people, even if you are the shy type. He says with excitement, "Students who might be too timid can become part of a group and get lost in it, actually getting the chance to minister in song with a group of people. This lets them be free and not so frightened of the experience." Yoder encourages students no matter what their major, to get involved in a performance group.

Strings Attached

The Orchestra, 40 students strong, this year soared to new heights under the direction of David Yoder, NC's new director. In the past Northwest Orchestra has had very little exposure. This year Yoder changed that. In the first semester the orchestra played in chapel and "flabbergasted" people with its ability and strength.

Using Yoder's own musical arrangements for two-thirds of their music and filling in with other leading composers' music, the orchestra played in several churches during both semester as well as at the college in chapel and in concert.

They also has the chance to play at the Northwest district council meeting in Oregon, which Northwest has never had the opportunity to do. The players and their director were very excited about the entire year and hope their success this year will mean even better things for the ones to come.

SMT NIGHT

...it all came down to

One December Night

The hot room filled quickly with people and the teams grew nervous. Seeing the chapel full of familiar faces eased some of the tensions, but in another way, it made it all that much more difficult. On Friday, December 1, 1995, the NC promotions department held their annual summer ministry team audition night. Five teams were chosen to represent Northwest for the following summer. They are: ACTS, The Edge, FireEscape, ID, and PB and J.

Each team will perform in camps, churches and youth groups throughout the Northwest region which includes Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, southern Idaho and Alaska. The goal of the SMTs is to represent the College, but more important, to represent Christ. Students chosen for SMT will go through the Top Gun program, designed to prepare them for ministry and to help them as they endeavor to walk with the Lord. Over the years God has used Northwest's Summer Ministry Teams to touch people's lives. Only time will tell all that God has done through the students at Northwest.

"Creating community and investing in lives" is another phrase which helps depict intentions of the RLS staff, a group of men and women committed to serve the student body with their whole hearts, souls and minds. They model healthy actions and work hard to make the floors a place where students feel free to grow and learn.

The RLS tries to accomplish these goals by one on one contact, creating accountability, training leadership, such as the Small Group Leaders, and AMS/AWS officers, providing programming such as Brother/Sister activities, retreats, floor prayer and guest speakers. All of these ideals and activities help make NC dorm life a time where "friends are found, lives are changed and dreams are made."

A Family Affair

Three different groups live together on the campus of Northwest College: single students, married students and students who want to be married. In the past these groups never seemed to join to make one. However, over the last couple of years things have been changing. For instance, several married students have actively participated in various leadership positions at school. Even our current ASB president is married. This year, the married students have participated in more events and have become more involved in campus life which is encouraging and beneficial to all.

Married student life is challenging when considering balancing family life, work and an academic load. Nevertheless, the goal of the married students is to become even more involved at Northwest College; after all, they have a lot to offer.

Purpose and Unity

1995-1996 Mission Statement: "Our purpose is to strengthen and unite women in agape love, providing them the opportunity to minister and become ministered to by the Spirit of God."

Encouraged by growing numbers, AWS officers did all they could to maintain and increase the lines of fellowship for campus women. As president Jen Belgarde put it, "We have put a lot of prayer, time and energy into every event to make them the best for the women of NC."

AMS provided opportunity for men to gather and share. With special events, chapels and guest speakers, men on campus had the chance to fellowship in an all male setting. Efforts were also combined with AWS as the two entities challenged one another in the annual clothing drive for the homeless. AMS clearly fulfilled its purpose, building men into leaders with integrity, leadership and godliness.

Living up to the challenge, AMS officers take their pie in the face from the AWS officers as a result of losing the annual homeless clothing and blanket drive (above). # Embarking on Change

As much as this year was a year of change for Northwest College, it was even more so for the Karisma staff. It started off with a bang at a summer workshop for year-book staff members. With all that the staff wanted to accomplish with this year's book, it would require a major face lift of the staff and office.

The hours were truly endless and there were many obstacles to face when trying to produce a cutting edge book. It is our hope that our struggle to acquire change will make it easier for the staffs to come.

All in all, the change was good. With advancing our technological capabilities, we were able to create a book that reflects the time in which we live more accurately. From scanning pictures to a current events section, from desktop publishing software to end of the year coverage, we take pride in the fact that our efforts can be witnessed in this very book.

Big Business

The Associated Business Students club was active again in its third year of operation. Northwest Exposure, a monthly newspaper, was led under the direction of Editor Kathryn Sebranke in the fall and continued with Catherine Lane in the Spring. The club used revenue from various projects to purchase a new Apple Macintosh for the production of the newspaper.

Other ABS projects included the Used Book Buyback increased its sales in 1995-96 providing book bargains. The Sweet & Sour Contest, also produced valuable funds by a vote by donation to select the Sweetest Faculty member (female) and the Sourest Faculty member (male) Final awards were made at the February 9 basketball game to Nola Braddy from the bookstore and Dr. John McMillin, each winning a pair of Bellevue Philharmonic Symphony tickets.

Two national organizations, SIFE and Circle K, gave business students avenues for involvement. SIFE, Students in Free Enterprise, involved members in profit-making ventures, business function and society presentations to elementary and junior high school students. A new event, the High School Entrepreneur Contest, promoted business acumen, awarding a 486 computer from corporate sponsor Radio Shack. The year culminated in April with the national SIFE competition in San Francisco.

Circle K Club is sponsored by the Kiwanis Service Organization, uniting the service of college students and community Kiwanis members. The local Kirkland chapter worked with NC chapter president, Josh Prigmore, helping at Kirkland's Happy Halloween House and selling Christmas trees for donations into local service programs. In return, the Kiwanas donated $1000 to Dr. McMillin's Romania mission project.

ABS students participated in many activities in the 1995-96 school year, all the while learning and developing skills in business organization and leadership.

The show must go on...

A team of talented students participated in NC's first production of a Broadway musical, John-Michael Tebelak and Steven Schwartz's Godspell. With ten cast members and a production ministry crew of almost 20 students, Godspell utilized the multi-faced gifts of NC students in its presentation of the Gospel of Matthew through various styles of music and drama.

Each evening ended with the cast members giving the audience an invitation to respond to the gospel. Paula Kaschele, a sophomore cast member felt encouraged in her participation with the production. "People have told me after the performances that they've seen Jesus in a new way," she said. "We've been praying that even Christians who come to Godspell will leave having caught a new glimpse of Jesus, and our prayers are being answered."

Drama club members like Devorah Williams, Virginia Eddy and Marsha Goosens put in many hours of rehearsal to present Godspell (above right). # It's a radio thang!

When asked to write about our college radio station, I began with a Hip Hop 20/20 style, a dash of funk here, a sprinkle of rock there, and a splash of rap everywhere and “the hills will be alive with the groove of music” article, but instead I shall tell you just a little bit about what we do at KCNC 610 AM.

Radio Station Manager, can you believe it? That’s me. I took over the position last spring, and I’m still going strong. The station is quite small but it has an interesting radio feeling to it. We have a number of DJs from different backgrounds, walks of life, and styles of music. Each puts heart and soul into their show, all interesting and hilarious. We play alternative, funk, soul, and rock sound that keeps us on track with the latest in the Christian music scene. Living in Seattle, we tend to hear the grungier bands, which is pretty cool and funkee man!

Do you dig the names of some of our show of what? Here are just a few of them: The Poly-Esther Music Meltdown, School House Rock, The Brian and Jack Show, The Commando Nuns, Pork & Beans Show, The Muppet Show, and Air Raid. What would people think if they knew that we were Jesus Freaks on the radio? Well, you know what? We don’t care.

The aim of the radio station this year is to boost the station up to 10 volts, so that everybody around campus can listen to this little station with attitude. God willing everything should go well.

Before I end, I would like to thank Prof. Gillespie for all his help and the DJs for their faithful commitment to the radio, and most of all my thanks goes to my partner and Program Director Charis Marquis.

So if you’re bored sometime in your dormroom, just sit back, relax and flip on the radio, ‘cause KCNC 610 AM is in your face!

Peace

In late August, a group of strangers gathered in the Beatty Lounge to meet each other. In late October this same group walked away from the gym close friends. Needless to say 1995 was a great year! Coach Johnson sums up the season with these words, "Although we didn't win as many games as we wanted to, what I will always remember about the '95 season was how close this team was. Lifetime friendships were made and that's what really makes a season a success."

On the court the Eagles enjoyed tremendous crowd support. The team was led offensively by returning senior Marlo Huchison. Senior setter Stephanie Baller went down early in the season with a serious knee injury but staying within character, toughed it out and returned to the court three weeks later. Junior Brett Spore played a key role in adding power from the right side. The team also benefited from super sophs Mickey Egress, Toni John and Leah Mallory. In '95 several new faces appeared on the court for the Eagles. Transfer Jackie Creamer's hustling diving style kept the fans on their feet. The freshmen class arrived quietly and quickly left their mark. Molly Galbreth made impressive strides, while Kori Lenz anchored the middle. Cami Kennett's and Jamie Gregerson's solid fundamental play earned them both starting roles.

The 1995 season brought a changing of the guard to Eagle volleyball. While we welcomed five new players to the program, we said farewell to two that had been thrilling fans since 1992; Stephanie Baller and Marlo Hutchison played their last game for the Eagles in a dominating performance against Pierce College. Their contribution to the program was immense, and we will miss them dearly.

The Northwest College Eagles finished the 1995 season with a record of 6 wins, 10 losses and 1 tie. Yet these numbers do not reflect the progress made by the team as they played through the most challenging schedule the program has ever undertaken. Looking back on the season, Josh Jacobs had this to say, "We may not have excelled on the collegiate soccer field, but we bonded as brothers in Christ. I guess you could call this a rebuilding year. Next year we will more than excel."

With a group of new prospects recruited by Coach Steve Turner and several returning starters, the Eagles plan to leave this somewhat disappointing season behind and move on toward success in the fall on '96.

Men's Basketball

The success of the men's basketball was built on third year Eagles Brett Wille and Chad Gallatin, with senior Brad Fox joining the team in the second semester. Contributors included Nick Miller with his forty-two inch vertical, Justin Henry with his strong three point shot and the hard work of Lincoln Nugen, the team's only freshman. There was a noticeable change with the addition of Fox and Eddy Haskins at the semester. Morale picked up and the team seemed to function more completely. Overall, it was a great year, with each player filling an important role and creating a truly unified team.

Intramural Football

It's the abuse men live for, football. And every Saturday for six weeks during the fall semester, everyone was given the opportunity to "tackle" the game. Tromping onto the Seahawk's field, they all came, with one goal in mind- to be the champions. Only one team would have the privilege of winning the coveted title, with bragging rights for the rest of the school year.

According to Jeremy Stamback, intramural football is an excellent way to encourage floor unity. Although it was fun, it was also competitive and rough. But then again, it wouldn't be football without those things, right?

Building up to the championship game one cold Saturday morning, the members of the 100 floor found themselves the envy of every other male on and off campus, as they claimed victory. And now, echos of "yeah, but we still won the intramural football championship" ring through rooms, as the comeback to every argument, football or not.

collegiate Cross Country was terrific. The 1995 season saw all of the top ten all-time performances fall on the women's side and eight of 10 on the men's side. With only three men and three women they were not able to run a full team this season.

The most exciting event of the 1995 Cross Country season was the NCAA National Championship meet. Only in its second year, two NC women qualified, finishing 12th and 14th both being named All-American's. With all of their successes, NC's program has already progressed faster than any other NCAA program ever.

GRACE<sup>BY</sup> WHICH I STAND

H O M E C O M I N G

Homecoming 1996 "Grace By Which I Stand," began with spirit week, including different dress themes for each day and prizes for the most creatively dressed. Dr. LeRoy Johnson and his wife Marilyn hosted a special chapel, introducing each member of the court complete with personal messages from friends and family. At half-time ASB President Don Eritz and wife Marilyn crowned Chuck Pitcher and Neely Trudeau Homecoming King and Queen. A parent's brunch on Saturday capped off the memorable week

WHERE DOES EXTRA CHANGE GO?

It wouldn't really be college if we weren't living paycheck to paycheck. And somewhere in between, scrape together all of our quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies to buy just one more latte.

Snapple lottery tickets licience tabs hairspray haircuts books movies clothes parking fines gas flowers tanning ski lift tickets dates lipstick engagement rings lattes oil ferry tolls library fines video games Doritos Sonics tickets Snickers cars CDs birthday cards phone bills perfume gym memberships stamps speeding tickets razor blades Slurpees study listening shopping talking on the phone watching TV cleaning research chapel meetings taking notes typing papers eating basketball sing lunch visiting laugh driving tennis class volunteering work homework hanging out practicing projects

Time? What time? Packing our schedules so tight, we learn to live on all the sleep we can get: be it eight hours or eight minutes.
