At NU, you’ll experience a rigorous scholarly environment where faculty, staff, and your classmates are all in pursuit of Jesus (hence the name of this magazine). He goes before us and is first in all we do.

Our campus ethos is summed up in four words: Jesus First. Jesus Always.

The Pursuit of Jesus First

DR. JOSEPH CASTLEBERRY, PRESIDENT, NORTHWEST UNIVERSITY

Undoubtedly, as you have looked at Northwest University as a possible college choice, you have noticed the phrase “Jesus first, Jesus always” attached to our name and logo. As president of the university, I want you to know what we mean by those words. Since our founding in 1934, we have dedicated ourselves to making disciples of Jesus Christ who take up the mission of God in obedience.

College students are the coolest people on the planet, and we admire every generation that comes to us. Located in the Pacific Northwest, our students tend to live at the cutting edge of cultural development. But we don’t base our community on what is “cool” or “relevant.” We start with Jesus, who is the same yesterday, today, and forever (Hebrews 13:8). Our vision statement urges us all to “Carry the Call”—meaning that we believe Jesus has a purpose for every one of us and will call us to the life and career that will most perfectly fulfill us in His will.

As a Christian higher learning community, we take very seriously the education of our students at the deepest and most current level of academic excellence. If Jesus comes first, we feel a responsibility to serve Him to the utmost of our ability. That’s why Northwest University graduates frequently go on to graduate study at many of the world’s most prestigious academies. Whether students go on to graduate or professional schools or go straight into their careers, we expect them to leave here richly prepared to honor Jesus in their work.

Like any college, we also work hard to make sure students have a great social experience. The word you hear most often at Northwest is “community.” You can sense a desire among students to build and cultivate strong friendships. As part of a small college, you will know your classmates and professors and they will know and support you. But our reality as an expression of the body of Christ adds a deeper dimension to our community: we have a lot of fun, enjoy close friendships, and do it all to please the Lord.

Our commitment to our students—both today as well as in our past and future—is to keep Jesus Christ at the forefront of our community. He goes first, and we will follow Him no matter the cost.

WHERE ACADEMIC
MEETS THE GRACE OF CHRIST

When you think about studying in a Christian environment, what immediately comes to mind? Perhaps you think of required Bible and theology classes or a professor starting a class by praying or leading a devotional. While those things are certainly part of the academic experience at NU, we don't stop there.

We believe in the holistic integration of faith and learning so that as you think about the world and the subjects you're most interested in—whether that's ministry, science, business, technology, or the humanities—you'll not only develop your intellectual and professional skills but deepen your faith in Jesus at the same time.

WE ASKED A FEW FACULTY MEMBERS TO DISCUSS JESUS-FIRST LEARNING, CAREER PREPARATION, AND STUDENT SUCCESS.

How does NU's commitment to "Jesus first" affect your classroom?

"Each of my classes begin with sharing a Scripture verse, a devotional, or a spiritual thought that intersects with the day's lesson, followed by a prayer. This initial orienting moment allows us to "fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of our faith" (Hebrews 12:2 BSB), the very Word who became flesh (John 1), before we move on to learning principles about the world He created (Colossians 1:16). Outside of the classroom, I also intercede for my students, knowing that it is my ultimate privilege as a Christian educator to instill in them a love for Jesus first before I develop their writing skills."

-DR. CLINT BRYAN, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, ENGLISH

WE ASKED A FEW FACULTY MEMBERS TO DISCUSS JESUS-FIRST LEARNING, CAREER PREPARATION, AND STUDENT SUCCESS.

How do you prepare students for the real world?

“Aside from an endless number of opportunities in class to reference real-world scenarios, we have two community-based internships built into the senior year of the Exercise Science major. This allows for hands-on exposure in real-world settings, and we find that experience is the key to preparation. We have had several students admitted to Doctor of Physical Therapy programs, which is exciting, and most will be serving others as clinicians, therapists, or instructors in their respective careers.”

-LELAND NIELSEN, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, EXERCISE SCIENCE

What have your graduates gone on to do?

“I have had the honor of teaching students who have secured jobs at Microsoft, Amazon, Costco, Smartsheet, and other organizations. It has been a blessing to connect with graduates over the years who are living out their Christian faith and purpose because of the learning they gained at Northwest University.”

-DR. ROWLANDA CAWTHON, DEAN OF THE COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

THE THING ABOUT OUR COMMUNITY

Something happens when you attend a university with others who truly put Jesus first: you feel understood and supported in what matters most. In such a world, conversations deepen. Friendships blossom. Smiles widen. And confidence grows. Over time, a trusted community is formed that allows you to venture out and try new things.

Studious things. Career things. Food things. Nature things. Goofy things. God things.

And this is our thing: creating an encouraging, Jesus-first learning community where you can grow to become all that God intended.

DISCOVERING WHO YOU ARE IN COMMUNITY

College is a time for academic and intellectual growth. It's a time to gain clarity about your passions and to figure out who you want to be as a young adult. One of the biggest ways NU students experience this self-discovery is through community engagement and campus events.

Here's how they engage in campus life, where lifelong friendships are often made.

It's easy for a Christian university to make a bold claim like: "We're putting Jesus first!" But what does that actually look like in the day to day? How do we live it out? We asked several students and their parents to describe their experience. Here's what they shared.

Trey Waggoner

Senior // Major: Business Management // Hometown: Caldwell, ID

Northwest University's emphasis on putting Jesus first has taught me the importance of striving for excellence in my studies and allowing my faith to shape every professional and personal opportunity that comes my way.

Kassady Waggoner

Freshman // Major: Elementary Education // Hometown: Caldwell, ID

At NU, the faculty and students alike are committed to seeking Christ. Specifically, my life group has provided a dedicated space to foster community with classmates and dig deeper into the Word of God.

Trey Waggoner

Kassady Waggoner

Dad, Keith Waggoner:

While I appreciate how Trey and Kassady have grown academically thanks to the honors program and the opportunities they've had to develop deep friendships with other students, it has been the unwavering commitment of Northwest University to help their students become fully equipped disciples of Jesus that has inspired my admiration and loyalty.

A Bold Claim

Chris Heredia

Junior // Major: UX Design

Hometown: Kent, WA

It honestly blows me away that I go to a school where it's not only the faculty who care about your growth and walk with God but also fellow students—especially my interactions with my fellow Act Six scholars and Student Activities Board (SAB) team, and more notably, with the students I live with.

Mom, Angelina Heredia:

There's a joy and sense of peace that comes from being able to send your son to a college where you know his love for Christ is supported and will only deepen while he is experiencing his college years. I have seen him grow in many ways since he started attending NU.

Chris Heredia

Joslyn Huff

Jenna Huff

Joslyn Huff

Junior // Major: Elementary Education

Hometown: Buckley, WA

Whether it is time spent in chapel throughout the week, Pursuit worship nights, professors praying in class, or a fellow student praying for an upcoming test I have, it is evident that the idea of “Jesus first” is truly what makes NU a genuine home to so many—including me.

Jenna Huff

Junior // Major: Elementary Education

Hometown: Buckley, WA

Going to chapel and worshipping with my friends is something I really value at NU because it puts Christ at the center of my days and my friendships.

Parents, Thad and Dana Huff:

Knowing Jesus was at the center of our daughters' college experience and education put our minds at ease as parents. Knowing they would have the opportunity to develop lifelong friendships with other students who share similar values has been really encouraging.

Our 56-acre campus is located in Kirkland, Washington, which has been voted by Money magazine as the Fifth Best Place to Live in the U.S. It makes sense why: Kirkland and the Greater Seattle Area are not only home to some of the best activities and amenities but is also ground zero for some of the most influential companies in the world. Studying at NU means you're positioning yourself for a future of bright possibilities—one that may even land you in your dream job.

To see all that Kirkland and NU have to offer, schedule a visit. We'd love to show you around.

Creating Tech for Good

At NU's Creatio Center for Technology, Media, and Design, our students not only learn powerful practical skills that will position them for their future careers as technology leaders, they also learn to think deeply about the importance of keeping their Christian faith at the center of their work. Craig Chapman, the dean of Creatio, and Kelsey Moore, who is the first graduate of the User Experience (UX) Design program, share more about NU's distinctly Christian focus.

We are all children of the Great Creator, Christ, and our creations should reflect that. Technology—especially the internet—can be a great tool, but it can also be used for a lot of negative reasons. Christians need to be engaged with creating technology so that we can make things that are beautiful and God-honoring. Our creations have ethical and moral applications.

Craig Chapman

DEAN OF THE CREATIO CENTER FOR TECHNOLOGY, MEDIA, AND DESIGN

A big discussion point in my UX design classes was the importance of having empathy and a clear design ethos to help us focus on the “why” behind our creations. As a Christian, my design ethos is that I want to make a difference in people’s lives. I want to focus on human-centered designs, and studying at NU really helped solidify this goal for me.

Big Tech Needs Developers and Jesus Followers. We're Preparing Both.

Northwest University is surrounded by some of the most successful tech companies in the world. How can we bless them? By training computer scientists, data analysts, and UX designers who are highly skilled and have the heart and character of Jesus.

At the Creatio Center for Technology, Media, and Design, our students aren't just being prepared for exceptional careers—they're being built in faith to serve in mission fields called Microsoft, Google, Amazon, and many others.

We're innovating in ways that equip our students to thrive in the 21st century. Yet our mission remains unchanged: We do it all to advance the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Big Fun Right in Our Backyard

The Pacific Northwest is home to some of the best locations, activities, and events in the United States. You won't have to travel far from the NU campus to explore Insta-worthy parks and forests, attend incredible concerts from local and touring artists, wander some world-class museums and exhibits, and eat at some of the best restaurants. There's never a shortage of things to do here—and most of it is just a short drive away!

“Hey Siri,
Find a
Church
Near Me.”

Students considering which university to attend have lots of questions. Some—like costs and majors—are obvious. Other questions are less apparent but just as important.

“Where will I attend church?” is one of those questions.

At Northwest University, there’s good news when it comes to the Good News. We are surrounded by Jesus-first churches; many are pastored by graduates from our College of Ministry.

To see a list of the many churches that surround us, check out northwestu.edu/churches.

A World of Opportunity

We know that affording a private Christian university can be a challenge. But here's the thing: If God is calling you to a place like NU, we believe He will open the right doors and provide the resources you need to pursue that calling.

We also do everything we can to help you get there. Every year, the Office of the President and the NU Foundation Board of Trustees hosts the President's Banquet—a semiformal event where community members and friends of the university come together to raise money for our Opportunity Fund. The donations received are used for many different scholarships, one of which is our full-tuition President's Scholarship.

Sarah Garat, a senior Nursing student from Duvall, Washington, is one of the recipients of the President's Scholarship and has this to say about her experience:

“If it wasn't for the President's Scholarship, I would not have been able to attend NU. No other university captured my heart and aligned with my dreams like Northwest, and it was certainly the grace of God on my life that empowered me to excel in academics and earn the full-tuition scholarship I needed to follow His calling.”

CAN I AFFORD A PRIVATE CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY?

The answer might surprise you.

WE START LOW AND AIM HIGH.

As you can see from the graph, NU's total cost is significantly lower than other private universities in the area. But our accreditation and academic standards are high. It's why we were recently selected as a College of Distinction and have been rated as an exceptional value.

Prices do not reflect student fees, books, personal expenses, etc.

NU Tuition and Room and Board*

Tuition: $35,535
Room and Board: $10,647
Student Fees: $500
Total: $46,682

*Prices are from the 2023–2024 school year.

HOW MUCH WILL THIS COST ME?

While we can't give an exact number before an application has been submitted, our net price calculator helps students and families plan for the future by generating estimates of actual costs.

To use this tool, visit:
northwestu.edu/netcalculator.

DON'T BE MISLED BY A LARGER SCHOLARSHIP.

For private schools, typically you'll see one of two options when it comes to tuition: Either 1) a college with a lower overall starting cost but minimal scholarships, or 2) a college with a higher sticker price but strong scholarships. At NU, we mix the best of both worlds. We start with a lower "sticker price" than many schools in our region, and we add an extensive amount of generous scholarships. This leaves our average cost for students at a fiercely competitive price with any school in the area. This is just one of the reasons that U.S. News & World Report listed us as one of their Top 20 Best Value Schools.
