

STUDENT BULLETIN

May 24, 1963

The library staff would like to express gratitude for the response so far to the library's surplus book sale. Almost half of the books that have been put out have been bought. We are still adding some books from time to time, and especially in the field of literature there are still quite a few good titles unsold. Recent additions include several volumes of Reader's Digest condensed books.

The money received in this sale goes into a fund used for buying books in second hand stores. Each 35¢ to 50¢ you spend from our "for sale" shelves eventually brings one more quality book into the library.
