President

D. V. Hurst

As Ward Tanneberg this month concludes his association with Northwest College, I have asked him to present a special guest column to the readers of the NORTHWESTERNER:

. . . and He gave Himself. . .

The ministry is among the very few professions in life which allows one the privilege of giving himself away. We feel the gentle persuasiveness of our Example as He said "... is the servant greater than his Lord?" Pride melts... ambitions fly away... success seems unimportant... when we see our Master's commitment to an humble yet glorious conquest of sin at Calvary!... He gave Himself...

... and so must we!

It is this understanding, imperfect though it may be, that brought me to NC three years ago. "Only one life—t'will soon be past. . . ." What can I do with my life that will last? This was and is the driving question of my heart. Coupled with the realization that, at best, any of us may give ourselves to only a very few challenges in life. . . time and ability placing their limitations on us all. . . the avenues of service upon which we choose to walk are critical. We cannot afford second-rate choices. It must be God's best. And it must be worthy of the One who gave Himself. . .

Thus, NC has become an integral part of my life-style. It is a crucial link in the ongoing of Christ's Kingdom. It is a powerful force for God in today's society. It is the foundation-stone of our Fellowship! This unusual and far-reaching ministry of the Holy Spirit in our time began in a Bible school! And through that small group of Bible students in Kansas, the Holy Spirit began a last-day era of unprecedented expansion within Christ's Kingdom that has affected the eternal destiny of millions.

Today the buildings are among the finest. The faculty is skilled and trained. The programs are academically strong. And the students are generations removed from that first significant outpouring of the Holy Spirit in the Twentieth Century. But, underneath the brick and mortar... rustling through the leaves... quickening th keen mind of a faithful instructor... gentl encircling two students who walk together... filling the classroom and chapel with an Ur speakable Presence... I have stored the Spirit moving... NOW... as He and

Yes, it is evident that God is pleased wit NC. In an age when man cries out for "truth," faithful teachers reveal the Truth... and students rise to accept a refreshing cor cept not found on the secular campuses of our day. While others struggle in learning ho to "take," NC's students are preparing f "give"... themselves... as He gave Himsel

Now, I move on to a new avenue of servic for Christ. But I shall always remember wha I have seen... and heard... and felt at NC It is an arm of the Church that is worthy of my prayers, my support and, yes, a part of my life.

And it is worthy of yours, as well!

Ward Tanneberg Accepts Pastorate In California

After nearly three years as Director of Public Relations at Northwest College, the Reverend Ward Tanneberg will leave the College to serve as pastor at the Valley Christian Center in Dublin, California. The young sevenyear-old church, located in the Bay area of Northern California, serves a commun area with a combined population approachin 40,000. It is anticipated that the area w increase to 100,000 within the next ten year

Reverend Tanneberg is a graduate of Nort west College. He received the Bachelor Arts degree in 1958. He studied for a sho time at Western Evangelical Seminary in Po land, Oregon, before entering the evangelis field. In 1960, Reverend Tanneberg beg pastoral ministry in Forks, Washington, whe he remained for nearly 51/2 years. It w from this pastorate that he was elected serve as District Youth Director for the North west District Council of the Assemblies of Go In January of 1969, he assumed his ro with the College. During this time he h not only directed the work of the departme at the College, but also pursued studies towa his Master's degree at Seattle Pacific Crime His course work at SPC is comple is now working on his dissertation

NC STUDENTS VIEW RESULTS OF OPERATION TURKEY

NC student John Tobin is at controls as Dean Rozell looks on.

Linda Rogers, Peg Smith, (NC grad now working among Indians), Skip and Dean Rozell exchange greetings at B.C. airport.

Peg Smith was an honor grad at NC—her burden has led her to this village area to labor for Christ.

Entering the church that NC students helped to build!

Jack Rozell ministered at the church dedication service. The fruits of a labor of love!

There has been an overwhelming response to Operation Turkey this year. About 45 the dents will participate in two different projects. For the third year in a row, students we planning to forfeit their Thanksgiving vacation to assist in this ministry outreach. Approximately 15 students will travel to Nanaimo, Vancouver Island, where they will work among the Indians in the Nanaimo Reservation. For the past several years, the students have given about $450 toward the work in Nanaimo. Some 55 students have spent Thanksgiving vacation and summer vacations assisting in building of the church which was dedicated September of this year. Peggy Smith, an alumnus of the college, is on full-time missionary staff at the Reserve. This year, groups of students are also planning to assist in the Home Mission work at Neah Bay in cooperation with the Northwest District and a witness outreach in the Eugene area in cooperation with the Oregon District.

In appraising Reverend Tanneberg's work over the past years, College President D.V. Hurst said, "he brought an expertise and quality to the Public Relations and Student Procurement work of the College and served t well. His broad experience in developing youth ministry programs prepared him well to relate to youth in interesting them in service to Christ and in college preparation for hat service. He organized the Public Relations Office so as to handle a large volume of work low through the year. In a day when many to promote programs and a few genuinely ed, Ward Tanneberg distinguishes himself. I am confident these qualities will continue to be evident in his ministry wherever it may lead him."

In his new work at Valley Christian Center he expects to fulfill a busy role. In addition to the traditional functions of the church, which is composed of a predominantly youthful congregation, he will oversee the church's varied community outreach which presently includes a Christian elementary school with over one hundred enrolled in grades 1-6 and a day care center. It is anticipated that the school may soon expand into the Junior High level as increased facilities and personnel become available.

An interesting footnote to his move is the

NW COLLEGE DENOMINATIONAL REPRESENTATION GROWS

A survey by the office of the Registrar at the College reveals that an increasing number of the students coming to Northwest College are from denominations outside of the sponsoring organization, the Assemblies of God. An unprecedented 15.5% of this year's student body comes from over 20 denominations. This is the highest percentage of denominational mix on record. Among the freshmen enrolling at the college this year, the percentage is even higher—with almost 20% coming from other than the Assemblies of God, predominantly from Baptist, Open Bible, and Methodist churches.

While 85% of the students on campus this fall are from the Assemblies of God, some other significant church categories are developing. Baptist students lead the roster of other church bodies with 12 students, followed by 8 from Open Bible churches, 7 from Methodist bodies (including Free Methodists) and four each from Christian and Missionary Alliance and Presbyterian Churches.

The trend is viewed as significant in the relationship of the College and its sponsoring denomination to the broader community of the Christian Church.

Another Two Percenter!

D. V. Hurst and F. McAllister receive a check from Pastor Westerfield of Sumner, Wash., representing pledged annual support of the college in the amount of 2% of the church's general income. What welcome aid to NC!

fact that he will succeed the Reverend Rick Howard who recently went to Redwood City, California, to succeed Pastor E. R. Scratch of the Neighborhood Church in Bellevue, Washington, where Reverend Tanneberg's family regularly attend. The Reverend Tanneberg, together with his wife, Dixie, and their two children, Michele and Stephen, expect to complete their move to California early in December. In the meantime he will commute on weekends to his new pastorate while concluding repsonsibilities at the College.

His new address will be Valley Christian Center, 7400 San Ramon Road (P.O. Box 2007), Dublin, California 94566.

GIFT FROM CLASS OF '72

The graduating class of 1972 has provided the money for the purchase of two glass backboards for the Northwest College pavilion. Graduating classes in the past have ma contributions to the campus in the forms various projects, and this class felt that the glass boards would serve to update the pavilion. The basketball coaches and the players are very pleased with this donation, as many of the gymnasiums they play in have glass boards and this puts them at a disadvantage if their home floor has metal backboards.

When these same students were sophomores they provided the money for the directional map that is located at the main entrance of the College.

The leadership of the graduating class is provided by President, Fred Anderson; Vice-President, Greg McPherson; and Secretary-Treasurer, Jerry Gillock. The class advisor is LeRoy Johnson.

The Eagles

Are Rolling!

Prospects for 1971-72 Eagles Basketball team are very good. Coached by Jim Hillbrick and assisted by LeRoy Johnson, the team will play a schedule of 20 games. The first outing for the Eagles will be mid-November when they travel to Anchorage, Alaska, to play Alaska Methodist University. As last year, the Eagles are hosting the Turkey Day Tournament on Thanksgiving weekend. Visiting colleges for the Tournament include Puget Sound College of the Bible, Northwest Christian College, Trinity Junior College.

The December schedule takes the Eagles to the San Francisco area to play Bethany Bible College, Concordia College, and Pentecostal Bible College. A new feature has been added to the conference competition this year. A West Coast play-off has been agreed upon within the PNCC, consisting of six teams in the Washington-Oregon area and six teams in the Northern California area. A play-off game will be held in the Northwest between the championship teams from the two conferences.

The Associated Student Body recently selected their yell squad. Elected were Bonnie Batchelor, Chehalis, Washington; Joanne Coleman, Kirkland, Washington; Mary Kin Bellevue, Washington; and Claudia Muelle., Anchorage, Alaska.

Flying Seminar

"This view of the canal of Corinth is one of the scenes to be visited by the Northwest College Flying Seminar in March, 1972. The canal was begun by Nero in Roman times with Jewish slave labor but was abandoned until completed by modern steam-power equipment towards the end of the 19th century. It demonstrates the reason for ancient Corinth's importance in the days of the Apostle Paul. The narrow four-mile isthmus made Corinth a seaport town, sparing mariners a 200-mile voyage around the stormy Cape of Malea.

The pre-tour instructional program, though contered in on-campus instruction, will also be r off-campus studies for those who camo, commute to the campus. College credit for the seminar is available to those desiring it. Details on the tour itinerary and other special informational bulletins are available through the Office of the President (P.O. Box 579, Kirkland, Washington 98033; or telephone: 206-822-8266).

Mrs. Luella Bishop Passes

Mrs. Luella Bishop, wife of former Northwest College faculty member, Dr. Crawford Bishop, and mother of another former faculty member and Dean of the College, the Reverend Richard Bishop, passed away in Seattle on October 10th. A former Methodist missionary to China, she met Dr. Bishop there, while he was serving as vice-council in the U.S. Embassy. She was 93 years of age at the time of her death.

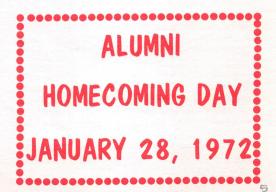

Of her four sons, three are ministers, two in the Assemblies of God, and one is a layster in the Methodist Church. The assocon of the Bishop family with Northwest College has been a long one, dating from the work of Reverend Richard Bishop on the faculty in the early 1940's until 1960, at which time he served as Dean of the College. Dr. Bishop's faculty service as special lecturer in missions, dates from his return from Japan where he and his wife worked for the Pocket Testament League until 1959, when the college moved from Seattle. Dr. and Mrs. Bishop have lived in retirement at Seattle's King's Gardens in recent years.

HELP WANTED!

"The harvest is white unto harvest. . and the laborers are few. . ." These words spoken by Jesus almost two thousand years ago were never more true than they are today so is the experience of the Placement Service at Northwest College. During the last few weeks the office has processed 23 specific listings of requests for ministers and Christian workers. Only a fraction of the personnel needed to fill them were to be found among the 1971 graduating class, it was noted. Many of this year's grads had already responded to calls from other sources.

The most acute need reflected in ministry openings is in the area of youth work, with more than 50% of the calls being for youth ministers. The emphasis on youth in today's world is apparently being reflected in spiritual challenge and need.

Alumni and former students who are open to Christian service opportunities or who know of others who are interested and available are urged to contact the College to be added to the college's placement bulletin mailing list. The bulletins are sent out as calls are received and listed. They provide a description of the ministry needed together with contact information. Interested alumni are also encouraged to contact the Placement Office at the College in person or by telephone for such service. The College address is P.O. Box 579, Kirkland, Wa. 98033. The telephone number is 206-822-8266 (ext. 45).
