FEAR OF PUBLIC SPEAKING RANKED ABOVE FEAR OF DEATH! Studies show that the average person fears giving a speech more than death itself. This fear can be a problem for college students required to take Basic Speech Class. If stage fright is a concern for you, why not enroll in the short, two week FUNDAMENTALS OF SPEECH COMMUNICATION course offered May 8 - 19. In only two weeks you can get this required course over with, (as opposed to 14 weeks next year). And, the course will be small - 6 or 7 students - so stagefright won't be such a problem. Two extra weeks in sunny Seattle for two credits you need for graduation - fun and easy - what could be better? Go to the Admissions Office and sign up for the May Speech 121 course before April 12. Never fear - enroll today.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION: May I express sincere thanks to my helpers who have shouldered, in an excellent manner, with high vision and purpose, the task of maintaining our campus. Thank you JEFF SAFE, WESLEY POLLOCK, ROBERT JOHNSON, STEPHEN POON, AND PAUL MASTERS! Others also have stepped in when we were spread too thin, volunteering their support and help. Thank you also to all of the college staff and leadership for your warm encouragement and guidance. Thanks to God for rewarding a reliance upon Him. And thank you students for bringing to our campus rich fellowship and radiant testimonies while conducting yourselves graciously and with honor, meeting needs here and there, cheerfully greeting one another -- "vessels of honor for God". -- Dan Pualsson, Grounds Department
