Academic Advising, Fall 1990. For those students who are continuing from Spring semester into Fall semester, there are two days set aside in the month of August during which you can meet with your faculty advisor. This will allow you to meet with your advisor and spend some quality time prior to the rush of Registration week which occurs after Labor Day. Faculty will be in their offices and available to meet with continuing students on August 24 and August 31 from the hours of 10:00 to 12:00 and 1:00 to 3:00. Continuing students are encouraged to meet with their advisors during one of these times in order to plan their schedule and receive counsel ahead of the actual Registration days.

"FEAR OF PUBLIC SPEAKING RANKED ABOVE DEATH"

Research shows most people fear giving a speech more than death itself. This can be a problem for students required to take the basic speech class before graduation. One way to make Speech 121 a little less threatening is to take the intensive two week course offered in May. Just Think, in two weeks you can get this required class over with. AND summer classes are always small - only six or eight students. This sounds a lot better than speaking in front of 25 people, doesn't it? Next year you might not get in a class because the speech classes fill up fast. Why not finish this college requirement in two weeks, speak in a small group setting, and free up your schedule next fall for other classes by going to the Registrar's office and signing up for Communication 121 right now. Summer school ends May 21.
