"Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it. But small is the gate and narrow is the road that leads to life, and only a few find it." Matthew

“Two Roads diverged in a yellow wood...”

In life, we travel down a long road, never sure of what we will find. At times, we enjoy the journey and find ourselves sprinting, excited to discover what is ahead. Other times, we choose to stroll and observe the scenery. We may become tired and wish to take a break, but we continue to push ourselves. Sometimes the path curves so sharply it is difficult to guess what is ahead. Many times the road splits. When this happens, one path is usually wide and well traveled, while the other is narrow and may even seem more difficult or less appealing. Robert Frost wrote a poem dealing with this idea entitled, “The Road Not Taken.” In it, he compares life to a path, reminding us that there is often a fork in the road and we must choose our route.

“...And sorry I could not travel both...”

The Bible is full of stories about people who chose the less traveled path because it was God's will. Noah obeyed God and built an ark when the rest of the world was living in sin and certainly not expecting to drown. Abraham was willing to sacrifice his own son who was very precious to him. Joseph was kind to his brothers even though he had enough power to seek revenge. Jesus prayed, "My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt" (Matthew 26:39). He then died on the cross because it was the road his Father wanted him to take.

“... I took the one less traveled by.”

Our own lives are full of choices as well. We make some of these choices on a daily basis and they do not have major effects on our lives. Other choices are more important and more difficult to make. Especially while in college, we face many difficult decisions, and it is not easy to know which path is the right one. Some students may have chosen a narrow path when they chose to attend Northwest College rather than enrolling in a large university or working full time. Many are planning to accept relatively low-paying positions such as pastors and teachers as they respond to the calling of God on their lives rather than seek the wealth of the world. Each day, we make numerous decisions and strive to follow God's will, even when it means traveling The Road not Taken.

Ernestine Rice

A few years ago in April, a baby was born in Monticelo, Arkansas, where she grew up with her Christian parents and sister, Patty. This baby was Ernestine Rice, who became a vibrant, enthusiastic woman. She attended the University of Arkansas where she earned her teaching certificate, then her Masters in Education. She lived in Arkansas with her husband Frank as a pastor's wife, then moved to Texas, then finally to Kirkland, WA. While her husband served as Dean of Education at NC, Ernestine was a highly acclaimed teacher at Rose Hill Elementary School. Finally, in 1995, she joined the staff at Northwest.

One of the words that enters into the mind of any person who meets Professor Ernestine Rice is energy. Any student who enters her classroom knows that he or she must be ready for an entire hour of nonstop information and activity. One may wonder what keeps Prof. Rice going despite the situations that life throws at her, and the answer would be dedication. From faithfully playing the piano at church to walking for several hours every morning, she is dedicated to everything she does.

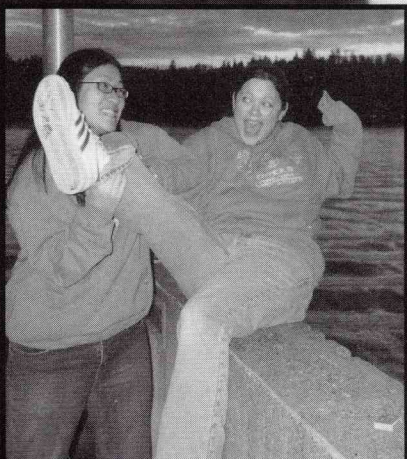

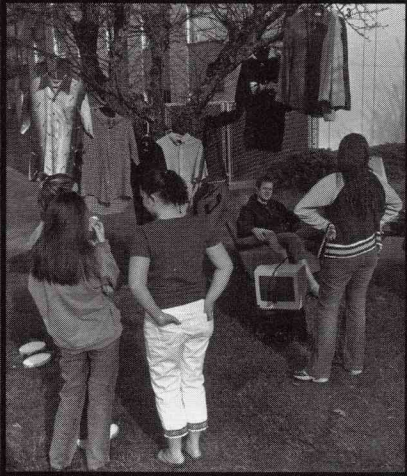

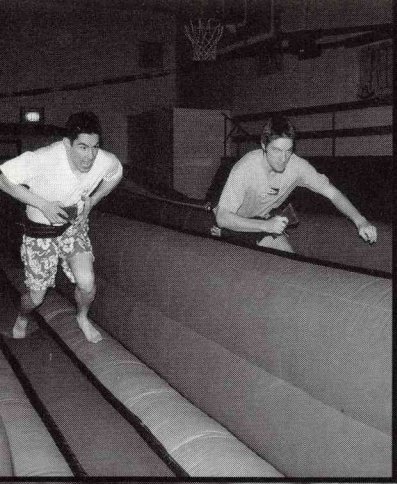

Prof. Rice's dedication to God is obvious in all she says and does, as it is reflected daily in her words and actions. Any time a student is experiencing a difficult situation, he or she knows that prayer will be offered before the student leaves her office. She often reminds students of the importance of requesting "His help" before tackling any project.

Prof. Rice is deeply committed to the students of NC and her job as well. Her care for students is evident as she takes an interest in each of their lives, holds them to the highest of standards, and maintains availability as a mentor and friend. Even through issues with health, she shows up to work with an enthusiastic smile and amazing amount of energy, though most people would have stayed home to rest and heal if facing similar situations.

It is no accident that Professor Ernestine Rice is part of one of the greatest teaching programs in the state. A common phrase is "lead by example" and the education students at NC could not have a better example to follow.

Intramurals

The intramural program enjoyed a big change this year. One of these changes was a new point system. Each floor now has its own special thermometer for the points it earns for participation, spirit, and victories during the intramural sports and activities. Fall semester brought volleyball, football, the All Sports Kick Off, and the ping-pong tournament. The points from all of these events were tallied to determine the champions. The 500 floors won the floor pizza party.

After erasing points from the fall, the intramural thermometers were ready for Spring semester. Winter activities included girls' and guys' basketball, volleyball, bowling, and ping-pong. Tennis, softball, girls' football, and soccer also added highlights in the Spring. Each floor competed in all events, hoping for the win. Amanda Peterson, intramural coordinator, explained, "This is a fresh, new idea started this year, but I am excited to see the tradition continue on through the years." Each sport will have a display plaque on campus, and the winners' names will be inscribed on these plaques.

"Channel Surfers Challenge" brought back Saturday morning memories.

It was an unusual sight when hundreds of Northwest College students headed toward the pavilion from the dorms. Some dressed in foil and strange clothing like the Jetsons wear while others wore cowboy hats or poodle skirts. Some fashionable girls even dug out their old crimpers and neon clothing from the 80's.

The dress code was not an attempt to bring back old trends. Instead, these students were attempting to earn as many points as possible for their floors in the annual Floor Olympics. Each floor was assigned the name of a television show and then was rewarded with points for dressing in the theme of the designated show. The selections included The Jetsons, Saved By the Bell, The Flintstones, ER, Happy Days, and Mash.

The event was sponsored by the ASB, Associated Men Students, and Associated Women Students. The hosts, AMS and AWS officers, dressed in their favorite Saturday-morning "comfy clothes" and led the students in a variety of games and contests. Each one was in some way related to Saturday Morning or to television shows. Participants raced to eat cereal, played

"Name That Tune," enjoyed popcorn (as they threw it at teammate), and participated in a sleeping bag relay.

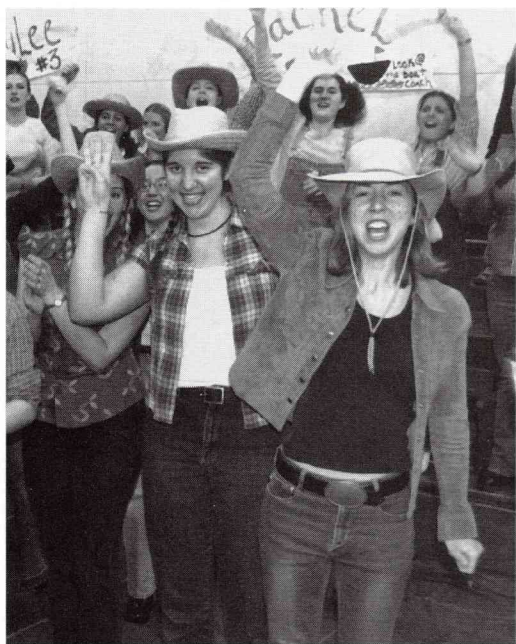

The coveted "Golden Remote" was passed around from team to team according to who cheered the loudest after each event. Nobody is sure whether the tight pants and side pony tails added a little luck, but the 200 floor "Saved By the Bell" crew went home as the champions.

How many trips DOES it take to move in??? New roommates Rob Porter and Josh Morrison venture to their room yet again with more goodies.

Rain, get lots! Students are moving in today. Josh Strickler and Melvenia Tang help give directions to arriving new students.

Ahh...August, the heart of summer. In Kirkland the rain poured down! Wednesday, August 22nd, move-in day at NC, was the wettest day of the year. New students with their moms, dads, brothers, and sisters heaved loads of boxes in from their vehicles as the relentless rain streamed down their faces and fogged up their glasses. RD Nathan Geer even had to carry a little kid over the brown river running down from the yet-to-be-completed duplexes. The construction workers were out in full force while students and their family members sloshed into their new rooms carrying everything from cameras to big screen TVs.

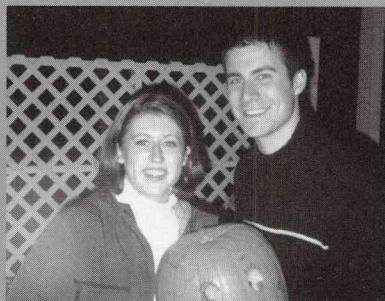

By Thursday the moving was over, and so was the rain. Students met new friends as they toured the NC campus with their orientation groups and joined other groups for crazy games and some good 'ol competition. Students were spitting marshmallows and flinging water balloons at a big target up on Crowder Hall. They won prizes from local businesses and enjoyed their free Emerald City Smoothies, Bloomin' Onions, and other various treats when they went out on town with their groups. Overall, it turned into a great weekend of preparation and good times just before classes began. What a great group of students we have!

Creative Proposals...

Roomies was so much fun this year!!! From elegant dinners to carving pumpkins, the evening of October 26th, 2001 was filled with laughter and memories that will be remembered for many years down the road.

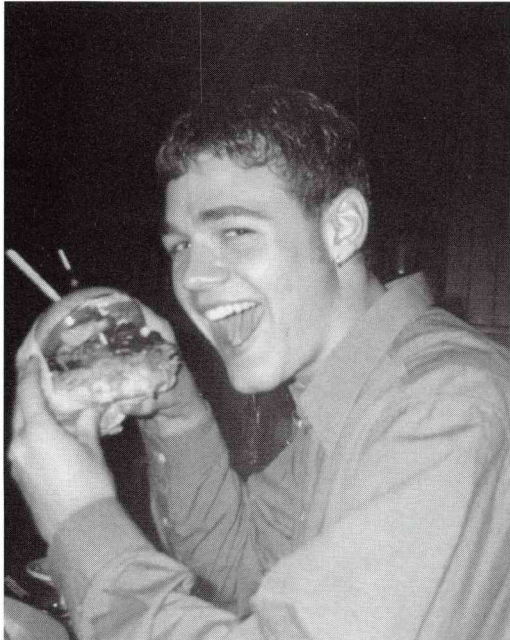

The tradition of Roomies Night Out began as an opportunity for each student's roommate to set him or her up with a date and ask in a creative way. The event has now become a time for a guy to show off his own suave and creativity as he asks the girl of his choice in the most unique way he can think of. This year Perks Lounge became the scene of the crime for Jordan Hansen when he asked Katie Valnes to be his date. Jordan convinced his buddies Jeff Welk, Matt Welk, and Ryan Kidwell to capture Katie and blindfold her so that he, dressed as Espanol Amora, could rescue her from the evil kidnappers. Once she was safe he asked her to Roomies in front of the large audience that had gathered for the dramatic production. Though Jordan put on a heroic show, some guys preferred to ask in a quieter way, though their requests were equally sweet. John Hisel asked Charmy Buck to roomies during a quiet dinner together with the simple words, "Will you go to Roomies with me?"

No matter what the guy's choice of words was as he asked the girl of his choice, it was definitely not the usual, "Um... um... wanna go to the um... movies or something?" that is more commonly used. The actual night of Roomies, as well as the process of asking that preceded it, will never be forgotten and is one of the many memorable parts of our 2001 - 2002 school year here at Northwest College.

Even Beau Phillips's mouth may not be big enough for this hamburger!

"Tina... Roomies? Yes or No?" Trevor Millar had one of the most creative ideas for asking his date.

Adrian Cole, Lindsay Fosner, and Amy Burtis must have been out past midnight... their carriage turned back into a pumpkin.

All-Sports Kickoff

School began, books called, and nights went on later in the dorms as roommates and neighbors began to meet each other. To make sure that the year started off with memories to last the whole year through and longer, ASB planned an event that helped floors come together to accomplish crazy tasks and meet the athletic teams who were preparing to begin their seasons.

The night was full of fun and competition. Floors fought for points, beginning before the event by scrounging through their closets for anything blue or gold that could be worn, including trash bags, colored tape, cheerleading skirts, and face paints. Points were also awarded for the contests. Each floor competed against one of the athletic teams, accomplishing tasks such as eating a piece of licorice (with a person at each end), writing out a message with pens in their mouths, and licking Oreo's off of a sheet of plexi-glass.

After a tiring evening of games, students were rewarded with a talented performance by nine of their peers. The young men showed their legs and stretched their voices to show Northwest students their version of cheerleading.

Talent Show

The second annual NC Talent Show was a big hit again this year with ten astounding musical acts shining with individual God-given talent. Each act left the audience impressed and enthusiastically applauding, from ear-tickling duets and classical soloists to astounding full bands and a beyond-belief barbershop quartet. Northwest college is simply oozing with talent, as students witnessed this night. We were visited by the rap artist "Pasty C-Dogg and his Troop." Brenda Liberty, Nick Peterson, and Mile 40 each brought the audience an original song from their own repertoires.

The judges did not have an easy decision as they had to pick the winners, but they were able to complete the task. The "Tony Award," given by student Tony Long-Drew, went to Alisa Blomstrand, who sang "Get Here." Third place was awarded to Woodrow Vaovasa and Diana Myrvang, who sang a medley of "Awesome In This Place" and "I Exalt Thee". Amanda Curtis placed second after singing "Bring Him Home". First Place and a prize of dinner at Outback Steak House was went to the Carpool Four, also known as Chris Judd, Nick Peterson, David Woll, and Brendan Kelly. All in all, the night was bright, fun, inspiring, and full of talent.

Carpool Four, the barbershop quartet featuring Nick Peterson, Brendan Kelly, David Woll, and Chris Judd were awarded first prize after harmonizing "Coney Island Baby."

To end the evening, Brenda Liberty passionately played her self-composed song, "Prayer Through a Window," written out of her feelings after a conversation with God.

Aaron O'Harra, Josh O'Harra, Sam Stewart, and BJ Giesbrecht, members of Mile 40, a summer ministry team, performed "A Stranger's Ambition."

All the girlies say he's pretty fly for a white guy! Paul Boyer, AKA "Pasty C. Dogg" busts a rhyme he wrote himself. "A Pirates Life For Me" brought the crowd to their feet as they clapped along.

Emily Thompson and Kareen Hansen performed "Sisters" from the classic movie "White Christmas." We thought it couldn't get any better until fellow sisters Arthur VanDyke and Mark Rodli joined the choreography.

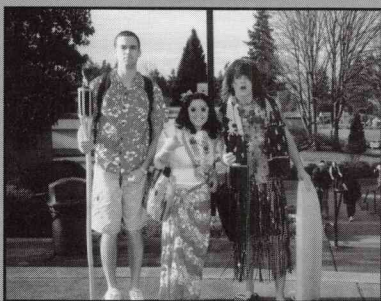

All those voice lessons sure paid off! Amanda Curtis impressed the audience with her rendition of "Bring Him Home" from "Les Miserables."

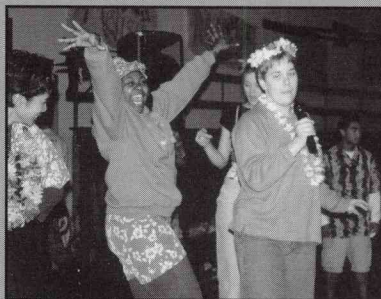

Katie Valnes tells a story that obviously entertains the audience the rest of the improv crew, Mike Purcell, Amanda Peterson, Amy Oliver, and Matt Welk.

Mike Purcell, Tara Smith, and Wes Dunn didn't wait until the last minute! They spent the entire day in their Hawaiian attire.

Northwest Christmas

Two masked strangers took out their end-of-the-semester stress on each other as they jousted at the party.

I'm Dreaming of a White Sand Christmas

You may have heard of Christmas in July, but this year the ASB and sophomore class officers brought July to Christmas. This year's Christmas party, "I'm Dreaming of a White Sand Christmas," brought a little bit of Hawaiian island paradise to Northwest College.

The evening began in the NC dining hall, which was dimly lit by tea-light candles and decorated with strings of popcorn and ornaments. Nick Peterson and Scott and Ian McFarland helped to set the mood by playing Christmas music in the background. An improv team also helped to entertain the masses; their performance included their Northwest College version of the Twelve Days of Christmas, complete with "Five rings by spring," when Matt Welk stopped everything to mock a proposal to Amy Oliver.

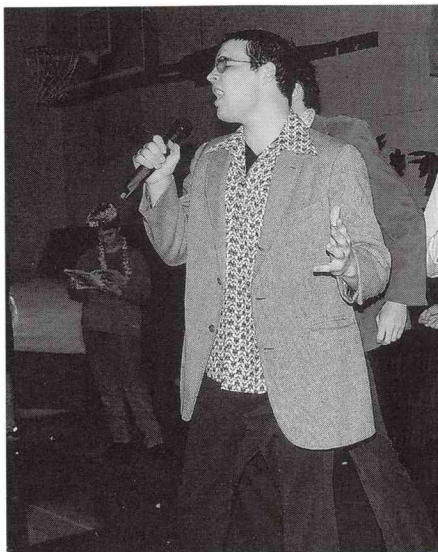

After a time for personal reflection, students discovered why the Beatty 300 guys and the sophomore class officers had been wearing Hawaiian shirts, grass skirts, and carrying boogie boards around all day, despite the fact that it was the middle of December and a Northwest Friday.

The party started in the NC Pavilion. The students participated in a ton of crazy events, from a monkey toss to an inflatable surfboard and karaoke. There was even free Ben and Jerry's ice cream. Donated prizes, Santa-grams from the Big Kahuna Santa Woodrow, a banana-eating competition, and a limbo contest also helped to make the luau spectacular.

Nick Peterson played Christmas music during the evening in the cafeteria.

Jordan Hansen dazzled the crowd as he showed off his karaoke skills.

Amy Oliver didn't even need to wait for Spring to get her ring; Matt Welk declared his love at the Christmas party.

Woodrow Vaovasa, who has experienced plenty of real Hawaiian Christmases, posed as the "Big Kahuna Santa" for pictures with students.

Homecoming

Returning students this year probably noticed that Homecoming enjoyed new activities. Rather than including only the traditional chapel service and basketball game, ASB involved students in the fun all week long. Each day had a different contest that included a fifty dollar cash prize, donated by alumni.

All day students dropped by, encouraging their friends or bribing and teasing opponents as they passed the tree between classes.

The week began on Monday with an NC Spirit Costume Contest. Students dressed in blue and gold from head to toe, attempting to earn points for their floor. Naomi Young, chosen as the most spirited, received the award for her enthusiastic participation.

On Tuesday, "Fanny Pack Day," students dug through those boxes of clothes from the 80's or simply made their own fanny packs to earn more points for their floors. It was also the day of the first-ever Northwest College "Treevivor" contest, which happened to fall on one of those very rare cold, snowy days in Seattle. Newspaper reporters even covered the event in which one brave volunteer from each floor climbed into the large tree in front of the Pecota Center and earned points for his or her floor for each hour the contestant refused the bribes, ignored the taunting, and held in the water they were all forced to drink. Holly Mugler and Brant Bosserman finally climbed down from the tree when the contest ended after ten hours.

Wednesday's event was easy for anyone on a college-student sized budget to participate in. Students added paint, leaves, garbage, toilet paper, and anything else they could find to their already trashy cars, then drove them around campus for the first annual Ugly Car Parade. Brant Bosserman was the proud winner.

Natalie Grant, a well-known singer and NC Alumnus, sang in chapel on Wednesday, then returned to give a concert on Thursday night.

Parents, alumni, and friends attended the traditional homecoming chapel which took place on Friday. Friends shared about each student in the court. The freshman prince and princess were Lindsay Fosner and Ian McFarland. Rachel Nettleton and Chris Judd were chosen to represent the sophomore class, and Emily McBlair and Ben Langhans were the elected juniors. The senior princes and princesses, who were also the nominees for king and queen, were Heidi Burtis, Brooke Caldwell, Stephanie Platter, Jason Bishop, Nick Caalim, and Justin Keeler.

On Saturday morning, Perks Lounge was transformed into a coffee house so parents could have the opportunity to meet the NC faculty and staff. Many students, after being up all night decorating, arose just in time for the floor decoration open dorms. People visited the residence halls that then resembled scenes from The Wizard of Oz, a tropical paradise, a dating service complete with a wedding at the end, and many other imaginative places.

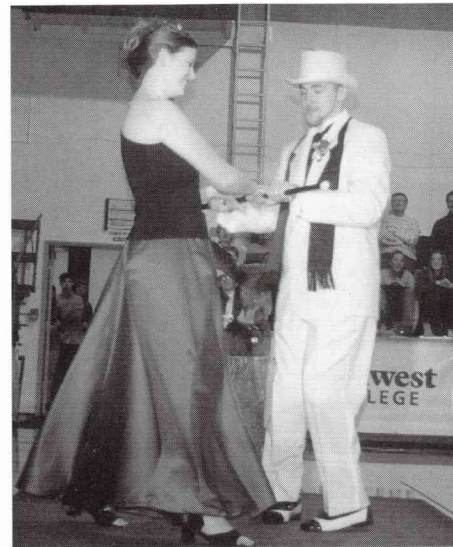

Saturday night was the homecoming basketball game, and the Eagles played a tough game against Western Baptist. After the game, the homecoming king and queen, Nick Caalim and Stephanie Platter, were crowned. The first annual screaming eagle award was presented to the ladies of Guy 200 for earning the most points through the week's events. The week ended with a reception in the dining hall.

The goal for the event-filled week was to build new traditions for Northwest homecoming, and the leaders hope the event will continue to grow in the future.

Recently engaged, Justin Keeler and Heidi Burtis are also both nominees for the homecoming court.

Jason Bishop and Brooke Caldwell smile royally as part of the court.

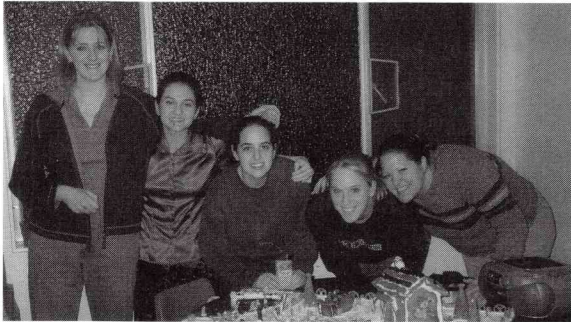

This year, the court was introduced from behind a screen. This screen shadows a kiss from Justin Keeler to Heidi Burtis.

Good Neighbor Day

Why do college students wake up early on Saturday, usually their only day to sleep in? Why - instead of sleeping in - would they rather do yard work and housework for people they do not know?

The answer? To participate in Good Neighbor Day. Once per semester, they go out dressed in Good Neighbor Day tee shirts, bouquet of flowers in hand, to the homes of people in the community who are elderly or otherwise needing help. The students dust, vacuum, rake, mow lawns, weed, and do anything else they are asked to do.

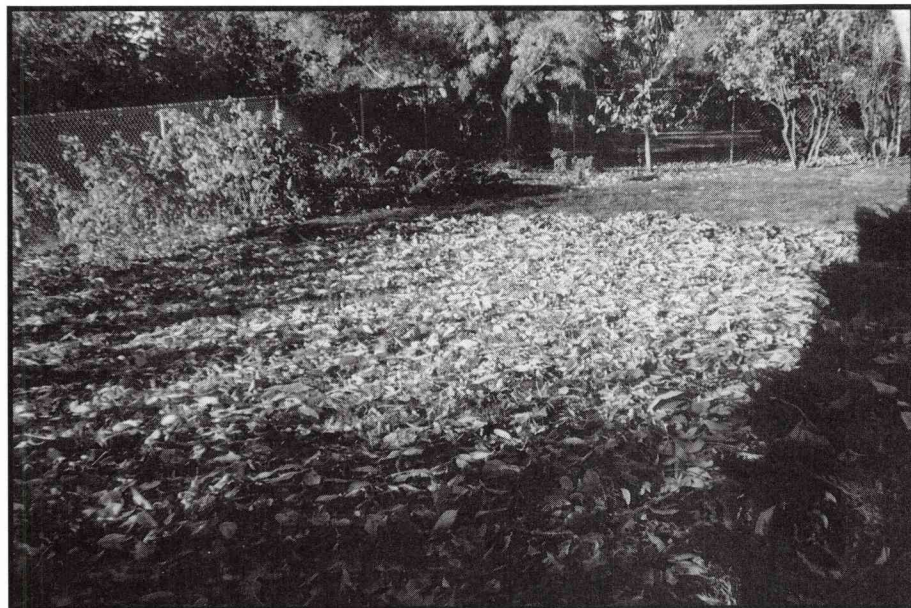

One of the visions for Northwest College is that we be a light to our surrounding community. Good Neighbor Day is one of the ways that students attempt to reach this goal. The hope is that the people in need will see the light of Christ in the students who serve.

Attacking a giant pile of leaves, Jason Bishop reaches out to NC's neighbors.

Students gathered around the flag and prayed for their nation, their schools, churches, friends, and families.

See You At The Pole

The NC students who attended SYATP (See You At The Pole) greatly influenced students at the public schools. Northwest College students attended the prayer time at Lake Washington High School, Juanita High School, and Finn Hill Junior High School. Their purpose was to encourage the students who were praying and to let them know that Northwest College students support them as they impact others for Christ. Wonderful things happen every year as a result of NC students' support. SYATP is a great way for Northwest College students to encourage younger men and women in their faith and to encourage them to change their generation with the reality of Jesus Christ.

NC students supported the high schoolers as they joined together to pray.

Students left flowers in memory of those who lost their lives in the September 11 attacks. With See You at the Pole occurring just days after the tragedy, record numbers of students gathered around their school's flag pole this year. Our nation, from the students to the President, is seeking God in this time of turmoil.

Seanna Shaw joined the high school students in prayer.

Young Life Open Door

Young Life Open Door is an outreach to teens with disabilities. Every Monday night, Northwest college meet with these students for "club," where wild and crazy games are played such as girls squeezing toothpaste into the boys' mouths. After games and songs, students give a club talk that involves the message of Jesus Christ.

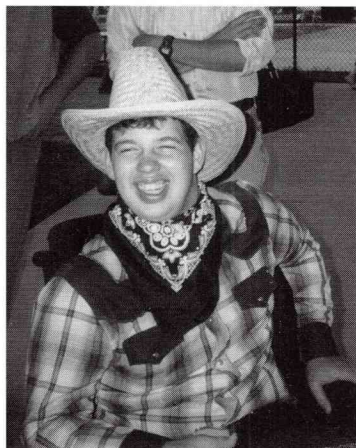

Last summer, students went to camp at Wildhorse Canyon. Six of the students asked Jesus into their hearts. One the many great memories is when one of the girls stood up at Club Sayso and said, "I have Jesus in my heart." Young Life Open Door is an excellent opportunity to reach out not only to high school students, but also to high school students with disabilities.

Young Life students go all-out with their hats and bandanas at Wildhorse Canyon, Oregon.

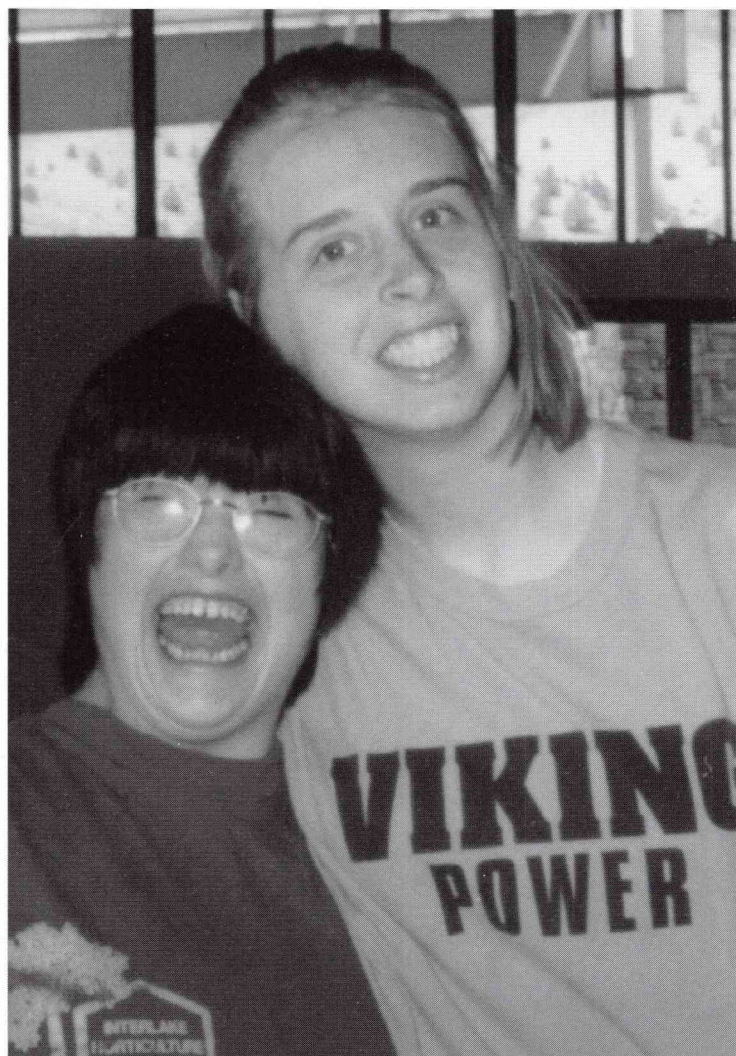

Friendships that last a lifetime are formed at Young Life camp.

There's nothing like that Good ol' western feeling.

The smiles are BIG at Young Life's Wild Horse Canyon Camp.

Lake Washington Football

As a new outreach event, NC students stormed Lake Washington High School bleachers first to cheer on the football team, then to help with the school by cleaning up their garbage. The vision for this ministry began when student leaders gathered at camp late last year. Resident Life Director Dan Hickman stirred the hearts of the coming year's leaders with a challenge to show neighbors Northwest College students' hearts, making our hope of "carrying the call" a reality. This caused the decision to organize the ministry to the high school.

This ministry has proven to be effective. The LW Kangaroos now insist that NC students get into the games for free. We hope that somewhere down the road we will be able to support Lake Washington in more than just football games and establish a deeper relationship with the school so that it will see light shining from our campus and into our Jerusalems, Judeas, Samarias, as well as to the ends of the earth.

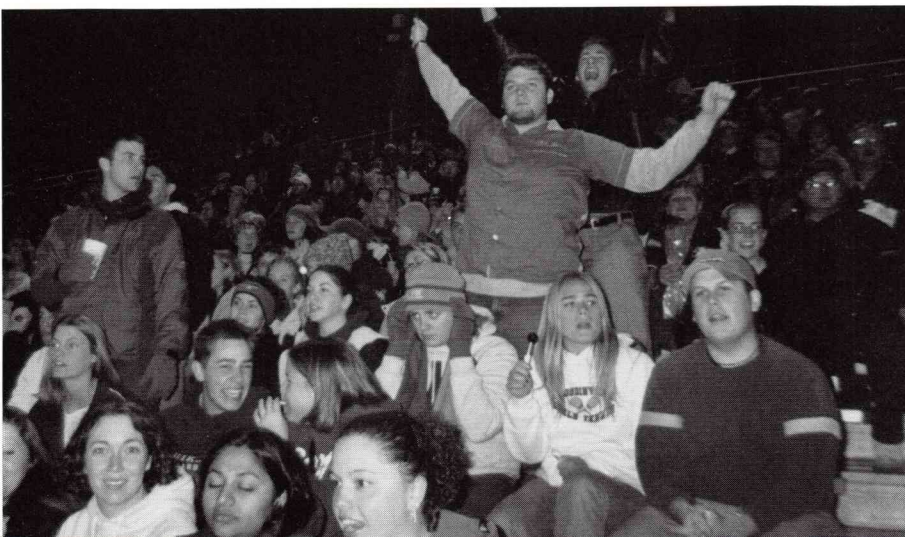

Dumpster Diving? The stands are a cleaner place with Erin Bunda around.

Who would have thought cleaning could be so much fun? BJ Giesbrecht, Katie Thomas, Heidi Stynsberg, and Christina "Thuy" Rider have a blast picking up trash in the stands of Lake Washington HS.

Emily McBlair and Jared Cooksey use their hearts, heads, and hands to carry the call by volunteering to clean the stands after a Lake Washington football game.

WoooooHoooo!!! NC students exuberantly cheer as the Lake Washington Kangaroos score a touchdown.

Lunch Buddies

Shannon Keough climbs up for a better view of the playground.

Lunch Buddies is another opportunity for Northwest College students to reach out to the community. Each volunteer is assigned to a specific student in one of the Lake Washington district elementary schools. The students are usually underprivileged or need extra attention. The volunteer visits the school once a week and eats lunch with the student. He or she simply talks to the student to and hangs out with the student in order to build a relationship and to be a role model. Sometimes, the volunteer even gets to go out to play at recess!

This outreach is one that especially attracts students who have a heart for children. It does not take much time yet often makes a tremendous impact in the life of a needy student.

Business Club

Poor Man's Offering, Brent Jamieson, Nick Peterson, Ian McFarland, and Scott McFarland, play at the parents' coffeehouse.

Sleepy students who stumble through Perks Lounge on their way to class are grateful for the newest project of the Business Club. With the goal to teach business skills to the students, the club purchased an espresso stand. The stand helps contribute to the atmosphere on campus, and also students can now purchase their beverages, then sit and chat in the lounge. Thanks to the espresso stand, Northwest College was able to sponsor the first annual parent coffee house as well. Money generated by the business will first pay off the cost of the stand. Afterwards, the profits will help to generate scholarships for NC students.

The president of the business club is Jeremy Frank, and the Vice Presidents are Jordan Hansen and Naomi Robinson. Another project the club participated in this year was their annual General Motors promotion. They help with the sales and ads for the company every Spring in Bellevue.

Bread of Life

Students had the chance to put on chapel services at the Bread of Life Mission for the homeless in Seattle. They contributed through worship, speakers, dramas, and volunteers serving dinner in the kitchen, hoping to show Christ's love in their serving hearts. It has been their desire to be a blessing to the B.O.L. Mission staff, as well as to the many men who attend the chapels. God has blessed this ministry abundantly.

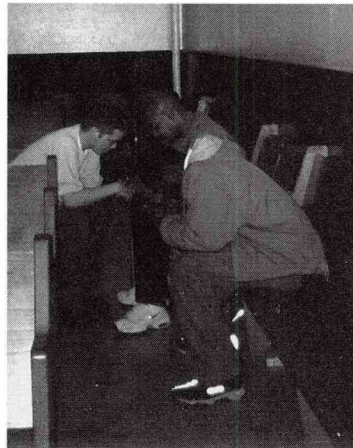

The group members describe themselves as "Christians who desire to be used by God, given the opportunity to reach out into their community and make a difference in people's lives." They add, "By placing ourselves in a position to serve and share God's great Message, we are able to help further the Great Kingdom. It is our desire to help students find a new joy in reaching out to the lost, needy and forgotten. By giving of our hearts and time, we will be pointing the way towards the God of Hope and Healing. Thus, we are offering food for the soul."

Waterfront Worship

Triumph Ministries

Jesus said, "In as much as ye have done it unto the least one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto thee." (Matthew 25:40). The students involved in Triumph Ministries are discovering just how rewarding it can be to do so. They see the impact they can have on the lives of hurting people as they visit people who are in prison.

The group has witnessed grown men cry out in gratitude to the Lord for loving them and forgiving them. A nine-year-old in the juvenile detention center felt that his life was worth something simply because he was given an opportunity to play the drums and loved it. One young lady cried as she was moved by the Spirit to simply worship from her heart, and teens brightened up on Christmas Eve when NC students went to hang out with and sing carols with them.

The group has taken a band in to lead worship, sing songs they have written, and sing carols with kids who were unable to go home for Christmas. Through it all, they have shared the word of God's love.

It is not only the prisoners who are blessed, but also the students presenting the good news. When students become involved, they often catch the vision to pray with the people as well as hang out, play games, and provide friendship. One guy became misty-eyed over the people who need a friend to simply care for them.

The outreach leader, Joey Costello, explained, "My love grows more and more for these prisoners, and God just fills our hearts with more passion to go around. We desire to do more. There is room for those who have a passion to pray, sing, preach, play instruments, do drama, or just be a friend. I feel that my time is well spent. Nothing can replace that joy of feeling that you are about the Father's business."

Waterfront Worship is a radical breakthrough in outreach ministry. It captures the worship of a passionate generation, one previously wrought only in pews and altars, and delivers it on the cold, hard streets of our city. We provide a fresh opportunity for those who don't know Christ to see and experience our God in a powerfully expressive way. Amidst bars and clubs, backdropped by the water of Lake Washington, and covered by the sparkling sky, we bring a band and supporting students whose sole purpose is to give God praise and glory, both in music and in the relationships we build with those we meet.

This year has been a success. Each night was marked by a great turnout of students who engaged in an awesome time of public worship. We pray God will one day harvest the seed that He used us- in sharing Jesus, the greatest form of worship- to sow.

Spring Break Trips

The first was the Portland Project. Started by Jason Bishop three years ago, this outreach works with his home church. Fifteen students joined the outreach this year. They worked to renovate the church, witness door-to-door in Portland, join with the church to help with the Sunday morning service, preach, and perform in drama and singing.

Second, a San Francisco trip was led this year by Melvenia Tang. Ten students flew to California where they joined a team from Evangel College to help Mel's home church. The church sponsored its biggest event in its history, an outreach in Golden Gate Park. The teams focused on children's ministry as they performed drama and music and ministered in many other ways.

Lighthouse

Lighthouse is a place to meet new people and to be stretched by God. It's a friendship-based outreach to the University Avenue in University District. After meeting in the Eagles Nest for prayer, members head out to where the people are. The unique thing about Lighthouse is that it is friendship-based, rather than an in-your-face mentality of witnessing. Members invest in the lives of street people, showing them that Christians do care about them. Jr. and Pat are two people who have seen God move in their lives after meeting NC students. Pat is now off the streets, attending church regularly, and has a full time job. Jr. is showing slow progress in making a commitment, for example, by requesting prayer. The vision for the ministry is that it will grow so students can share love with more hurting people. The goal is to have frequent nights of ministry in different areas of Seattle, so that more lives will be touched through Christ's love.

Pursuit

Stacy Beach and Michelle Morris passionately seek God.

Pursuit is a student-led gathering for worship and prayer. Its vision is to provide a place where students can experience the presence of God firsthand, through worship, prayer, and relationship building. Through it all, the hope is that students develop a deeper understanding of God and grow as people of faith. The gathering usually takes place in the chapel and includes powerful worship, a word of encouragement, and a time of corporate, small group, or individual prayer. Occasionally the students meet in Perks Lounge, instead, just to hang out and drink coffee; then they move into worship and prayer. The leadership team hopes that students will be drawn to this opportunity to worship because God speaks into their hearts when they come. There are numerous testimonies of God's work through Pursuit, and His work will surely continue to increase.

Chapel

The chapel is the beautiful building in which students gather three times a week to worship.

Sherri Anderson, Amy Burtis, and Jeff Welk join their peers in worship as they focus on God.

Butterfield Chapel, life abounds. Students and staff pause in the middle of their day to worship God through music and the message of a speaker, which is sometimes a faculty or staff member, sometimes a fellow student, or sometimes an outside guest.

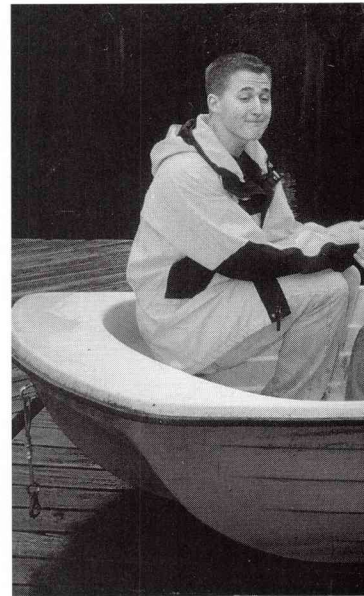

Northwest College was blessed this year as Phil Rasmussen accepted the position of the new Dean of Chapel. His vision is that chapel be a place where students can focus completely on God. He longs to see students have hungry hearts that want to come to chapel as they follow God and seek His will for each of their lives.

Poor Man's Offering, Scott McFarland, Nick Peterson, Ian McFarland, and Brent Jamieson prepare for their summer to be fishers of men.

Every year, students audition to be a part of a Summer Ministry Team. Each team consists of three or four students who spend the summer traveling to various churches and camps, using the gifts God has given them to minister to children and youth. Some teams focus on drama while others play music. The teams that will be traveling this summer are Acts, H<sub>2</sub>O, PB & J, and Poor Man's Offering.

Acts (Ac-claiming Christ Through Skits) and H<sub>2</sub>O (Hope to Others) are each made up of three women whose goal is to reach out to teens. They do so primarily through skits and drama on stage, though they also spend time building relationships with their audiences off stage.

Peanut Butter and Jesus ministers to children, and this will be their seventh summer traveling. They perform skits, use puppets, sing songs, and do anything else they can think of to help children learn about God.

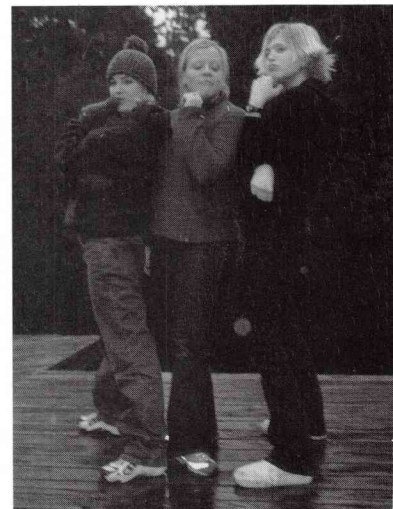

Poor Man's Offering, NC's third SMT, consists of four guys who are gifted musically and who want to use that gift to reach the lost. They have formed a band, and they will travel this summer, performing and helping teens to know God better.

The H<sub>2</sub>O women Renee Morgan, Amanda Peterson show off their muscles, demonstrating with their trusting teammate Michelle Morris.

Directed by Professor Bill Owen, Concert Choir is a premier chorale group comprised of 30 vocalists who perform a variety of music, heavily emphasizing on the classics. This type of music has provided a challenge for the vocalists because it requires attention to detail. The Christmas concert featured John Rutter's "Gloria" in combination with Master Chorale and members of the Bellvue Philharmonic Orchestra. This concert was also a doctoral recital for Professor Owen, who has been pursuing his doctorate in choral conducting, under Maestro Abraham Kaplan at The University of Washington.

The Concert Choir ministers in church and district settings throughout the Northwest Region during the academic year. The members of the choir spent their spring break traveling to British Columbia, where they had an opportunity to sing at churches and Christian schools.

Concert Choir wishes to extend its appreciation and love to Director Bill Owen and his beautiful wife Sherry, who constantly support and encourage their students' musical achievements. The music program at Northwest College is blessed to have them both.

The Master Chorale is directed by Director Bill Owen and is comprised of a variety of students and auxiliary members, which are faculty members and other members of the community. The choir sings a variety of pieces from various types of music, including gospel, contemporary, and classical. The most challenging piece that they conquered this year was "Rutter's Gloria," which they sang at Northwest's annual Christmas Concert.

Master Chorale has performed along with the other music groups at Northwest's Fall, Christmas, and Spring concerts, as well as at graduation. They were also a part of the Symphony of Hymns during the Christmas season. They are a dedicated choir that gathers to practice three times a week to continue to build and strengthen their God-given talents.

Northwest Choralons is a choir that includes both vocalists and a rhythm section. The missions statement for the choir is to provide an encouraging musical experience that brings hope and builds the body of Christ. The choir travels throughout the Northwest District, offering an exciting musical presentation.

The members of Choralons are Bree Archer, Emily Barnes, Jill Bruley, Amy Burtis, Breanna Carpenter, Chabree Cassano, Jana Detrick, Brittany Duncan, Melissa Forrey, Lindsay Fosner, Brian Friske, Chris Glavan, Mahele Grover, Amber Haack, Jonette Hagebusch, Brent Jamieson, Sarah Jenkins, Brenden Kelley, Laura Krisel, Bria Lindseth, Tony Long-Drew, Arlene Madrid, Melynda Marshall, Scott Means, Scott Neely, Amy Oliver, Ashley Radloff, Kevin Sabourin, Allison Smith, Josh Strickler, Emily Tyler, Woodrow Vaovasa, Maggie Wakefield, and Matthew Welk.

Music

There was a new addition to the NC music program this year: the Wind Ensemble. It is directed by Professor Prettyman and has proven to be one that is accepted by the students and community. It started out with only ten members, and now has grown to an ensemble of around 25 to 30, including both students and community members. The Wind Ensemble is composed of brass, percussion, and wind instruments and exists primarily to allow individuals to improve their musical skills, as well as to assist the choir in their concerts, providing them with live music.

The group meets twice a week and hopes to only grow in numbers as well as in quality. They hope to one day be more of a community ensemble than a purely student ensemble, since there are only a few faculty and community members involved at this point. Due to the continuing interest that has been seen throughout this year we are excited to see how this area of our music department grows throughout the years.

The Wind Ensemble students and community members are Brianna Bowe, Jennifer Bridger, Justin Chu, Brent Colby, Brittany Duncan, Lindsay Flowers, Josten Garalde, Micah Indra, Leah Kochrian, Brad Lowery, Ian McFarland, Scott Means, Alena Michael, Ashley Ott, Melody Peak, Rachel Renn, Jennifer Russell, Erica Ryther, Stephanie Schaible, Gordon Sherman, Colby Smith, Joshua Strickler, Chad Sunquist, Amanda Surgeon, and Michael Thompson.

I've been fascinated by Helen Keller since I was a child viewing The Miracle Worker on television; I never thought I would be playing her in the stage production. Keller was born with both sight and hearing. Only after a brief illness at nineteen months did she lose these senses. Afterwards, Keller was an untamed, spoiled child, nearly impossible to control. Then, just before her seventh birthday, Annie Sullivan, a twenty-two year old teacher from the Perkins Institute for the Blind, came to teach her. Let's just say Sullivan found more than she had bargained for.

Auditioning, I knew that if I won the part of Helen Keller, it would be a difficult one. Playing a blind, deaf, and mute person contradicts every truth that we live with daily.

When I learned I had won the part, my dream was realized. Thus I began the journey to "becoming" Helen Keller. Now with God's grace and to His glory, I can share Helen Keller's special story with our college community.

Our wonderful ASB Officers are: Justin Keeler, Mercy Sekhar, Mel Tang, Becky Miller, Jason Bishop, Amanda Peterson, Nick Caalim, and Rachael Dill.

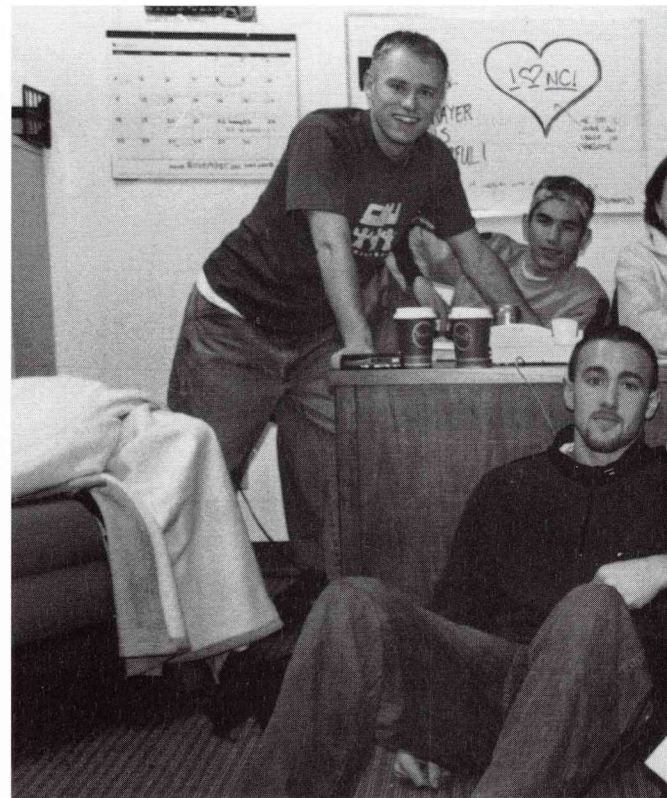

The group has bonding time at Snoqualmie Falls.

The year began for ASB officers on August 17th and 18th with a retreat at the Salish Lodge to do dreaming and vision casting. They were blessed to be able to use the conference room at the Lodge, frequently used by large companies including Microsoft to spend time vision casting and strategizing. While at this memorable retreat, they put together a purpose statement for themselves as leaders, as well as a four-element focus: prayer, obedience, commitment, and partnership. With this in mind, ASB set out to be a team that would set the standard in all aspects of life at NC:

in spiritual lives, in school work, and in their own activities. Justin challenged the team often to be people who redefined their respective positions and raised the bar on all fronts.

The specific purpose of the ASB team is to facilitate the ministries and activities that occur on and off campus. ASB is in charge of specific events such as Homecoming and the spring Banquet. The other college activities throughout the year are put together by the other student officers with the help of the ASB team. All in all, their job is to do whatever they can to make sure people leave Northwest College having gained many unforgettable memories.

Most students finish their homework, hang out with some friends, then climb into bed for a few hours of sleep before waking up for classes the following morning. Unbeknownst to them, a busy world continues deep inside the Pecota Center. Many students have seen people through a little, rectangular window in the Pecota center. Many may wonder, who are they?

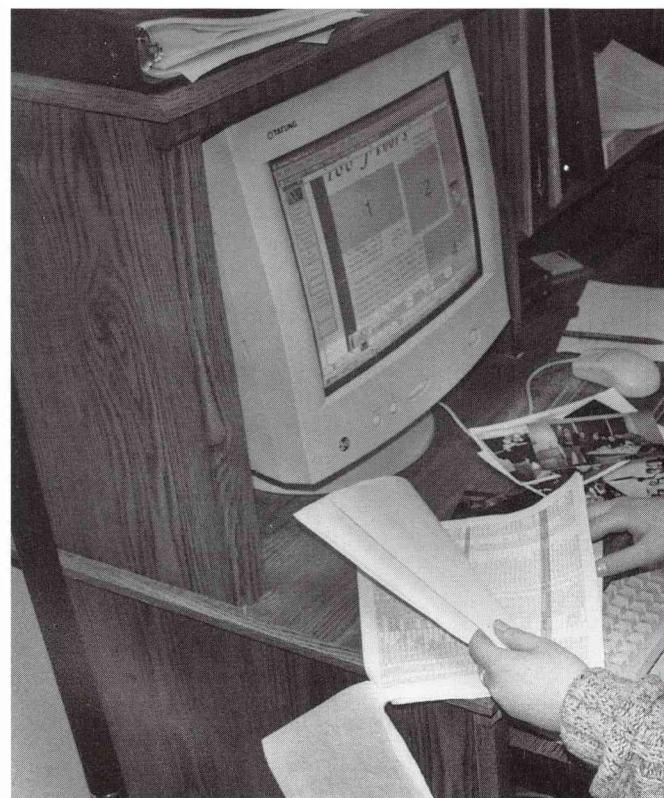

These four students, familiar with deadlines and tears, are the Karisma yearbook staff. These students take pictures, sell ads to raise money, compose articles, check hundreds of name spellings, and design a book that they hope their peers will treasure as a memory of the event-filled school year.

The staff this year included Danielle Mackie and Melody Benson as editors, Cherree Crumbo as assistant editor, Casey Broadwater as photographer with help from Desha Givens, and Brian Graham as business manager. Professor Julia Young provided the final editing.

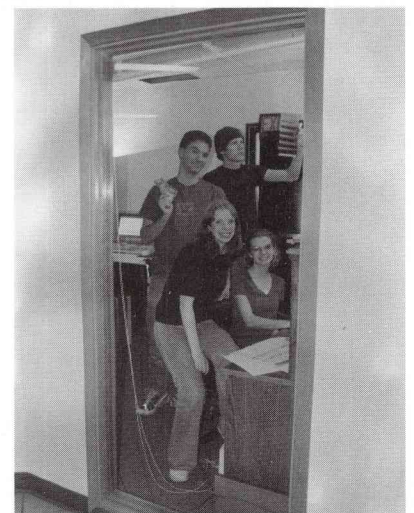

As always, the staff is relieved to see a finished book. Even deadlines, lack of sleep, staff changes, leaky roofs, and computer problems can't stop this crew!

Cherree Crumbo is always excited to help out wherever the current need exists.

Resident Life Staff

The women's Resident Life Staff (RLS) are: Rachel Bryan, Naomi Robinson, Kasea Hamar, Elisa Reimer, Valerie Geer, Chelsea Vegter, Sara Miller, Skye Everage, Bonne Argue, and Lisa Blomquist.

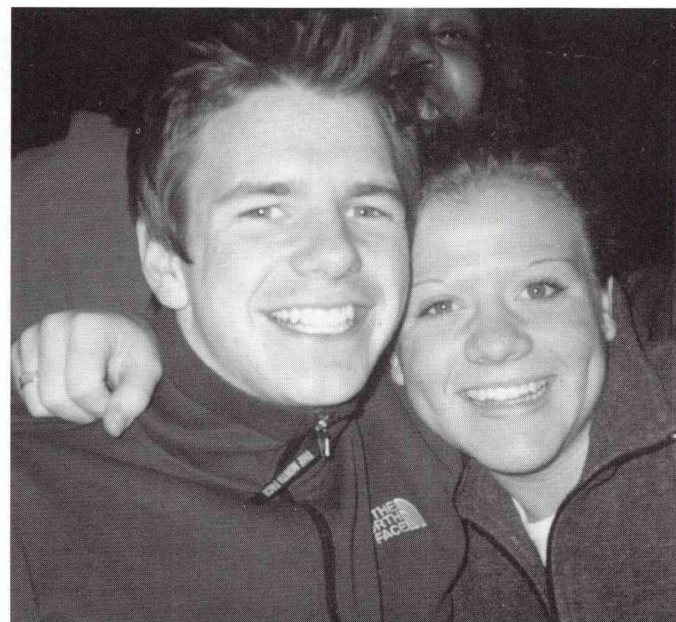

Paul Boyer, Elisa Reimer, and Sam Morrison are stumped.

All work and no play?? The men of the Resident Life Staff enjoy a hearty dog-pile.

The men's RLS are: Jim Dailey, Scott McFarland, Nathan Moser, Jordan Hansen, Jeremy Kinlock, Nathan Geer, Ben Langhans, and Paul Boyer.

Good morning sunshine! Sara Miller, Lisa Blomquist, and Naomi Robinson endure one of the RA's least favorite traditions. Their predecessors have waked them up bright and early to go out to breakfast.

The Resident Directors, Jeremy Kinlock, Nathan Geer, Valerie Geer, and Bonnie Argue, join Dan Hickman, Director of Student Life.

Striving to meet time and energy Offering their ships and from resident assistants sought to meet every student on a personal (and more often than not) "friend-for-life" level. The RA's did their best to make themselves constantly available to meet the needs of their charges while at the same time striving to make sure each of their floors was one that showed a sense of unified purpose and fun.

The four Resident Directors (Bonnie Argue, Jeremy Kinlock, Nathan and Valerie Geer) sought a role of being proactive roles in their approach to student life here on campus. Involving themselves in the daily lives of students, whether visiting with them over a meal in the cafeteria or simply just "hanging out" with those living in the Residence Halls, gave the RD's a place as not only "mentors" on campus, but as "friends" as well.

AMS

The Associated Men Student officers are a busy bunch. The officers, Jeff Welk (President), Mark Rodli (Vice-President), and Nathan Pracht (Secretary/Treasurer) helped to plan many of the events that took place this year on the Northwest College campus. Their responsibilities included Spring Roomies, Valentines Day Banquet, Floor Olympics, and the Spring picnic; some of these events they worked on with the AWS. New events they started this year included the monthly "Faculty Forums" in the Grey-Betty Lounge and the Spring golf tournament. The men were even able to buy new things for their lounge with the extra money that the AMS had left over. Jeff Welk explained that the goal of AMS is "to make student life for the men better."

The Associated Women Student Officers stay also busier than many people realize. The officers are Lisa Scansen (President), Kareen Hansen (Vice President), Bryn Johnson (Secretary) and Denise Jordan (Treasurer). They organize many events throughout the year, including Roomies, Valentine's Banquet, Floor Olympics, and the All School Picnic. They also plan several other events throughout the year that help to bring together the women of NC. As the officers, the girls have a lot of fun planning, promoting and carrying out these various activities of the year that help to unify the campus. Their goal is to plan activities that boost growth, fun, fellowship, many other positive attributes on the Northwest College campus in many other ways..

Psi-Chi

Jaqueline Gustafson reviews Psi Chi information.

Psi Chi, founded in 1929, is the National Honor Society in Psychology. Its purpose is to encourage, stimulate, and maintain excellence in scholarship as well as to advance the science of psychology.

This year in the Northwest College Psi Chi chapter, five new members joined the twenty-eight returners. The officers focused on the students, the community, and the nation, as they planned local celebrations, movie nights, and service projects, and as they joined forces with charity organizations.

Members benefited from the organization as well. They learned of existing awards and grants, and had the opportunity to attend this year's APA convention in California. An informational speaker attended a meeting and offered advice on graduate school and research opportunities. Members also developed relationships with other psychology majors and professionals. This year was rewarding and fulfilling.

AIS

Northwest College is blessed to have international students representing sixteen different countries, students studying and preparing for their future. Thirty-two international students attended Fall semester and 29 in the Spring. Associated International Students desires to help these students achieve their goals of a college education and to help them to have the best experience possible in a land whose culture is different from their own. AIS also desires for students, not only international but also American, to have opportunities for intercultural experience. They do this in cooperation with ISS (International Student Service) by providing a conversation-partner program. Two students from different backgrounds meet to chat and share their cultures; international students get a great opportunity to improve their English skills and meet new people at the same time. Above all, AIS is here to serve students and serve God.

Cross Country

The Race is Run to the Very End

The Northwest College Women's Cross Country Team consisted of 10 ladies who fought hard this year to take the road less traveled. They ranked number one in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) league for most of the year, and never ranked below third place. The team placed seventh when it came down to it at NAIA nationals which was something none of the team members had expected, nor had coach Bill Taylor. He stated on the team's web page before the season had begun "Expect Northwest Women's Team to place in the top five at NAIA nationals again in 2001." He was proud of the team nonetheless.

Not only was it ladies do an awesome job, the Men's Cross Country Team put forth effort this year as well. Even though the entire team was only two guys, Rusty McCrea and Phil Olson, this did not make the team any less important. The teammates stepped up and made up for the lack of team members by competing just as hard as if they had a full team. As the team ran the race physically, they did as well spiritually, taking a stand by praying at the line before every race and making sure to put first right where He belongs.

How much farther? Runners cover a lot of ground during their meets. Hang in there, Kim Stone!

Rusty McCrea and Phil Olson prepare at the starting line for the long race ahead of them.

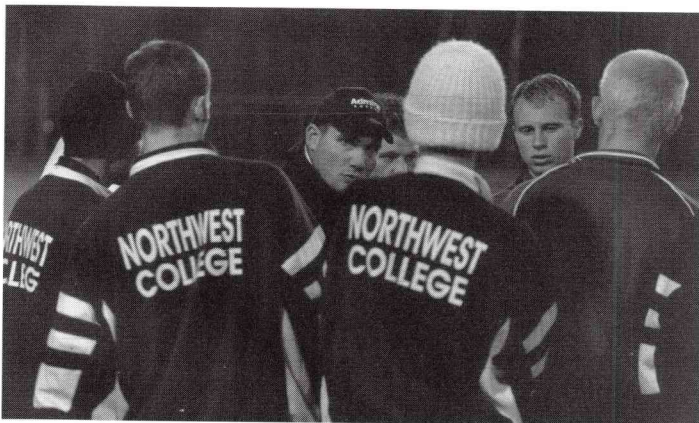

Beginning together, only time and speed will determine the winners in this race.

Soccer

Bryan Cbud

The Northwest College soccer team came into their season with high hopes, an uncrushable spirit, and twenty-two players. Unfortunately, the players' high hopes were continually lowered as injuries and ineligibilities continuously disqualified their teammates. However, their uncrushable spirits refused to die. The Eagles continued to keep games close and compete well even after being reduced to eleven players. A rigorous training schedule kept the team in top shape and ready for every game. Under first year Coach Sparky Parker, the team was led by the "Alaska Pipeline" trio of offense, and the "Quartet of Speed" in the defense. The Eagles gave every team they faced a hard fought game and sometimes even gave the opposing team a loss. When the team faced an early season end due to lack of players, reinforcements came in. The season may not have been a huge success, but the ragged militia fought hard and had fun. It was a character-building season, as every team experiences at some point, but the team had a lot of fun in the midst of a potentially frustrating season.

Volleyball

Fighting to the End

With new coach Shaun Kupferberg and a fairly new team, Northwest College's Women's Volleyball Team pulled together to take themselves all the way to the National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA) nationals. Pressing through the first couple of weeks of the season were slightly rough as the teammates and Coach Kupferberg were still getting to know one another, but the team came together and started their season off well.

One highlight that stands out to the ladies is their win against Western Baptist University, a defeat that had not been done by the Eagles in eight years. The team will also remember traveling to North Carolina, where they placed seventh in the NCCAA national Division I tournament. It was a positive experience for the entire team and even for Coach Kupferberg lost at the late-night Uno games, despite what he says.

Overall the team worked their hardest and stuck together through injuries and losses both on and off the court. They took the high road to do their best throughout the season.

The girls gather to show their team spirit before attempting to beat yet another team.

It doesn't need to be a hard hit ball to be a kill, as Kelly Clarke shows here.

Men's Basketball

"I enjoyed going to war with each one of these guys, and I will always consider them family."
-Tyrone Ellis

The 2001-2002 Men's basketball season is one that the team will never forget. This year's team had only three players returning from last year's squad; the other ten players were new. The Eagles played one of the most difficult schedules in NC history. Games against NCAA Division II opponents included Central Washington University, Western Washington University, Seattle Pacific University, and NCAA Division I opponent, Eastern Washington University. The men learned early in the season that the bumps they took against these schools were going to prepare them for their own conference schedule. That schedule began with their win on a last second shot from Josh Bull against Southern Oregon University. Unfortunately, the season quickly turned the other way. Captain Justin Prohn mentioned, "We lost a lot of really close games. In fact we were in almost every game we played this year and the scoreboard didn't always come out in our favor, but even more important, we were able to show our love for Jesus Christ in every game we played. The fans supported us throughout the entire season; they made the season fun and exciting, and we owe them a lot for sticking with us."

Tyrone Ellis, Justin Prohn, Nate Lindseth, and Dan Schneider decide which play will lead the team to victory.

Tyrone Ellis jumps for the rebound, attempting to steal the ball from the rivals as the guys fight hard on their home court.

Nick Krismunanudo makes sure to follow through after shooting from the outside.

Women's Basketball

Holy Intensity

"Holy Intensity—
playing for an Audience of One"
was the mission statement of this year's Lady Eagles Women's Basketball Team. The goal was to represent Christ to other teams, players, and fans. They did so through the thing they know best how to do: playing basketball.
Rachel Nettleton, a sophomore guard, shared how the team accomplished their goal. "Before a game, we each picked a player from the other team to pray for, then after the game we told the player that she was being prayed for."

As with any team, unforgettable memories were created. There were the "bloody teammate to break free.*

bunny games," playing in the PAV, haunted hotels, eating at Mike's Seafood and Steakhouse, obtaining rock star names, and who could forget eating at Perkins?

Through the long months of practices and games, the closeness of the team only increased, despite the spells of upsetting games. Coach Kathy Langston admits, "I've never gone through this kind of thing before (not winning) but if it wasn't for the Lord being the center of our team, it would have been more difficult to handle. But, this team showed their perseverance through it all and their characters grew, allowing every one of the girls, including myself, to grow in the Lord."

In the middle ground, there are several bare trees with intricate branch structures. In the background, a building is partially visible on the right side. The overall scene is quiet and wintry.

“... and that has made all the difference.”

As the year comes to an end, we look back at the road we have traveled this year. There have been unexpected twists, turns, and bumps. Some have led to wonderful unexpected experiences while others have dropped us down bumpy hills. Another year is complete; another section of the road has been traveled. We will continue on. Some students have passed through the gate that marks the end of their education. They will continue down the road as they find jobs and minister. Others have more schooling ahead of them on their paths. Either way, the path may not have always been the easiest one, but the hope is that it truly has made all the difference.

Colophon

800 copies of the 2002 Karisma were printed by Walsworth Publishing Company of Marceline, Missouri. The local representative is Mike Archer.

Copy is set in the Bracken family. The cover is school designed using a company standard layout. The endsheet is a stock granite gray.

On behalf of Danielle, Brian, Casey, and especially Melody and Cherree, Northwest College would like thank them for their tireless efforts to get this book out on time.

Additional thanks go to Wally Kowalski for the mug shots, David Elmes for his support, Julia Young for endless proof reading, and Mike Archer for making sure it all got done correctly.

We hope you enjoy this book for many years to come.
